NO G.E. TALKS

Union Eyes Pact At Westinghouse

NEW YORK (AP) — With no new talks scheduled in the crippling nationwide strike against General Electric, union officials began to shift their attention today to the Westinghouse Electric Corp., which faces a Nov. 9 contract expiration deadline.

More than three-quarters of General Electric's 170,000 production employees were out, union and company spokesmen agreed. The nation's No. 4 industrial giant said its 280 U.S. plants would remain open for those who wanted to work, but a local G.E. spokesman in Fort Wayne, Ind., summed up by saying, "We have to have people to produce in this business."

Meanwhile, the strikers' wage demands were called "superinflationary' 'by Fred J. Borch, G.E.'s chairman and chief executive officer.

The AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers, chief among the 13 unions that struck G.E. yesterday, transferred its communications and strike headquarters from New York to Pittsburgh, Pa., scene of talks with Westinghouse.

As the strike went into its second day, the Nixon administration, viewing it as a test of its antiinflation policies, said it will let the company and unions fight it out without federal interference.

Secretary of Labor George P. Schultz said the government will keep out of the G.E. strike except for the voluntary efforts of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. If any war production is stopped, Schultz indicated, the government would consider a Taft-Hartley injunction only against the few plants involved.

Shultz said the Nixon administration had already warned both labor and business not to base wage and price decisions on the assumption of continued inflation.

Scattered incidents of minor violence were reported. In Schenectady, N.Y., three white collar workers were bloodied trying to cross picket lines.

Worker's tires were reported slashed in Evendale, Ohio. Thirteen persons were arrested yesterday in Chicago on charges of mob action or disorderly conduct.

The company said 40,000 production workers were on their jobs, 30,000 of them nonunion. The unions said 90 per cent of their 147,000 G.E. members, nearly all of them production employes, were out.

Borch told stockholders in Minneapolis today that the union's wage demands would force layoffs due to foreign competition. He said the company's offer, rejected in secret ballot votes in local union units, was already inflationary. "To push it up another substantial notch, as the union officials are de-

Pt. Reyes Ranch Due On Block

Another ranch within the boundary of Point Reyes National Seashore has been put on the market for subdivision by an owner fed up with the federal govenrment's failure to complete purchase of the park.

"Our taxes have taken an Apollo 11 flight without a recovery site selected," she said in a letter yesterday to the Independent-Journal in which she complained of the government's "breach of faith and a considerable loss of time and money to all the landowners in this area."

Citing "Years of anxiety caused by procrastination by the U.S. Budget Bureau," she said that she had listed the entire ranch for sale.

She also sent a copy of a letter to John Rutter, regional director in San Francisco of the National Park Service, in which she said the sale would be advertised nationally.

"We have been in the ranch and dairy business almost 50 years and have managed to meet the rising cost by working and doing more to offset the rising costs of production," she wrote Rutter. But she added she no longer could meet rising taxes that shot up after the park boundary was set in 1962.

Legislation is pending in Congress to raise the appropriation for the park purchase from the present ceiling of $19.5 million to $57 million.

Already being carved up for subdivision is the 2,500 acre Lake Ranch. Another 2,500 acres within the park boundary on the Pierce Ranch may go on the market soon, its owner has said.

Cosmonauts Peer Up At Marin Trees

Soviet Spacemen Visit Muir Woods, Tiburon

By DAVID DIETZ

Two talkative Russian cosmonauts dressed like businessmen made Marin County the second stop of a whirlwind Bay Area tour today.

The pair, 45-year-old Konstantin Feokistov, and Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoy, walked the sun-dappled trails of Muir Woods National Monument and later had luncheon at the Windjammer Restaurant in Tiburon.

The cosmonauts, who are touring the United States, arrived at Muir Woods at about 10:30 a.m. accompanied by State Department officials and U.S. astronaut Gordon Cooper. They were greeted by Leonard A. Frank, superintendent of the park, and Arthur Volz, park ranger, who gave them monument pamphlet souvenirs.

While walking the trials, the cosmonauts — Feokistov, a thin, gray-haired man with Nero-haircut, and Beregovoy, a tall, broad-shouldered, dark haired man — asked repeated questions through interpreters about the age of the trees, height and dimensions of the soaring redwoods.

Feokistov persisted about the age of one giant tree, but Volz said that it was impossible to give the true age of the tree without taking a core sample. He estimated, however, that the tree was about 800 years old.

"Why can't we see the oldest tree," asked Beregovoy in Russian. Beregovoy was also told that core samples would have to be taken to find the oldest tree.

At one point the cosmonauts squirmed into the burned-out base of a redwood tree with Cooper and joked for photographers.

Later, passing a quiet grove, Beregovoy said, "It must be nice to rest here on a warm day."

For the third grade class of Mrs. Gladys Bowe at Strawberry School, the cosmonauts' visit proved an unexpected surprise.

"We had planned a little jaunt through the woods, but then we found out the cosmonauts are coming."

The Russians signed autographs and visited the park's snack bar before leaving for Tiburon in a limousine under California Highway Patrol escort.

Last night, the cosmonauts climaxed their visit in San Francisco with a trip to the Grand National Rodeo, Horse Show and Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace.

The Cow Palace trip highlighted an afternoon for the Russians spent in San Francisco doing just about what every other tourist does in the Bay City.

Mill Valley Grumbles Over North Ridge Road Criticism

By ANNE BARDWELL

Charged with plotting to turn part of Corte Madera into a "disaster area" to save its own streets from a traffic overload, the Mill Valley Planning Commission last night postponed action on its proposed North Ridge master street plan for four months.

But, in so doing, the commission challenged its critics to develop feasible engineering alternatives to the plan controlling street access to the undeveloped ridge which divides the cities of Larkspur, Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

The audience of more than 70 Corte Madera city officials, residents and Mill Valley conservationists was almost unanimous in its opposition to the road plan prepared last year by Bala and Strandgaard, city engineering consultants.

Despite the fact that Mill Valley cannot independently effect the road plan since most of the ridge lies in Larkspur, Corte Madera and the county, the commission had declared in February that it would adopt the proposal as its "best thinking" unless there is evidence that other agencies are developing feasible engineering alternatives.

"All everyone says is 'no'," said City Engineer Stanley M. Bala. "As long as this land is in private ownership, it must have a road system. And now we have the chance to develop a good road system before the development pressures really hit us," Bala said.

The controversial plans calls for two major access roads in the North Ridge, one from Corte Madera Avenue in Corte Madera along the ridge to the old railroad grade on Mount Tamalpais and the second from the North Ridge road down Warner Ridge to the upper reaches of Elinor and Upland avenues in Mill Valley.

Sarah Drive, Glen Drive east and west, Tartan Road, Elinor Avenue, Cushing Drive, Upland Avenue, Blithedale Trail and the railroad grade, all in Mill Valley, would be extended to connect the two roads to downtown Mill Valley.

But the major traffic flow, particularly commuters, from the 450 acres opened up by the plan would use the North Ridge road to Corte Madera Avenue-Camino Alto and ultimately to Highway 101, Bala explained.

The North Ridge road would follow the crest Bala said and it would require less cut and fill work than any other route.

Strongest objections came from residents of Corte Madera Avenue who said the plan would require widening and straightening of their street to accommodate the additional traffic from the possible 875 homes in the area.

"Corte Madera Avenue would become a complete disaster area," complained William W. Wood, president of the Corte Madera Avenue Homeowners Association. He noted trees, front yards, back yards and garages would have to be "mowed down" for the wider street.

Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald Usher told Bala: "Sure you think it's a good plan, because it takes all the heat off your residential streets and routes it up onto our residential streets.

"Don't disrupt our streets just

A Hazy Two Months For Lost Marinite

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — The director of a camping ground who turned over Joan Wilkinson, of Tiburon, missing daughter of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, to police reported today that she told him she was robbed of her clothing and money while wandering on France's Mediterranean coast.

But Mrs. Wilkinson was unable to explain how she left her family two months ago, or where she had traveled while being hunted by European police.

Lucien Canal told a reporter: "According to her, her money and clothing were stolen at Saintes Maries de la Mer. Afterwards, she said she worked in vineyards on the Riviera. How long had she been in Marseille? She couldn't answer."

Mrs. Wilkinson remains under treatment at a hospital for undernourishment and general physical weakness. There was no official statement from her physician about her health.

Mrs. Leonie Rolling said Mrs. Wilkinson had come to her door in the camp ground outside Marseille last Thursday, asking for water.

"She was only skin and bones," Mrs. Rolling said. " 'Aren't you hungry,' I asked."

She said Mrs. Wilkinson replied: "Thank you, but I don't accept charity."

In order to make sure she would take some nourishment, according to Mrs. Rolling, Mrs. Wilkinson was offered some tuna fish and apples in exchange for a promise that she would do a bit of work.

The job was brushing down a number of tents. It was at this point, Mrs. Rolling said, that the boxer's daughter explained that she had come to Europe with her husband but did not know how she had lost him.

Canal said he was troubled by Mrs. Wilkinson's "fixed and worried look," and decided to call the American consulate in Marseille. With the assistance of the consular officer and local authorities she was taken to a hospital.

Carter Wilkinson, who came to Marseille to attend to his wife, was under treatment by a physician himself for a stomach ailment and declined to discuss the case with newsmen.

Nixon Says Appropriation Bills Delay Hurts Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon told Congressional leaders today he may find it impossible to submit a new federal budget next January as required by law, unless action on appropriation bills is speeded up.

Meeting with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress, Nixon said work on the forthcoming budget is being hampered because only two out of 15 annual appropriation bills have been passed to date.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, after meeting with Nixon, raised still another possibility—payless paydays for all federal employees after Oct. 31 should the House and Senate become deadlocked over handling of authorization and appropriation measures.

Since the 1970 fiscal year began last July 1, the federal government has been paying its bills on the basis of month-to-month authorizations approved by Congress. The current authorization expires on Friday and Ford suggested there was a possibility Congress would not be able to get together on a similar measure to cover November.

Nixon in his letter noted that the fiscal 1971 budget already is being prepared.

"Unless the congressional pace is sharply accelerated," he wrote, "it is clear that many appropriation bills will not pass in time for federal agencies to assemble the voluminous details necessary to meet the budget deadlines."

Declaring that action by Congress on appropriation measures "must be substantially completed within the next few weeks," the President said:

"If this is not done, it may be impossible for me to transmit the 1971 budget in January."

Pepper Urges $1 Billion Fund For Crime 'Crisis'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crime in America "has reached crisis proportions" and the federal government should establish a $1 billion fund to fight it, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., said today.

The congressman, chairman of the House Select Committee on Crime which is conducting a nationwide series of hearings on dangerous drug abuses, told the Commonwealth Club, "perhaps not since frontier days have Americans known such fear."

One of the most critical phases of the crime picture is drug abuse, he said, and "the public is just waking up to what is going on.

"The evidence before our committee documents that 50 per cent of the dangerous drugs that are produced in the United States fall into the illegal market and are used for non-medicinal purposes, primarily by young people," he added.

Pepper's committee ended the San Francisco phase of its investigations yesterday after hearing a witness declare the federal government goes only half way in efforts to solve the drug abuse problem.

Roger C. Smith, a criminologist with the local Haight-Ashbury Clinic, testified that the government will spend money on research but provides practically nothing once the problem is defined.

San Francisco Police Chief Thomas Cahill told the committee that thousands of American youngsters are trapped in a desperate predicament caused "by the availability of narcotics,

Congress Relents On Marin Research Fund

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Severe budget cuts for the Marine Minerals Technology Center in Tiburon have been partially restored by the House of Representatives in an appropriations bill awaiting the signature of President Richard M. Nixon.

The administration had asked $878,000 for the center, a sharp drop from the $1,478,000 it got last fiscal year, but the House Appropriations Interior Subcommittee then slashed the figure to $600,000.

Belated pressure from the California congressional delegation saw the amount hiked back up to $878,000 by the Senate and agreed to by the House, which approved the Interior Department's $1,380,375,300 budget for 1969-70.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, who was among those who fought successfully to restore the $278,000 cut by the House, reported that the President has until tomorrow to sign the bill, or it will become law anyway.

A clearly pleased Arthur P. Nelson, research director at the center, told the Independent-Journal that the restored money meant "we can increase the scope of each one of our projects considerably."

He conceded that research generally will be restricted to the center now that there was too little money to operate the center's ships, but said future budgets probably will allow for more ocean research.

He said he had a staff of 94 persons last year, but was down to 36 now because of the budgetary fight in Congress. The restored money will allow him to add 10 employees, but he said most of the previous staff had joined private industry and no longer was available.

"We were hurt, there's no question about it," Nelson said about the budget fight.

Marinites Get Medal For Son

Pfc. Thomas A. Cincotta of San Rafael, killed in action in Vietnam June 28, was posthumously awarded the Silver Star yesterday in ceremonies at the Marines Memorial Club, San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Serge Cincotta, 531 Fairhill Drive, accepted the medal for their son. Making the presentation was Maj. Gen. Carl C. Owens, commanding general of the Third Marine Air Craft Wing at El Toro Marine Corps Base.

Cincotta, 18, a 1968 graduate of Marin Catholic High School, was honored for "conspicuous gallantry" during Operation Utah Mesa when he deliberately drew enemy grenades to warn his companions of a concealed Viet Cong bunker.

President's Wife, Daughter Are Ailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, stricken last night by a 24-hour virus, has been advised by her doctor to cancel appearances for the next two days, including campaign visits with the President to Virginia and New Jersey, the White House announced today.

Her daughter, Julie Eisenhower, was stricken with similar symptoms at her apartment in Northampton, Mass., it was announced.

Supervisors May Force Firings Of Both Dr. Miller, Dr. Wilson

The firing of both Dr. Donald P. Wilson, director of the mental health center, and Dr. Clyde G. Miller, director of community mental health services, loomed as a possibility today, as the Marin County Board of Supervisors met behind closed doors again.

On Sept. 30, the supervisors suspended Miller for 30 days with pay, and asked Marin General Hospitals board of directors to suspend Wilson. The hospital board refused.

However, the Independent-Journal learned today that the supervisors are counting on the wording of a contract with the hospital district, which gives supervisors the authority to "jointly appoint" the clinical director (Wilson). This joint appointment is renewable each September. The supervisors have refused to join in the appointment this year, and thus hope to exercise a veto power over the hospital board.

The supervisors have scheduled another closed meeting with the hospital board tomorrow for a decision on what to do with Wilson, Miller or both.

Small Viet Fights, Heavy Bomb Raids

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces killed nearly 100 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in fighting across South Vietnam late yesterday and early today, and U.S. B52s pounded enemy base camps with 500 tons of bombs, along the Cambodian border north of Saigon, and also south of Da Nang, the U.S. Command reported.

Casualty reports listed two Americans wounded. Although no American dead were announced, a U.S. spokesman said there probably were some killed in small actions not included in the communiques.

U.S. forces killed 18 enemy in two small fights in provinces along the border, 12 of them in a clash a few miles from where the B52 raids hit.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 32 enemy killed in two Mekong Delta battles 127 miles southwest and 113 miles west of Saigon. It said government casualties were "very light."

In the northern provinces, elements of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division battled a company-size unit Monday 21 miles west of Hue. Vietnamese headquarters said 23 enemy soldiers were killed at a cost of two wounded.

The South Vietnamese government announced that it will release 24 prisoners of war tomorrow but said this was not in response to the Viet Cong's announcement that it would free three U.S. soldiers.

A government spokesman said all the prisoners are former Viet Cong who are being released for "humanitarian reasons" and because of their good behavior while in prison camps.

For the second time in a week, Hanoi charged today that the United States had bombed North Vietnam in violation of the U.S. ban on such attacks, radio monitors in Tokyo reported.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said in a broadcast, that U.S. planes and artillery units shelled Quang Binh Province, north of the demilitarized zone, on Oct. 16, 18 and 21, causing "losses of life and property to the local population."

Link To Hanoi Sees POW Letter Exchange

CHICAGO (AP) — David T. Dellinger says Hanoi plans to open up a regular exchange of mail between American prisoners of war and their families.

Dellinger, head of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, also declared yesterday the North Vietnamese would release the names of their prisoners, although not necessarily right away.

He said the U.S. peace movement was the only channel Hanoi would use in providing such a list.

Dellinger made these statements in disclosing parts of a plan his attorney said was arranged in meetings with the North Vietnamese in Paris over the weekend. The disclosure came at a news conference between sessions of a U.S. District Court trial where Dellinger and seven other men are being tried on charges of conspiracy to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Defense attorney William M. Kunstler visited Paris at the request of Dellinger and another defendant, Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, Dellinger said. He said he and Davis had been invited to make the trip but were not granted permission to leave the jurisdiction of the court.

Dellinger said the North Vietnamese would release the names of prisoners of war at some future date but that someone may have to go to Paris again before this could be brought about. He said he assumed the names of all flyers shot down would be included.

In Washington, State Department officials cautioned against expectations that North Vietnam is about to release a list of American prisoners it is holding.

The officials added that it is not clear that Kunstler had learned any more than wives of captive Americans who also talked to North Vietnamese representatives in Paris.

Davis told the news conference that North Vietnam also intends to lrease "more detailed information" on conditions in prisoner- of-war camps.

Substantial information on U.S. prisoners probably would be available in Washington Nov. 15, one of the days in the next scheduled Vietnam Moratorium, Dellinger predicted.

SIFTING QUAKE RUBBLE—Yugoslav soldiers form a human chain to remove bricks in searching for victims of yesterday's devastating quake that practically levelled Banja Luka. (AP Wirephoto)

Tito Visits City Gutted By Quakes

BANJA LUKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito came here for a look at this quake-devastated city today as rescue workers sifted through rubble in search of more victims.

The quakes Sunday and yesterday killed at least 20 persons, injured hundreds, damaged or destroyed almost every building in the city and sent thousands fleeing in panic.

As Tito toured the city's streets, he saw thousands of homeless residents huddled beneath tents or around campfires in parks and empty lots.

Those who did not flee this industrial city of 65,000 stayed in the open, fearing more destructive earth shocks. Officials said a preliminary survey showed only a few of the city's 10,000 apartments were safe to live in.

Engineers made the rounds of standing buildings. They used paint of different colors to mark each structure—yellow for those to be demolished immediately, red for ruins which should not be approached and green for those which eventually may be repaired.

Light tremors shook the city again today, but no further damage was reported.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav government said it would ask the federal parliament to allocate $800,000 to help the stricken area get back on its feet. The Yugoslav Red Cross announced that the United States had contributed $24,000 to aid disaster victims.

Banja Luka's downtown area suffered the heaviest damage yesterday. It looked like a giant bomb had exploded, bringing down department stores, government building and the town hall.

Roads were jammed with traffic as help poured in from all over Yugoslavia.

Brandt Wants Closer Ties With Germany

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt today anchored his new government's foreign policy to improving relations with West Germany's Communist neighbors while seeking a more independent voice within the Western alliance.

He told the Bundestag in a policy statement that West German ties and common interests with the United States "need neither additional assurances nor repeated declarations."

"They are strong enough to allow for a more independent German policy within a more active partnership," he declared.

Brandt also expressed hope "that the war in Vietnam may at long last be ended by way of a political solution that can be accepted by all involved."

He also reaffirmed West Germany's "readiness to take part in the reconstruction of both parts of the devastated country" when the war ends.

Brandt said his government would again offer East Germany negotiations at government level "without discrimination on either side, which could lead to contractually agreed cooperation."

Brandt also emphasized "our fundamental readiness to have diplomatic relations and to increase existing trade relations with all states in the world that share our desire for peaceful cooperation."

In pledging continued loyalty to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Brandt said the alliance "has proven its value in the 20 years of its existence and will guarantee our security also in the future."

"Its firm solidarity is the prerequisite of joint efforts to reach a relaxation of tensions in Europe."

Brandt also announced "a critical stock-taking" of West Germany's armed forces to make it better able to carry out its role in the modern world. The results will be presented in a defense white paper which will be submitted to parliament next year.

Wreck Claims Ninth Person

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A ninth person has died from injuries suffered when a parked car was hit by another auto allegedly involved in a drag race Sunday.

Stephen Coleman, 25, whose wife, two children and two foster children died in the wreck, died yesterday from burns received when the parked car caught fire.

Police said witnesses reported that a car driven by Dalton Wallace, 26, of Indianapolis, which hit the Coleman auto, appeared to be drag racing with another car which sped from the scene after the fatal accident.

Natural Gas Does Well In Autos

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state reports encouraging results in the early stages of its experiment that uses natural gas instead of gasoline to power 10 cars in an antismog effort.

Robert E. Nance, public information officer for the State Highways Division, said yesterday that "We've been getting very encouraging readings... enough so there's consideration being given to increasing the number involved in this fleet."

The cars are being used by state engineers to check construction projects in the Los Angeles area. They look like a gasoline-powered car, but their power source is natural gas.

Glycerin is used in lipsticks to make them moist.

Beirut Says New Attacks By Arabs

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese government reported new attacks by Arab guerrillas on Lebanese villages and army posts during the night. The attacks dimmed hopes for negotiations to settle the week-long crisis.

The attackers used rockets and heavy mortars in their strikes on the town of Rachaya and the village of Mashta Hassan. An army post at Aiha also was raided, the government said.

SOLDIER KILLED

One Lebanese soldier was reported killed and four wounded. Three guerrillas died, three were wounded and four were taken prisoner, the government said. It also reported that in the rocket attack on Rachaya, 30 miles southeast of Beirut, a woman was killed when her house received a direct hit.

Intermittent fighting continued this morning at the Aiha army post, five miles from the Syrian border.

Guerrillas occupying the village of Yanta brought in reinforcements Monday night to consolidate their hold, the government said. Yanta was overrun Friday night.

32 LOCATIONS

The presence of guerrillas at Rachaya and Mashta Hassan brings to 32 the number of localities where they have been reported. Since the present crisis began, the guerrillas have occupied four villages in eastern and southern Lebanon.

Earlier in the night, bazookas hit an American oil tank, and shooting and bombs erupted in Beirut as Lebanese officials prepared for peace talks with the leaders of the guerrillas.

Huge flames hit the night sky in the oil port of Sidon after two bazookas, apparently fired by Arab guerrillas, blasted big holes in a 100-000-barrel oil tank.

Blames Role

Political observers had speculated on this possibility, but speaking to labor leaders last night the governor himself made the assessment publicly for the first time.

Introducing the Pepublican governor, Raymond Corbett, president of the state AFL-CIO, said he knew labor "had a friend in Nelson Rockefeller when he did not put the troops on the streets of New York" during the garbage collector's walkout.

Said Rockefeller, "I think that incident-at least one of the factors-cost me the nomination of the Republican Party."

"If I had it to do over again, I'd do it exactly the same way," he added.

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Laotian government forces lost another locality in central Laos Sunday night, official military sources reported today.

MIAMI (AP) — Fidel Castro says Christmas in Cuba this year is officially postponed until next July because the sugar crop has first call on the national energies.

Castro gave his countrymen the bad news in a broadcast speech in Havana last night.

Sugar is Cuba's major source of foreign exchange to pay for imports, and Castro has vowed that the new harvest will reach the 10 million-ton mark, more than double the 1969 yield.

Another Fiery Trustee Session

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

A communications gap splintering the Sausalito School District widened perceptibly last night as the board and a citizens group engaged in frequently repetive and often abrasive exchanges on interdistrict transfers, feee breakfasts and the conduct of the board president.

Nobody's mind appeared to be changed but the board approved two transfers into Sausalito from San Francisco, set a meeting Thursday to screen candidates for a new breakfast coordinator and backed president Nathaniel Johnson in his defense of his handling of board meetings.

The lengthiest exchange — popping up throughout the evening — started when Supt. Phillip W. Schneider recommended the district accept two children from San Francisco. Schneider recommended such transfers be approved on an individual basis "up to 25" pupils per classroom.

Barbara Nelson, chairman of Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, and other CEIE members seized on Schneider's statement as evidence that he was aiming towards "importing" large numbers of San Francisco youngsters into Sausalito to balance the number of children whose parents have transferred them out of the district.

Mrs. Nelson read a statement saying: "The children presently leaving the Sausalito School District every morning to attend other schools should not be replaced by a large flow of children coming from San Francisco or any other area." The statement urged the board to concern itself with bringing Sausalito youngsters back into the district.

Although it was not stated publicly last night, some Sausalito parents fear the importance of ghetto youngsters from San Francisco will turn the Sausalito district into a completely nonwhite district.

School officials last night said they did not know the ethnic background of the two transfers granted.

Board members, particularly David E. Freedheim, insisted — and Schneider agreed — that each transfer request should be considered individually and Schneider was not recommending recruiting of out-of-town students just to replace those who have left the district.

Members of the audience also expressed fears that bringing in more students from outside the district would cost Sausalito taxpayers more money, but Schneider said it would not.

The transfer debate also sparked an exchange between Johnson and several members of the audience when he said there would be no more "games played" at board meetings. "I'm not going to have any more of the shenanigans that have gone on the last three months," Johnson said.

This prompted a man in the audience to say in a loud voice, "Maybe you better start listening to the people, Mr. Johnson." Johnson replied, "You better hold your seat . . . or leave."

Criticism of Johnson's handling of meetings came up again later — as did repeatedly the transfer questions — when Mrs. Nelson attacked him for accusing the audience of "playing games" and "putting visitors in the role of the child."

The argument sputtered out when Freedheim defended the board's patience and understanding with its frequently critical audience. Mrs. Nelson said she was sorry the debate had become emotional.

Another repetitive exchange occurred during discussion of the breakfast program, canceled last week when Nancy Borgstrom, the coordinator quit, presumably under pressure brought by black youngsters who want the Black Panthers to take the program back.

In this debate, Delta Christ, research chairman of CEIE, and others challenged the board on opening the screening committee for a new coordinator to students but keeping it closed to district taxpayers. The board ended up asking Mrs. Christ to serve on the committee and giving trustee Martha Freebairn-Smith discretion in adding others.

Mrs. Freebairn-Smith said she hopes the breakfasts will be resumed early next week.

Walton Wants Answers From His Critics

Sidney F. Walton Jr., the fiery and embattled black principal of Sausalito's Martin Luther King School, last night declared he might run against Dr. Max Rafferty for state superintendent of public instruction next year.

Walton, under attack for his militant background ever since he was hired by the Sausalito district last summer, raised the possibility in a sharply worded letter to Rafferty and other officials demanding that the reason for and the scope of an alleged secret investigation of him be revealed.

In the letter, which demanded answers to 20 questions about the probe, Walton asked, "Is the fact that I stated that I may run against Dr. Max Rafferty for state superintendent of public instruction one of the primary motives for this investigation?"

The letter was addressed to Rafferty, Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, Marin County Schools superintendent, Richard Watson of the California Teachers Association and Alfred W. Bowman, foreman of the Marin County Grand Jury.

Both Rafferty and Hollis are reportedly conducting investigations of Walton's past to determine whether charges made against him at Merritt College warrant revocation of his credentials. The grand jury also is known to be making some kind of investigation of the Sausalito district but it has not revealed what it is probing. Walton declined to elaborate on the CTA's involvement in any probe.

Copies of the letter went to Sausalito school officials, Assemblymen Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, and John J. Miller, D-Alameda, and Leon D. Ralph, D-Los Angeles, Walton's attorney and the California and National Associations for African American Education.

In the letter, read to the school board last night by board president Nathaniel Johnson, Walton said: "It has come to my attention that an investigation is being conducted and that I have been the subject of a great deal of the inquiry. . . "

He demanded the nature, scope, direction and results of any investigations, the identities and ethnic backgrounds of investigators and anyone who has been questioned.

Rafferty told the Independent-Journal last month that Walton's case was not expected before the state credentials committee "for a couple of months." Hollis, who has denied he is investigating Walton other than looking at his credentials, was asked two weeks ago to stay off the Martin Luther King campus where he and a top aide had been "observing" since the beginning of school.

Tiburon Says Sundeck Must Go On House In A Stormy Session

By CHARLES YOAKUM

In a two-hour battle in which decorum was frequently lost amid rising tempers and shouted accusations, the Tiburon City Council last night "reluctantly" ruled that a nonconforming sundeck on a $60,000 house must go.

The council denied — by deadlock vote of 2 to 2 — an appeal from Lawrence Stotter to allow the sundeck to remain at his 2244 Vistazo East residence.

Councilmen Anne L. Ellinwood and Thomas E. Drohan voted to uphold the Tiburon Board of Adjustment's antisundeck ruling while William R. Bremer and Mayor Branwell D. Fanning supported Stotter's appeal. Councilman Denis T. Rice abstained.

While denying Stotter's appeal, the council officially named the home's first owner and builder, Alfred P. Birich of Tiburon as the real villian and unofficially blamed the city in general and building inspector Philemon V. Scott for adding to the problem.

The council then asked City Atty. Robert T. Conn to study what legal action might be taken against Birich, who sold the home to Stotter allegedly knowing that the home's sundeck was illegal.

Nevers and several other Tiburon residents, urged the council to reject Stotter's appeal not so much because of the sundeck in question but on the basis that if it were allowed to remain, it would open the door up for a "flood of other nonconforming variance requests."

Stotter told the council that the sundeck was built as a condition of sale when he purchased the home from Birich, and Birich never told him it was illegal.

"Weren't you told by the city before you moved in that there was something wrong with the house," countered Nevers hotly.

Stotter admitted that his wife had received a call from "someone in the city" saying that "something was wrong" but that Councilman Denis T. Rice had called and told her "not to worry."

Rice, who admitted making the call, later abstained in the voting of the appeal issue because of it.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood then turned the attack from Stotter to Scott. She read an excerpt from a letter she wrote March 3, 1968, to the city's planning commission in which she said there were "several deficencies" in the home then under construction and said that ". . . without prior remedy of these deficencies . . . both the neighboring property owner and the city will rue the day."

Rice admitted that the city had "dropped the ball" in the matter and said he felt that Stotter had not "stepped on the public's toes."

Nevers declared, "There's two violations right there." Nevers then offered a compromise, saying that if Stotter would pay for a survey of the land to determine exact boundaries of the properties involved, he would remove his opposition to the sundeck. He had charged that the sundeck intruded onto his property.

Stotter, however, declined, saying that he knew exactly where the property lines were.

At this Drohan moved to deny the appeal, but the motion was defeated 3-2 with Fanning, Bremer and Rice in the majority.

"The whole thing is fixed," then roared Nevers when it appeared that the council intended to grant Stotter's appeal.

Bremer then moved to grant the appeal, but this ended in the deadlock.

Miss Ellinwood then asked City Atty. Robert I. Conn about a little-known law which said that an abstention was counted as a "yes" vote when a deadlock occurred in disputes where a decision must be reached on an appeal.

Conn, after a brief search, then ruled that the law did not apply in this case, and Stotter's appeal died.

Crowded Ships Bring Leathernecks Home

SAN DIEGO (AP) — More than 3,000 U.S. Marines have sailed home from Vietnam in two crowded ships, the largest group to return at one time since the Korean War.

"Thanks, Dick. It's good to be back" — a salute to President Richard M. Nixon — read a sign painted on a sea bag hanging from the amphibious assault ship Iwo Jima when it moored yesterday at the naval station pier.

Another group of Marines hung a peace symbol painted on a sheet over the side of the assault ship Bexar and gave the peace sign as it docked.

Many of the 3,164 Marines aboard the Iwo Jima and the Bexar were coming home as a result of the President's orders to reduce the number of troops in Vietnam.

Most belonged to the 3rd Marine Regiment and the rest were returning from 13-month tours of duty with other units.

The 7,000-mile, 18-day voyage involved a scramble for living space, said Capt. Martin M. Casey of Coronado, skipper of the Iwo Jima.

"When you crowd that many young, active American males into a steel chateau like this, you worry that the crush will create problems," said Casey. "Especially since we had chilly weather, and the men had to stay below decks a good deal of the time.

"There was no need to worry, though. The men were well-behaved, well-disciplined."

Conditions were even worse on the Bexar, said its skipper, Capt. James H. Barry of La Jolla.

"The Marines practically had to fight for a spot to sit down," Barry said.

"I heard one Marine say that a friend of his had offered to stay another six months in Vietnam if he didn't have to go home by ship."

Aga Khan, His Socialite Bride Take Moslem Vows

PARIS (AP) — The Aga Khan IV, the handsome and wealthy young spiritual leader of the world's Ismaili Moslems, was married today to a British society divorcee in an Oriental ceremony that included a shower of pearls at their feet and garlands of flowers around the neck.

It was the second ceremony for 32-year-old Prince Karim and Lady Sarah Crichton-Stuart, 29. Last week they went through the civil ceremony required by French law.

The bride, born in India of English parents, wore a white and silver sari of Benares silk. The bridegroom, aa direct descendant of the prophet Mohammed, by way of the late Aly Khan and an English mother, wore a white sharkskin sherwani with knee-length coat, an Iranian formal outfit, and a tall astrakhan hat.

Members of the couple's families, a handful of special guests and representatives of the national religious communities of the Ismaili sect were present.

The bridal couple sat on a sofa at one end of the long room. The families and special guests were on other sofas at either side, and the religious representatives sat on the floor facing the wedding party.

The room was a mass of vivid colors, with roses behind the newlyweds and most of the women guests in saris of different hues. The Begum Mohammed Khan, widow of the Aga Khan III, was in a green sari. Among the family was the groom's half sister, Princess Yasmin Aly Khan, the daughter of movie actress Rita Hayworth.

The 40-minute ceremony included recitation of verses from the Koran, a sermon by the rector, the signing of marriage contracts in French and Arabic and prayers. Then the Rani of Hunza, thle princess of a tiny principality in the Himalayas north of Kashmir, scattered pearls at the feet of the newlyweds.

At the reception which followed the bride and groom cut a four-tier cake decorated with the Aga Khan's family crest and bordered with red and green outlines of minaret arches.

His bride is a convert to the Moslem religion. She was born Sarah Crocker Poole and is known to her friends as Sally. At her conversion she took the name Salima.

because you don't want to disrupt yours," Usher said.

He also noted that both the Corte Madera Town Council and planning commission have opposed the plan.

Usher and others also said that Corte Madera Avenue in his town has been removed from the major street plan and designated as a rural road, despite the fact that it is the only through road between Mill Valley and the Ross Valley other than Highway 101.

Several Mill Valley residents, identifying themselves as conservationists, urged the commission to delay or discard the plan to prevent the ridge from being developed.

Douglas P. Ferguson of Mill Valley asked the planners to compare costs of developing the roads to that of buying land.

But Planning Commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine replied that state gas tax funds could be used to build the roads but not to buy the property."

Commissioners all agreed that they too would prefer to keep the North Ridge open but said that so long as the property remains in private ownership it will be developed and the city has a responsibility to make sure the development conserves the landscape as much as possible.

Others in the audience suggested bridging Courte Madera Avenue and routing traffic directly east to Highway 101 but Bala said the state Division of Highways has prohibited another entrance to the freeway between the Alto Wye and Corte Madera.

Still others argued that the only access to the North Ridge be through feeder streets from downtown Mill Valley. "Keep development helter skelter as roads can be cut up the hillsides," argued Dr. Sheldon Schwebel of Corte Madera. The audience applauded.

At the heart of the walkout is the wage issue. The company offered, but the union rejected, a 20-cents-an-hour increase for the first year of a three-year contract, with provision for wage reopeners in the subsequent years.

G.E. also offered up to 25 cents an hour for highly skilled workers. The average wage for the strikers had been $3.25 an hour.

The unions asked for a 90 cents an hour boost in a 30-month pact — 35 cents the first year, 30 cents the second and 25 cents in the final six months, with 50 cents an hour additional for special skills and a cost-of-living escalator clause. They also asked for protection against what they termed arbitrary dismissals and pay cuts.

Two Militants Get Life Terms

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two brothers, members of the black militant group US, were formally sentenced yesterday to life in prison for the slayings of two Black Panthers at UCLA last Jan. 17.

George Stiner, 23, and Larry Stiner, 22, each were convicted of conspiracy to commit murder and two counts of second degree murder.

Judge Malcolm Lucas postponed until Nov. 17 the case of a third defendant, Donald Hawkins, 20, also an US member, to see if he will be accepted in a detention program of the California Youth Authority.

The prosecution asserted the fatal shootings of John Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, were the result of a feud between the Panthers and US over control of a black studies program at UCLA.

Petaluma Drafts Street Needs List

A list of street projects totaling $80,000 to be funded by gas tax moneys was proposed last night to the Petaluma City Council.

The council said it would not act on any particular project until a street deficiency report had been submitted by City Eng. David A. Young and it is determined how much of the funds must be spent on repairs.

Hoping the city will have $80,000 remaining in funds for capital outlay projects, Young suggested a priority list headed by the improvement of the interdection of D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South by rounding the northeast and southwest corners. Estimated to cost $8,000, Young said the improvements would provide much needed expanded radius for large trucks.

Second on his list was the signalization of East Washington Street at Payran street at an estimated cost of $25,000. "This project you needed two years ago," he told the council.

Curb roundings for a truck route were proposed on Bridge Street at Petaluma Boulevard, East Washington Street at Hopper Street and D Street at Hopper Street. Young said the rounding would cost $3,000.

On East Washington Street west of Maria Drive, sidewalks, gutters and storm drains would be extended over a culvert for $30,000, Young said that perhaps the property owner would be interested in cooperation on the project.

Western Avenue Extension, now an alley near the river, would become a two-lane, 24 foot wide access road. Cost of that improvement from Petaluma Boulevard North to the Water Street parking lot was set at $8,500.

The engineer reminded the council that gas tax funds had already been committed to three large projects that are underway or scheduled to begin soon.

The projects include hhe Washington Street Bridge, traffic signals and street improvements at $263,500; South McDowell Boulevard improvements and signals at $70,500; and Magnolia Avenue improvements and signals at Petaluma Boulevard north, $99,000.

Span Crash Hurts Three Motorists

Two persons were hospitalized and a third treated for a broken nose yesterday after a three-car pile-up on the Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Azizollah Bashi, 31, of San Francisco, was listed in good condition at Marin General Hospital with a whiplash and bruises on the forehead and left knee. A passenger in his car, Meymanat Rezaian, 28, of 376 South Morningsun Avenue, Mill Valley, was reported in fair to good condition with multiple bruises and muscle spasms. Samuel Posner, 46, of 54 Billou Street, San Rafael, was a passenger in the third car in the accident and was treated for a broken nose.

The patrol said a car driven by Hugh Thomas McCann Jr., 43, of 29 Sunset Way, San Rafael, hit the rear of Bashi's car, pushing it into one driven by Richard Paul Bovaird, 46, of 200 Stasia Court, ovato.

The 5.35 p.m. accident was in the northbound lanes of the bridge.

Misdemeanor Charge Filed

Only a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Michael Edward Collins, 18, of Novato, who was arrested Sunday on suspicion of narcotics possession.

His case was continued until Monday for entry of plea.

Candidate Szabo Is A Civil Engineer

George B. Szabo of Tiburon, one of six candidates for the three seats on the Richardson Bay Sanitary District board, is a civil engineer, not a sewer engineer as reported yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Szabo, of 536 Comstock Drive, is a civil engineer with Tudor Engineering Co. in San Francisco and has 14 years of experience in structural and municipal engineering.

DRUGS

The committee heard more than 25 witnesses in a probe of what Pepper called "the dirty trail of drugs from legitimate manufacturers to black market operators and to sick kids."

Two more days of hearings will open at Columbia S.C., Nov. 4.

Smith told the congressmen that the drug pattern in the Haight-Ashbury hippie community has changed dramatically in less than three years.

It has progressed from social and ritual use of marijuana and psychedelics to "speed," barbiturates and now compulsive use of heroin, he said.

The need for cash for their habits leads to violence and other distress among drug users and most of them want to get out, he added.

Dr. Ellis Sox, San Francisco public health director, testified there is a growing need for 24-hour treatment centers for drug addicts and for laws allowing teen-agers to give consent for drug treatment without having to consult their parents.

Rev. Leon Preston Harris, pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church in the Haight-Ashbury, described a transformation in the hippie district.

"Good hippies have moved out and drug pushers and rapists have moved in," he said. "I used to keep the church open 24 hours, but now I don't even leave the door unlocked five or 10 minutes."

Trustees Banish Pupil In Lagunitas

A Lagunitas School student was "excluded" from the school last night by the district board.

The board held a closed session to hear charges against the unidentified student and then reconvened in open session and voted to "exclude a student," according to Supt. Marshall J. McCunniff.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the administrative staff, he said.

In other business the board heard a request from the Central Citizens Committee of San Geronimo Valley asking that a room in the old Lagunitas School be made available for use as a sheriff's substation, McCunniff said.

However, the board has already committed the building for a cultural center.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

PRESERVE — Sept. 2 p.m. Nov. 8 as the date to dedicate the Marietta Larsen Memorial Nature Preserve between Lagunitas and San Geronimo Valley schools. The preserve was named for a former school board member.

PLAYGROUND — Set Saturday at 9 a.m. as the final work day on construction of a playground for San Geronimo Valley School. All of the work on the playground has been donated, along with many of the materials.

PERSONNEL — Accepted the resignation of Betty Storz, a teacher of the educationally handicapped, due to health reasons.

WORKSHOP — Set a workshop for 7:30 p.m. next Monday to discuss district policies, budgeting and a survey of Lagunitas graduates.

Flood Plans Get Kentfield's Nod

Landscaping plans along the Corte Madera Creek flood control channel on the Adaline E. Kent School campus were approved last night by the Kentfield School District board.

Vernon Dean, landscaping engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, told the board the corps will maintain the landscaping for two years. It then will become Marin County's responsibility, reported Roy L. Smith, principal of Greenbrae School.

District psychologist Jack D. Williams told the board that tests show district pupils are working above grade level in almost every area, Smith reported.

The board also approved categorizing teacher aides as classified employees, making them eligible for fringe benefits.

Session On Sewage

The Bolinas Community Public District board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district offices to discuss a possible new sewage disposal system.

A Wider Merrydale Road Backed

Merrydale Road in Los Ranchitos should ultimately be 66 feet wide instead of the present 37 feet, the Marin County Planning Commissioners decided by unanimous vote yesterday.

On a motion by Eugene R. Trombley, commissioners set the future width line between North San Pedro Road and Willow Avenue, which is the present offramp for southbound traffic on Highway 101. The state Division of Highways plans to build a new offramp just south of Wiltshire Towers.

The widening will take about 29 feet from the west side of Merrydale Road.

"Why doesn't the county move in and condemn the strip for widening now rather than saying we're going to set a future width line?" asked Walter F. Freitas.

Planner Werner Von Gundsell explained that the widened street is not needed until a new offramp is built by the state, but the county has no way of knowing when the offramp will be built.

John H. Chambers of 127 Merrydale Road said he does not object to a wider road but feels owners should get compensation for damage to their properties. He said the widening will cut off some garages and some to within a few feet of some homes.

Mrs. Howard C. Lee of 163 Merrydale Road objected to widening on the west side alone. She said part of the widening should be on the east side.

James Robertson, county traffic engineer, said the state is taking 20 feet from the other side for highway widening.

Commissioners set the future right-of-way, assuring property owners that this does not imply any dedication of land by owners.

The action by the planning commission must go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for final approval.

Marin County Planning Commissioners also:

MARINVIEW — Approved one extra lot for the 53-lot Marinview Unit 1 in Tennessee Valley but postponed a decision until Nov. 10 on whether or not to require sidewalks instead of pedestrian lanes within the subdivision.

BOLINAS SUBDIVISION — Approved Sherman Smith's tentative map for Spanish Bit Subdivision of 15 lots on 20 acres at the corner of Mesa and Bolinas-Olema roads on condition that alternate lots will be allowed septic tanks to see how they work, with the rest to await a sewer system or another approval from the commission, and that an equestrian-pedestrian way to be provided at the edge of the property.

STRAWBERRY COVE — Granted Clifford Pedersen of Clipper Yacht Harbor a rezoning of his 20-acre parcel in Strawberry Cove from limited agricultural to planned multiple, with 72 units allowed along the southeast shore of the cove.

Belvedere Youth Faces Hearing

A preliminary hearing for Martin James Fleischman, 19, of Belvedere, was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Nov. 6. He is accused of possessing marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Another youth who was arrested with Fleischman on Oct. 8 pleaded guilty to having an open container of beer in the car. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. set sentencing for Joseph Whitfield Royer III, 19, also of Belvedere, for Dec. 5.

The pair was arrested by Tiburon sheriff's deputies at Town and County Shopping Center for a defective taillight on their car. Deputies said one of them threw a package containing what appeared to be hashish out of the car.

Man, Woman Deny Bad Check Charges

Planners Reject Feeder Flights At Smith Ranch

Smith Brothers Ranch Airport north of Santa Venetia lost its battle for commercial airline feeder flights in a 4-to-3 vote of the Marin County Planning Commission late yesterday.

After a two-hour debate, the four-man majority voted down Commissioner Eugene R. Trombley's motion that Golden West Airlines be allowed six flights per day by a 19-passenger turbo-prop plane between the airport and San Francisco International.

Commissioners Niels Schultz Jr. and Walter F. Freitas voted with Trombley. Opposing were Commissioners Margaret Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, Chairman Michael Praszker and Jack G. Nixon.

The same four-man majority then voted to approve the use permit granted by County Zoning Administrator Thomas Cordill on Sept. 16, except that orientation flights by owners of the 35 planes stationed there will be allowed.

The use permit authorized by Cordill allows a maximum of 35 planes, but no commercial use or flight training.

The decision was a victory for residents of Santa Venetia and Gallinas Village who came out in force to oppose any expansion or commercialization of the 102-acre private airfield.

Mrs. Azevedo said she was impressed with the services offered by Golden West and its general manager, Dunham H. Seaton, and would have approved the feeder service if the county had made an overall study of air service in Marin and found that ranch airport was the most suitable spot. Without such an overall study and determination, said Mrs. Azevedo, "I don't think we have any business approving any expansion."

Nixon agreed with Mrs. Azevedo that a decision should not be made on a "hit and miss approach." He announced hope that the Marin County Aviation Commission will come up with information on air service needs throughout the county.

Nixon acknowledged the need for feeder or charter flights from Smith Ranch on a one-year trial basis, and then moving the service to Gnoss Field, north of Novato, if it proves successful. Seaton said it would take almost a year to develop the feeder flight patronage, and moving to a new location would force him to develop patronage all over again.

Nixon then asked if charter flights out of Smith Ranch Airport would be feasible. "No, we don't want charter flights," replied Benjamin R. Ostlind, spokesman for the Smith Ranch Airport.

Dougherty and Praszker declared that any commercial use of the airport would be detrimental to the neighborhood.

William B. Loeber, representing Gallinas Village Improvement Association, and Herbert C. Belben, representing the Gallinas Village Community Services District, led the opposition to the feeder service. They and several other individual protestors said they fear that once a commercial airline is allowed to operate, there would be no limit to commercialization.

Among those supported the feeder service was Stanley Goldsmith, president of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

Ben A. Farlatti, president of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, sent a carefully worded letter, urging that the feeder service be given "sympathetic consideration," but with full consideration for the fact that Gnoss Field is the established center for general aviation.

Wording Of Ordinance On Control Fill Hit

A new ordinance to control filling and building in Marin Must be couched in sufficiently general terms to leave Marin County Planning Commission freedom of decision and must place more emphasis on what property owners can do than on what they cannot do, the commission decided yesterday.

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said he would change some of the wording and bring the ordinance back for another discussion on Nov. 10.

Normand H. Traverso, executive director of the Marin Property Owners Association, took issue with detailed description of the purpose of the ordinance.

The present draft of the ordinance lists water pollution, erosion, and destruction of wildlife and scenic beauty as hazards that can result from uncontrolled filling.

Instead of specifying each hazard, Traverso suggested a catch-all phrase like "deleterious effect on ecology." This, he argued, would give the planning commissioners the right to exercise some option on whether or not filling and construction would be harmful or helpful, instead of pinning them down to specifics.

Traverso also criticized the "negative attitude" of the ordinance, telling developers what they cannot do.

Zucker said he will try more positive wording, listing circumstances under which filling will be allowed rather than a series of don'ts.

Harold E. Gregg, president of the Marin Conservation League, asked that fill regulations adopted by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission be incorporated into Marin's ordinance.

The planning staff, however, argued that in some cases, local conditions may not fit the BCDC rules, and therefore local rules should be separate and apart.

Peter D. Whitney, representing the Scenic Roads Association, said tidal waterways should be pinned down by a statement of water elevation such as the mean high water mark so that property owners will know just what portion of their land would come under the new ordinance.

Waldo Giacomini, who owns tidelands along Tomales Bay, got assurance that repair of dikes he has built along Papermill Creek would be allowed under "exceptions" in the new ordinance, which allows emergency repairs. However, commissioners said the construction of new dikes to reclaim tidelands would come under control of the new ordinance.

Commissioners Niels Schultz Jr. and Walter F. Freitas criticized a sentence in the ordinance that says an applicant for waterways encroachment must provide information of sufficient detail "to allow a determination of the impact of the proposal on the ecology . . ."

"How do you determine impact on ecology?" asked Schultz. "Do you need a fish census or a clam census?"

"I don't think it's fair to require an applicant to go to the University of California and conjure up all that information," said Freitas. "Suppose the applicant is some poor illiterate Portuguese or something."

On a motion by Schultz, the commissioners continued the hearing on the ordinance until Nov. 10.

The ordinance would prohibit filling or construction on waterways and tidelands unless an application is submitted and approved.

If the application is for fill or construction on less than an acre, a fill committee would decide. Anthing larger would come before the commission.

Guilty Verdict In FBI Killings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A District of Columbia jury has found Billie Austin Bryant guilty on two counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths last January of two FBI agents.

Bryant, a 30-year-old Washington man, was accused of killing agents Anthony Palmisano and Edwin R. Woodriffe in a shootout at the apartment of Bryant's wife. The agents had gone there to question him about a Maryland bank robbery.

Bryant admitted shooting the agents, but said they fired first and he shot back in self-defense. U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell told the jury it would be asked to set Bryant's penalty—life imprisonment or death—on Thursday.

Warrant Is Issued On Cocaine Charge

A bench warrant with bail set at $500 was issued yesterday in Marin Superior Court for Karen Elaine Gowel, 23, of Mill Valley, when she failed to appear in court to face a charge of possessing cocaine.

Miss Gowel is accused of having the drug when booked into Marin County Jail May 5 on traffic warrants.

Money Order Forgery Admitted By Youth

Eugene Richard Rudnick, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of forging a money order April 17 believed to be stolen by a former postman.

SHOP CO-OP

OUR HANDY SIX-PACK AD TELLS WHY...

There's a Consumers Cooperative near you

Let's get acquainted

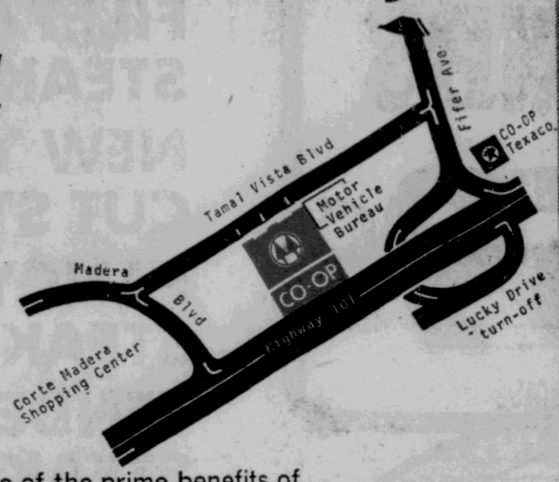
71 Tamal Vista Blvd.
Corte Madera



The following messages are a joint effort to present some of the prime benefits of CO-OP Shopping. This is the only ad in your newspaper today that combines a radio commercial, skywriting, a TV commercial, an indoor board, a direct mail piece, and a bus (family) taillight display. Each contributes something important to our total story.

Our ad is designed to tell busy people like you why you should do your shopping regularly at one of the Bay Area's eight big Consumers Cooperatives.

We aren't really launching a multi-media advertising campaign. It just looks like it. In essence, we've conveniently packaged six sales messages in a single ad so that you can participate in the telling of our story. Working together. That's the true CO-OP spirit. Many thanks for your cooperation in taking time to read our ad.

1 Our "Shop CO-OP" 30-Second Radio Commercial

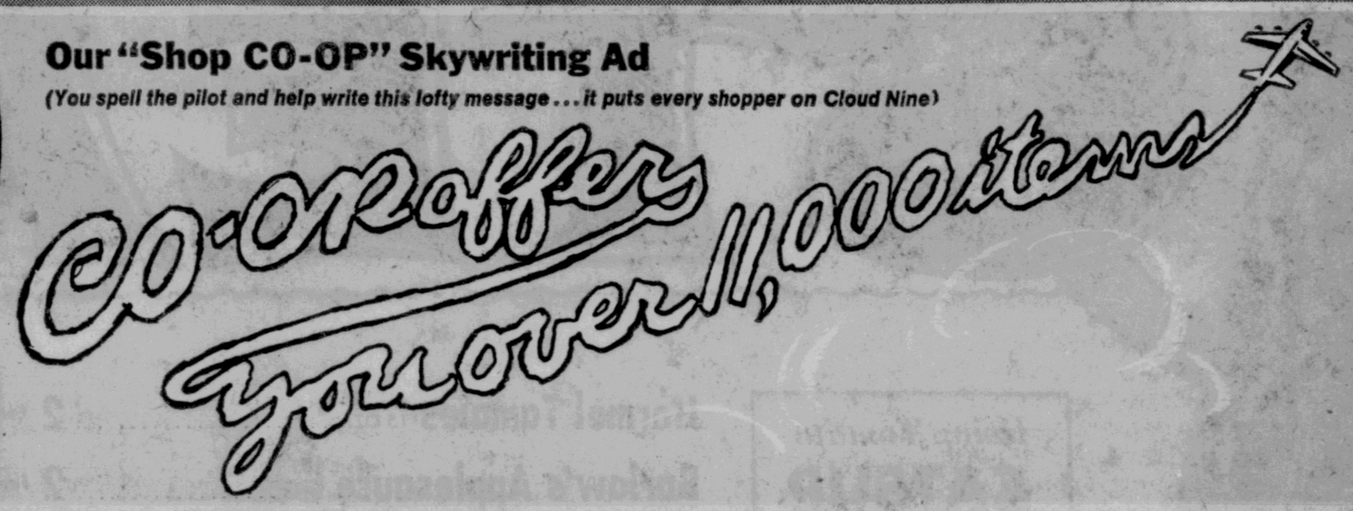
(Aired for newspaper readers only... you act as announcer and read the copy)

ANNOUNCER: (live)

Here is an important message for everyone who is concerned about inflation and the High Cost of Living. It makes a lot of sense to Shop CO-OP. The CO-OP is a business owned and operated by consumers to serve consumers. You don't have to be a member to Shop CO-OP. But membership could be to your advantage. Members control the policies through an elected Board of Directors which hires and oversees management. You can become a member-owner by purchasing a single share for just $5.00. Each member has one vote regardless of the number of shares held. Visit your nearest CO-OP soon. Do your shopping there. Check prices, quality, and service. If you like what you see... and you want to be a member, we'll provide full information. That's CO-OP ...C-O-Dash-O-P... the modern way to shop.

2 Our "Shop CO-OP" Skywriting Ad

(You spell the pilot and help write this lofty message... it puts every shopper on Cloud Nine)



3 Our "Shop CO-OP" Indoor Board

(For indoor types... cut out and post as a reminder on your kitchen bulletin board)

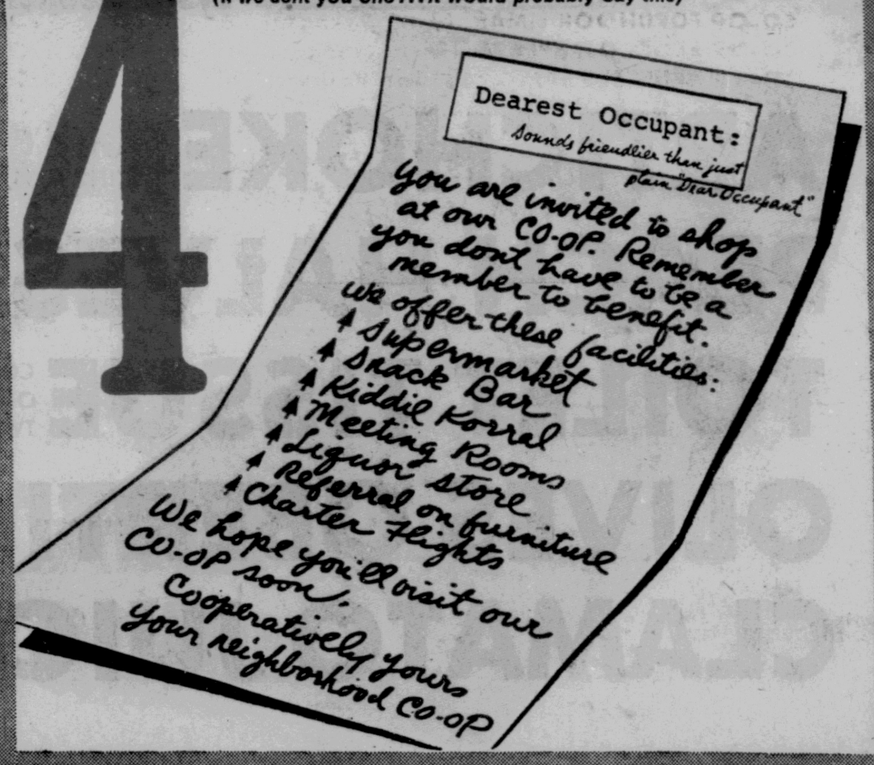
SHOP CO-OP

the more you shop

the more you benefit

4 Our "Shop CO-OP" Direct Mail Piece

(If we sent you one... it would probably say this)



5 Our "Shop CO-OP" Television Commercial ...is really just a storyboard

(Again, you play the role of the announcer)

ANNOUNCER:
"We understand that many people are confused about CO-OPS. Let's clear up the picture. At CO-OP, you can shop without being a member."

"And at CO-OP, advertised items are on sale for a full week ... Monday through Sunday."

"CO-OP has Unit Pricing. No more '3 for 49c.' All items are priced by single unit or pound."

Fairfax Refuses M-Day Edict Plea

By JOANNE GRANT

The Fairfax City Council, haunted by the ghost of a 1968 brouhaha, last night refused to declare Nov. 15 Moratorium Day in Fairfax for fear it would appear it was taking a stand on the war.

However, (some) members of the council voiced decidedly antiwar feelings in a dicussion that preceded the 4-1 vote against the declaration. Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson was on the losing end.

The request came from the Fairfax Vietnam War Moratorium Committee which is planning a march and rally on Nov. 15. A letter signed by 35 residents who are members of the committee was given to the council. Hugh O. Winn, a city planning commissioner and committee member, also made an oral presentation.

Winn emphasized repeatedly all the committee wanted was the declaration. "I don't want to ask you to take a stand pro or con on the war," he stressed.

In April 1968, then Mayor, George A. Pagni attempted to pass a resolution supporting the fighting men in Vietnam, an attempt which was one of the most controversial issues of the year in Fairfax.

Pagni won that round by using his capacity as mayor to proclaim the rest of the week to support the armed forces in Vietnam.

Last night, although Mayor Francis J. O'Connell said early he would abstain from a vote on the declaration, he later voted against it. "We were not elected to take care of national policy," he maintained, though admitting he felt strongly about the war "as a parent and as a mayor."

Mrs. Wilson said she had the same opinion at the time of the Pagni resolution came up but now felt differently.

She contended that national leaders would not listen if the moratorium effort was limited to young people and students. "If we expect the kids to do it for us it's never going to be done."

Noting it was really easier not to stand up and be counted, she reminded the council it regularly declared White Cane Day and "National Hot Dog Day."

Priscilla Gray, a member of the Fairfax School District board, told the council a "yes" vote would only be recognizing the day. "People will be demonstrating that day and I'll be among them," she said firmly.

O'Connell maintained the demonstration would be held whether the council declared the day or not.

Councilman Robert R. Souza wondered if the day could be a peace day, to encompass peace at home, instead of a moratorium day, but the committee didn't support that.

Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr reported the committee had been in touch with him about the march and cleaning up and said, "I'm sure they'll cooperate."

He worried, however, about the city ordinance which makes it illegal to be in a park after dark, since the committee is planning a candlelight ceremony.

"It's never seemed to me that we've paid much attention to that," said Mrs. Wilson.

"That's true," Orr replied, but wondered what he would do if someone who is against the demonstration asks that it be enforced.

"How do we have night basketball games in the pavilion?" queried O'Connell.

"You don't have to enforce an ordinance unless you want to, I guess," said City Atty. Wallace S. Myers.

Councilman Frank J. Egger commented the Fairfax council tries to stretch the tax dollar — "Then you look at Vietnam and see the graft and corruption, the waste of dollars and the waste of lives. In short, I'm fed up with this war."

However, he also said he didn't believe it was within the council's purview to take action.

Support for favorable council action on the moratorium day came from several members of the audience, but one was flatly against it.

Lee Nelder, a San Francisco police officer and brother of that city's deputy chief, said, "I think the city council would be out of order if they take a stand on this one way or the other."

He criticized sanctioning breaking the law and reminded the council it was supposed to represent the whole city.

Louis Vaccaro of 21 Olema Drive, — the only other person who spoke out in opposition, said he was against the entire plans, including the march, because he was worried about glass in the Little League Ballpark. However, nothing — is planned in the ballpark.

Souza made the motion to refuse and Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet seconded, his only word during the discussion.

GITA KARASIK

19-Year-Old Pianist To Perform

Gita Karasik, 19-year-old San Francisco pianist, will open San Domenico School's 1969-70 cultural series in a recital at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow in the assembly hall.

Miss Karasik, who first appeared with the San Francisco Symphony at the age of nine, has just won the Hertz Memorial Award and membership in Young Concert Artists, which earns her a New York recital debut during the 1969-70 season.

At the age of 13 she was the youngest winner of the Oakland Symphony and Young Musicians Foundation awards, each of which meant solo appearances with the orchestra.

A long list of other prizes and awards included the top prize of the Pacific Musical Society in San Francisco and the Kimber Award, and at the age of 14 she performed on the nationally televised Bell Telephone Hour.

Tomorrow the young pianist will play Bach's "Fantasy and Fugue in D Minor, Beethoven's F Minor Appassionata Sonata, Chopin's Nocturne in F Major and a group of contemporary selections.

Fire Chief Balked On Naming Third Captain

A request from Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton to promote a fireman to captain erupted into a heated discussion among Fairfax city councilmen last night.

The subject had been discussed in a closed session at the last council meeting, but some members of the council weren't ready to drop it.

"I feel this is a perfect example of what happens when a city council tries to administrate," said Councilman Frank J. Egger in disgust.

He pointed out that when examinations were given for the position in April, only one of three men passed. "We added four points to each applicant's score, which had all three passing," he said.

He said that Thornton's request had been turned down in budget discussions last summer and said he believed further council action "would not be beneficial."

"On what grounds would it not be beneficial?" demanded Thornton.

Egger reiterated that only one had passed.

Councilman Robert R. Souza said he believed it "would have been helpful" if the test had been given by the state personnel board.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson commented on the difficulties of getting a promotion in Fairfax. "You practically have to spill blood," she said angrily. "We're playing games with people's careers."

Egger pointed out the promotion would mean there would be three captains, a chief and three firemen in the department.

However, Thornton explained there are also 20 volunteers when the department is at full strength.

Mrs. Wilson said Thornton believes George Hettema is "excellent" as a fire prevention officer and Jean Lestanguet, husband of the city administrator, can do the job of shift captain.

"If you don't believe him, I think you should fire him," she said flatly.

"When were four points added to the examination?" asked Egger.

"Answer that, council," demanded Souza.

"You've said it is very common," Mayor Francis J. O'Connell told him.

Thornton said nine points were added to the last fireman's test and maintained the adding was done by the state personnel people, not by Fairfax.

A motion by Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet to approve the chief's request was approved 3-2 with Egger and Souza voting no.

A substitute motion by Souza to table the matter also lost by a 3-2 vote with the same line up.

Sonoma Teeners Held On Charges

Two teen-age boys were arrested in San Francisco last night on suspicion of burgling a Petaluma home and stealing a car.

Booked into Sonoma County Juvenile Hall in Santa Rosa were Keith Allen Flach, 16, of Santa Rosa, and James Stull, 16, of 408 Mountain View Avenue, Petaluma.

Police said the pair had broken into the home of Fred Crikos, 891 Olive Street, last month and took three rifles from a gun case. The 1964 Chevrolet owned by Crikos was reported stolen from the home Sunday and recovered the same day by Sunnyvale police. The stolen rifles were found in the car.

Wallace Plans To 'Observe' Asia

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace, 1968 third party presidential candidate, says he will function "strictly as an observer" on his trip to Vietnam and other Southeast Asian countries.

Wallace told a news conference yesterday that the trip had no political implications and was intended to be only a fact-finding tour.

"I'm going there with an open mind to acquaint myself with conditions existing politically and militarily in that part of the world," Wallace said.

The former Alabama governor said he plans to leave Thursday on the trip which will include visits to U.S. officials and foreign dignitaries in Formosa, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand, Cambodia, South Korea, Laos and South Vietnam.

Sonoma Asks Improvement On Highways

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday recommended that the state Division of Highways consider five improvement projects in the south county area including the widening of Highway 101 from Marin County to Santa Rosa.

Supervisor George T. De Long of Petaluma said the freeway traffic is already becoming prohibitive and that widening to six lanes is inevitable. "We must ask them to plan now so that the widening won't be done at the expense of the communities involved," De Long said.

The recommendations also included enlarging the Highway 101 interchange at East Washington Street in Petaluma to accommodate a larger traffic flow. The new Highway 101 interchange at the Rohnert Park Expressway was included on the list, but Donald B. Head, director of public works, noted that plans have been completed with construction due to start early next spring.

Also recommended was the beginning of studies to bring Route 116 from Highway 101 near Petaluma to Route 121 to freeway status. The study was recommended to include 11 miles of roadway.

For long term planning, the board suggested studies for a freeway location on Route 116 from Highway 101 near Cotati to Monte Rio.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Mercy Street' Due Scant Compassion

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne Sexton, winner of the 1967 Pulitzer Prize for poetry, attempts drama with more ardor than success in "Mercy Street," a merciless test of audience patience unveiled for review last night at the American Palace Theater.

Mrs. Sexton uses much agonized metaphor and tormented syntax for her quasireligious story about an unsavory clan of once-proper Bostonians. It all manages to come out both tediously obvious and pretentiously obscure.

The central character, played by Marian Seldes with the disciplined hysteria that is her speciality, first appears during high-altar ritual, begging for the redeeming wafer and wine of Eucharist. The priest takes it himself instead, an inversion that signals the start of some archey convoluted scenes.

A procession of deceased relations appears to parade sordid family skeletons of bankruptcy, alcoholism, incest and madness. Mrs. Sexton is more absorbed in manipulation than meaning, in theatrical affectation than coherent comment.

Despite clouds of incense, liturgical intonations and indulgence in abruptly rude moments of biological candor, "Mercy Street" defies audience involvement.

The cast principals other than Miss Seldes include Jerome Raphel, perhaps priest as well as psychiatrist; Virginia Downing and William Prince, parents of the bothered and befuddled heroine; and M'el Dowd, imperious great-aunt in contrapuntal agony at one corner of the set in regret over lost love while the central fantasy continues.

Writer Given Prison Sentence

BELGRADE (AP) — The Belgrade District Court sentenced a Yugoslav writer to six months in prison today for an editorial criticizing the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The court found Zoran Gluscevic guilty of offending the Soviet Union, its leaders and its army in an editorial published in the bimonthly newspaper Knjizevne Novine shortly after the invasion in August 1968.

Gluscevic, 43, had called the charges "absurd" and pleaded not guilty. He showed no emotion at the court's decision.

He said he would probably report to work in El Cerrito about the middle of next month. He said that his resignation date was not set and would be at the convenience of Rose.

Melquist, married and the father of two children, joined the city in 1967 as an assistant to the city manager and was promoted to assistant city manager last June.

Tiburon has already begun advertising for applicants for Melquist's job.

Eight Seeking Tough Job In Bolinas

(Seventh of eight articles)

In one of Marin County's most active election campaigns — and one which could have important repercussions on the development of West Marin — eight candidates are vying for three seats on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board in next Tuesday's election.

The campaign centers mainly on three issues: The extension of sewage facilities to include the whole community instead of just the downtown village area; future water sources to meet expected demands of projected housing developments resulting from the sewage system extension and money.

Bolinas is faced with a touchy situation. Development of the coastal area has not lived up to original expectations and most blame it on the lack of adequate sewage facilities.

The existing community is generally felt to have too small a tax base to finance the sewage system needed to attract development but it is also felt by many that the development won't come until the sewers do. That leaves the public utility board with the problem of how and when to pay for expanded sewage treatment facilities.

Adding to the urgency of the problem is a cease-and-desist order from the Bay Area Regional Water Quality Board to stop dumping raw sewage into Bolinas Lagoon and into the Pacific Ocean, something that has been going on for nearly 70 years. Some of the candidates have accused the current board of moving too slow in meeting the water quality control board standards.

One possible solution to the sewage problem is being explored with the Stinson Beach County Water District, which the Bolinas district may join to build a $2.3 million sewage system. That is under intensive study by both communities and by the county.

Another issue facing the candidates is future water needs. Although the area's small population currently has adequate water supplies, few feel it has enough to meet demands of the expected growth of the 1970s. One of the main tasks of the new board will be to continue exploring possible new sources of water for the district.

The eight candidates are:

FRED E. DAVIS, 60, of Aspen Road, is an incumbent; he has served on the board for 22 months. A handyman by trade, Davis also has been a trustee of the Bolinas Fire Protection District for two years.

He says "maintaining and improving the district" are the most important functions of the board, adding: "We want to get more water supplies. We've got to get the sewage deal going."

Charles G. Hadley, of 196 Rosewood Road, has been hospitalized for several days and was not available for comment on the election. Hadley is a former trustee of the utility district.

James E. Kerr, 71, of Ocean Avenue, a semi-retired engineer formerly with Bechtel Corp. and now a consultant. He is a member of the American Society of Professional Engineers and has done a book for the State of California on conservation and fish preservation in the San Joaquin Delta.

He says the big issue is "to provide adequate sewer service," adding: "at the present time, Bolinas is discharging raw sewage into public bodies of water. This must be corrected. At the same time, basically I feel there should be put in an adequate sewage plant to take care of the Bolinas Peninsula requirements."

ALBERT W. MEYER JR., 35, of Mabel Street, a high school teacher in San Francisco. Meyer is a volunteer fireman in Bolinas, vice president of Bolinas Community, Inc., and a bishop's warden at St. Adrian's Church.

"The two major problems facing all of us in Bolinas are sewage disposal and a reliable water supply," he says. "These problems must be solved promptly at the lowest cost to the taxpayers."

ALONZO STEWART NELSON, 60, of Larch Road, an accountant and assistant cashier at a stock brokerage house in San Francisco. Nelson is a member of the Bolinas Beach Community Improvement Club and Bolinas Community, Inc.

In a campaign statement, he says: "I intent to see that sound accounting practices are established; that records and reports are properly kept and promptly filed; to strive, by efficient management, to lower rates if at all feasible; that rules and regulations are strictly enforced; that maintenance is properly and efficiently supervised; that capable men are selected for new installation and repair work; to see whether or not it is advisable to repair old lines or tear out a whole section and install new construction; to work toward a solution to our road problems, particularly in the mesa area." He added that the "immediate problem, of course, is the sewage problem," which demands careful, long-range planning in conjunction with Stinson Beach.

MANUEL S. PETERS, 62, a retired dairyman and incumbent on the utility board. Peters also is chairman of the Bolinas Fire Protection District board.

On the district's problems, he says, "I'll do the best I can. The sewer system is something the district has to live with. I'll try my best to give people the lowest price solution to the sewage problem."

CLEM C. SLATER, 36, of 355 Vine Road, is a workmen's compensation representative in Santa Rosa. He is a member of Bolinas Community, Inc., and the Marin Conservation League.

Slater said the main issues are how to meet the regional water quality standards and what area the new assessment district will cover when an expanded sewage system is approved. He said ideally, the entire Bolinas area would be sewered, adding, "It may run into millions but it would be to the community's best interests. There will be need for additional water if areas other than the immediate village come into any program. New subdivisions should become part of the (sewer) district." He said there "obviously is going to be a building boom in the area" and the district must prepare for it. "The most important thing now is to stop dumping raw sewage into the lagoon and the ocean," he said, adding he felt this should already have been done by past boards.

He is a former president of the Bolinas Improvement Club, former president of the utility district board, former manager of the district, former Bolinas fire chief and former Marin County fire warden. He is currently a member of the fire department and Bolinas Community, Inc.

Attempts to reach Smith for a camapign statement were unsuccessful.

Defendants Win Mansfield Suits

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal court jury has ruled for the defendants in three suits for $8.7 million in damages arising from the highway crash which killed actress Jayne Mansfield.

Miss Mansfield died when the car in which she was riding rammed into a truck June 29, 1967, on the outskirts of the city. Also killed were her lawyer, Samuel S. Brody of Los Angeles, and their driver, Ronnie Harrison of Biloxi, Miss.

The truck driver, Richard Rambo of Pensacola, Fla., said he had reduced speed because of a warning light on a city-owned mosquito spraying truck driven by James T. McLelland.

The jury, named to assess liability in the accident, found that Rambo was not negligent, that McLelland was negligent but that this was not a "proximate cause" of the crash, and that Harrison was negligent.

Nobody can match United's Broadway lineup.

We've got 7 daily nonstops to New York from San Francisco. And 1 daily nonstop to New York from San Jose. (We also have a through-flight to New York from Oakland.)

Then there's our real showstopper: our 12:00-noon Chef's Gourmet Flight to New York from San Francisco. It's First Class. The most magnificent restaurant in the sky. With appetizers like Glazed Chinook Salmon. And entrées like Beef Wellington, a whole filet of beef, nestled in a delicate pastry. There's even a special version of our Chef's Gourmet feast in Coach Service, complete with 5 beautiful courses. (Our Chef, John Wolfsheimer, is the happy man in the picture.)

That's our Broadway lineup. And it's beautiful.

But United also performs off-Broadway. With nonstops to major cities all across the country.

And, remember, United is the only airline that flies east from all 3 Bay Area airports: San Francisco, Oakland, and San Jose. That's quite a lineup in itself, wouldn't you say?

Panel Will Check Marin's Traffic Woes

Marin's tangled traffic problems will get an on-the-spot inspection next month by the men who can unravel them as the California Highway Commission holds its monthly meeting in the county.

The commission will meet at 10 a.m. Nov. 20 at the Civic Center and will continue through Nov. 21 as long as it takes to finish its business, the commission's secretary, T. Fred Bagsaw of Mill Valley, said yesterday.

Bagshaw was one of a series of speakers yesterday at the Holiday Inn for a meeting on Marin highway priorities by representatives of the California Chamber of Commerce, the state Division of Highways and the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Bagshaw recalled a hearing of the highway commission with the board of supervisors a few years ago which ended in a deadlock. He said he believes it is time for the commission to return to Marin because of the changes in the makeup of the board, but did not elaborate.

Also discussed yesterday was the possibility of diverting gas tax funds from highways.

Robert Bishop of Santa Rosa, regional vice president of the state chamber, warned, "I don't think you've heard anything yet, compared to the efforts that will be made to reallocate and redistribute gas tax funds."

He predicted Southern California legislators would lead the fight to divert the highway funds.

A representative of Citizens for Freeways and Highways, a San Francisco based group, reported the organization planned to begin publishing a newsletter Feb. 1 to report on diversion efforts.

Alan Hart, district 4 engineer for the division of highways, reported on progress of last year's recommendations for priorities, most of which are on this year's list.

The top priority last year was the new viaduct through San Rafael which is under construction, moving last year's second priority, a freeway through Novato, to the top position.

The Novato project, he said, will probably be funded in the 1971-72 fiscal year. This year, $500,000 was included in the highway commission budget, to purchase right-of-way for the project.

He indicated other priorities are in approximately the same position as the Marin recommendations which were approved last Tuesday by the board of supervisors.

Donald A. Beacock of the Marin County chamber highway committee spoke briefly on the new priorities and announced next year Highway 17 from Highway 101 to Point Reyes Seashore would be a major area of concern for the committee.

"Apathy seems to have set in" on the plans for Highway 17, he commented.

The project has been in limbo for about three years after the board of supervisors ordered a balanced transportation, Hart said. He reported the study is due in mid-1970.

The group took no action on the priorities presented because they have already been approved by the board of supervisors who accepted essentially the same priorities as recommended by the chamber committee.

Hundreds To Join Drive For UNICEF

On Friday night, hundreds of Marin youngsters will forgo Halloween trick or treating to collect money for poor children around the world.

The youngsters, who can be identified by their official collection cartons, will be soliciting funds for the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund. A large part of their collection will go to the children of Biafra and Vietnam, according to Mrs. Harold W. Kling, Marin County UNICEF chairman.

More help is still needed in the fund drive, especially from youngsters in the San Rafael school district, said Mrs. Kling, who asked interested persons to call at her home, 37 Buena Vista Avenue, Corte Madera.

The chairman urged Marin residents to remember that as little as 10 cents can provide 50 glasses of milk, while 25 cents can buy a basic education kit for a primary school child.

Four Marinites To Exhibit In Show At Center

Four Marin artists will be among exhibitors in the "People Who Need People" art show Nov. 7 through 9 in the Carolyn Livermore Room at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Gwen Stone, known for her work in collage and her abstracts and winner of 27 awards, will display eight to 10 of her works. Jeane Nobel of San Rafael will show her works in oil and acrylic of old mission scenes.

Pastels by Marcella Winer of Mill Valley and oils of children by James E. Lannert Jr., of Fairfax, will be displayed at the show which will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is sponsored by Village Frames of Fairfax.

Two Closed Sessions Set

Two closed sessions by Marin Hospital District directors have been set when the board meets at 8 p.m. today at Marin General Hospital.

One will be to discuss salary and fringe benefits with its representatives in employee wage negotiations, and the other to get the evaluation committee's report on the Marin County Board of Supervisors' request that Dr. Donald P. Wilson, director of the Community Mental Health Center, be suspended.

The supervisors asked for his suspension on Sept. 30 when they suspended Dr. Clyde G. Miller, controversial director of mental health services for the county.

Costume Parade For Halloween

A Halloween costume parade sponsored by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department will be held Friday, weather permitting, starting at 7 p.m. at the Greyhound bus depot parking lot on Miller Avenue near Lytton Square.

Prizes will be awarded to children wearing the most original, scariest, funniest, prettiest and best witches costumes.

Judging will be held at the Boyle Park tennis courts or at the Park School auditorium if it rains.

HOW TO STAY MARRIED

Sharing Some Common Goals

First of a series by Norman M. Lobsenz and Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Association of America.

There is no such thing as an "ideal" marriage. The very adjective implies a perfection that is not applicable to human relationships. Moreover, what may seem ideal to one couple may be intolerable to another.

Marriages can, however, be happy, satisfying, successful, and rewarding. Although it is not realistic to compile a list of the specific ingredients of such marriages, it is feasible to pinpoint the common elements that characterize them.

These would include the ability of the husband and wife:

1. To communicate with each other.
2. To be mutually interdependent.
3. To meet each other's practical and emotional needs.
4. To work and play together, and to plan, meet, and solve their problems cooperatively.
5. To share the duties and pleasures of parenthood.
6. To take pride and pleasure in each other's accomplishments and sense of self-esteem.
7. To be productive members of their community as individuals and as a couple.
8. To respect each other's views.

IT IS FUTILE to try to adapt your own marriage to outside standards and what applies to patterns retained from the parental home goes even more emphatically for those observed in the marriages of friends or neighbors. Sometimes it is tempting to copy the ways of friends who seem to have better marriages. But those friends are different people with different needs. And what appears to be a desirable relationship may not be so under the surface.

One way to avoid some of the outside pressures and false standards in marriage is to combat in a broad way the entire concept of social conformity, to accept that it is not always necessary to be like other people. Take pride in your individuality.

This sense of individuality, is in many ways essential to another key factor in any meaningful marriage. It makes it possible for a man and woman to achieve a sense of identity as a couple.

Marriage is often defined as the making of two people into one. The question arises, however, as to which "one" the two become. To some the idea of "union" may imply that one person must totally accommodate himself or herself to the other, thereby virtually ceasing to exist as an individual.

But mere connection is not identity. Nor is identity sameness, with the consequent loss of uniqueness. Identity as a couple can perhaps best be defined as a sense of family unity, a feeling of belonging together and of developing ways to face the world together.

IDENTITY AS a married couple exists when a man and wife stop thinking of themselves as "she," "he," "you," and "me" — and start to think of themselves as "we" and "us."

It might seem to be a paradox, but coexistent with family identity as a factor in meaningful marriage is the concept of individual growth: Often, the ability of husband and wife to develop as mature individuals enables them as a couple to establish a sense of marital unity.

People starting out in marriage stand on the threshold of an experience that will demand changes from them: changes in character, in ways of relating to each other, in the roles they assume and discard.

Individual growth that enables a spouse to meet these changes aids the growth of the marriage. It allows the relationship to deepen and the essential communication between the partners to flourish. It gives them more to share and affords them more opportunities to be proud of each other's accomplishments.

The honeymoon and the first months of marriage are the crucible in which two people with two different patterns of behavior attempt to work out a single new pattern with which both of them can be comfortable.

THE NEWLY marrieds must face such "first-time" situations as dressing and undressing in each other's presence, or performing toilet functions in close proximity to each other.

The bathroom in particular seems to be the place where differences in cleanliness, neatness, and consideration for others come to the fore.

Like the young wife reduced to tears because her husband neglected to turn the bathroom shower knob to "tub" position after he used it. When she went to take her bath, the unexpected downpour drenched her.

It may be that the bathroom intensifies adjustment problems because throughout life it symbolizes our intimate functions. But some of the concern about bathroom habits may actually be the projection of subconscious anxieties about sex or sexual adequacy. Also, since the bathroom is one's "personal" domain, intrusions there may be taken as personal affronts.

The bedroom is another place where surprises await the honeymooners. The simple sharing of a double bed creates a problem for the person who has always slept alone or who is used to stretching out in all directions.

THE POINT IS that during the first year of marriage a couple is in the process of making many such adjustments about "closeness" and "separateness," and the surface problems are the ground on which they act out emotional differences.

Consequently, each of the partners must go through a kind of learning experience. In essence, it is nothing more mysterious or difficult than becoming truly aware of the other's presence.

Premarital counseling, no matter how effective, cannot prepare a bride for such problems as: Who sleeps on which side of the bed? Does her husband like his fried eggs soft or hard, and is what he means by "hard" the same as what she means by it? . . . Does he expect her to decide when his suits need to go to the cleaners? . . .

Take the spending of money. It may be hard to think in terms of "our" money when previously each has thought first of his own needs. The man, accustomed to spending all his income on himself, now finds his wife has certain demands to make upon it. Decisions about finances have to be made jointly.

Just as spending money is a joint problem, so is the spending of time. Instead of planning how they will spend a few hours, they now must plan in terms of weeks and months. Simply being together on such a concentrated basis raises problems of adjustments.

The intense togetherness of the early months of marriage may not be altogether a good thing. Social contact with outsiders is necessary to preserve a sense of balance.

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember about all these first tensions of marriage is that they can be overcome. Misunderstandings, thoughtlessness, selfishness, fear of failure, needs that make compromise difficult — all of these may cause stress but need not destroy a marriage.

Perhaps the most destructive thing is a person's inability to recognize this fact, an inability to accept the strains of the adjustment period and to face the need to change his or her own behavior.

Possibly the most dangerous attitude of all in the adjustment period is the "determination to reform" — to insist that another individual conform to one's own standards. All this does is set up a resistance that only increases the

Mini Tool Kit Can Save Time, Money, Temper

Lay that monkey wrench down, lady, and listen to the voice of experience when it comes to tools and how to use them.

For housewives faced with the prospect of mini-repairs around the home, Joe Martina, assistant vice president of maintenance for an airline, prescribes a small, inexpensive tool kit for ending frustration over loose screws, bent nails or squeaky appliances.

Martina, whose job is caring for 50 huge jet aircraft, says a mini-tool kit should include:

1. Screwdrivers. One with a quarter-inch blade and with a separate Phillips attachment to deal with regular-sized screws. Ignore the huge mechnaic's-type screwdrivers and leave the teeny ones to watchmakers.

2. Pliers. Strong and plain. Great for disconnecting jammed garden hose couplings or easing a stubborn lid from a can, particularly when the man around the house isn't there to help.

3. Adhesive tape, wide variety and tube of all-purpose glue. In some instances, the tape can be used for emergency first aid and is ideal for pottery and glass repairs. When wrapped around a leaky pipe, tape will stem the water flow until the plumber arrives.

4. All purpose oil can with applicator. Could save fingernails on a jammed window or take the squeak out of a cabinet door.

5. Work scissors. Save your dressmaking shears and have a tough pair in your tool kit for cutting everything from light wire to corrugated boxes.

"For two or three dollars," Martina said, "such a tool kit can easily be assembled. It should also be kept in a convenient spot at all times."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Perhaps A Scream Would Shock Family Into Facing Problems

DEAR HELEN:

This house is unreal. I can't take it much longer.

My mother and brother make a point of ignoring my father. He's just someone who brings home the paper every night and the paycheck every week. He's always cheerful and has a smile — but I'm the only one who notices.

Mom won't say hello to Dad. She thinks of any possible excuse to leave the house so she won't have to eat dinner with him. If she can't manage a shopping trip, night classes or whatever, she sits at the table reading, while he eats and acts as if nothing's wrong — while I sit there trying to break the great silence and getting indigestion.

Maybe my father did something terrible, but he doesn't act like it. He's a kind, warm, wonderful person, though a bit stubborn. I love my mother and brother too, and this split down the middle of the family is tearing me to pieces.

Sometimes I feel like screaming, or smashing something, just so I could stop this quietness. But my mother would think I was having a nervous breakdown, my brother would consider me un-cool, and my Dad would probably be embarrassed to death. Maybe they can take this pretend living, but it is driving me up the wall. What can I do? — LIPPINCOTT

DEAR LIPPINCOTT:

I think this great silence needs a crisis to break it — and perhaps your scream might do the trick. Let your family know what they are doing to you. It might shock them into facing their problems as adults. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a young girl of 22, getting old. I've been told I'm very pretty and have a good personality. But I'm continually disappointed in the kind of dates I get.

I want a guy who is terribly attractive, both physically and otherwise. I usually get the otherwise. I know this isn't smart, but if a man isn't handsome he doesn't rate with me.

I'm tired of being single, but I'm afraid I've already passed up my husband who was probably one of those ugly ducklings I turned down.

DEAR FUSSY:

Not a psychiatrist — just a better seeing eye. Attractive people are almost always hooked on looks for like seeks like. Because they fall for the package and not the content, they often end up disappointed.

Learn to recognize the many different kinds of handsomeness (inner as well as outer) and remember the absolutely perfect man exists only in the dreams of young, unmarried females. — H.

Personal to "Miserable": When you smoke, drink, and "sneak out" to prove your parents are all wrong about being too strict, you're proving only one thing: Your parents were right in the first place — you aren't mature enough for the privileges you seek.

Play it their way for the next few months. Then write again, and if things are no better, I'll reopen your case. — H.

Same Goals For A Good Marriage

problems and tensions. Often, by accepting a characteristic of habit that seemingly cannot be changed by conscious effort, the result will be that the other person modifies his behavior on his own.

For most newlyweds, resolving early frictions caused by individual differences requires: First, communicating dissatisfactions and divergent viewpoints with honesty and with an open mind; second, seeing the other person as an individual rather than as an extension of one's own wants or needs; third, viewing each issue in perspective so as to decide whether it is best to hold on to a particular feeling or opinion, or to give in for the sake of all-round happier living; and, fourth, putting emphasis on growing together rather than on retaining one's own ideas.

Accepting differences is a fact of life, and to love someone is not synonymous with agreeing with him.

When She Began To Hunt She Learned To Cook Boar, Bear

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's hard to envision Viennese-born Joie McGrail as a hunter who has shot black bear and wild boar, and even cooked them herself.

This chic, petite brunette looks more like the fashion magazine editor she once was than half a husband-wife team who spend much of their free time hunting and fishing.

In an interview, the McGrails talked about cooking their catch.

"I DON'T think I cooked very much before our marriage," she said. "When I began to hunt, I began to cook."

She added that she sticks closely to recipes, while her husband "changes everything constantly."

Mrs. McGrail said she collects recipes from her family, and from other hunters and sport fishermen. Their boar and bear recipes came from a couple who own a lodge in the Great Smoky Mountains where they hunted.

The boar recipe calls for only six ingredients—including the beast and 60 pounds of coarse salt for making a soaking brine that has to be changed every four hours for 24 hours.

BUT FEW of the McGrails' recipes are that arduous or exotic.

"We go on party boats out of Sheepshead Bay (in Brooklyn) to catch bluefish," she said. "There's only one recipe for bluefish, in my estimation. You bake it with butter and fresh parsley."

She added that her favorite recipes are pheasant in cream sauce, honey duck and smoked trout, the latter made with a Swedish smoker that does the job in 20 minutes on a kitchen range.

Recipes and stories about their hunting and fishing adventures are in their newly-published book, "The Catch and the Feast," published by Webright and Talley. The color photographs in it were made by the late Mark Shaw, who was White House photographer for the Kennedy administration.

McGRAIL, A sportswear manufacturer, calls himself a thrifty cook who first got interested in the subject as a child.

When his ship was in the Persian Gulf, he caught and cooked a huge sea turtle, at a time when fresh food supplies had run out and only dehydrated products were available.

He cut it into steaks, sauteed them and served them cold with local vegetables.

"They tasted like veal and served 70 men," he added.

Even people who think they don't like game or game cookery are apt to be caught up in the McGrails' enthusiasm. Both agree that cleaning the catch is man's work—"an extension of the hunt," said Mrs. McGrail.

Her husband added that he thinks wives of many hunters and sport fishermen dislike cooking the catch because it has been mishandled in the field or by the stream.

"THE MOST important thing to remember is that the things you catch should be properly prepared before you bring them home," he said. "They should be as fresh as if they came from a market—well-cleaned, cool and, in the case of big game, not dusty from being carried on the hood of a car.

Another problem, one that's hard if not impossible to foresee, arose once when Mrs. McGrail was cooking a duck dinner for a very special friend from Paris and his new wife.

She explained that wild duck for her recipe must be hung five days in plumage, then marinated five days, then cooked for 2½ hours—but you can't tell until 1½ hours of cooking time if the birds had fed on eel grass or fish, both of which create a very fishy odor and taste. The only way to avoid the problem is by skinning the ducks before cooking. But she hadn't, on this occasion.

"At 7:15 the entire house reeked of fish and our guests were coming at 8. I ran directly to the incinerator. Then to the freezer for grackles, which we keep prepared in round cake pans."

GRACKLES ARE blackbirds, a delicacy in Europe but rarely shot here, she said. She added that she sauteed them quickly in butter and served them with the wild cherry jelly and wild rice that had been prepared for the duck dinner.

JOIE AND Bill McGrail are a husband-wife team who spend much of their free time hunting and fishing. Recipes and stories about their outdoor adventures are in their newly published book, "The Catch and the Feast." (UPI Telephoto)

Kettles

The cauldron, or kettle, is one of man's oldest cooking utensils. The earliest kettles were fashioned of sheets of bronze hammered into shape and riveted together, reports "The Complete Encyclopedia of Antiques." Later, kettles were made of cast bronze and from the 16th century on, of cast iron. Aluminum and other materials came into use in more recent times.

Blacklisting Of SDS Held No Solution

The Marin County Board of Education last night rejected Dr. Max Rafferty's proposal it blacklist the Students for a Democratis Society, but it wasn't a vote of confidence in the SDS.

The board agreed with Virgil S. Hollis, county schools superintendent, that a resolution calling the SDS "unfit to be recognized as a student organization" by any state school district would open the door to "all sorts of recommendations" the board doesn't have time for.

The state Board of Education passes such a resolution Sept. 11 and Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, has passed it along to school boards throughout the state.

The state resolution warns that recognizing SDS "may be in violation" of the education code, and that SDS activities "will likely be" in violation of the code.

Several members went out of their way to say they agreed personally with the state board's evaluation of SDS, and no one rose to the radical group's defense. The motion was tabled by unanimous vote of the board.

In what has become an annual presentation, the board accepted a gift of $3,000 from Mrs. Yoland Sullivan and Mrs. Monte Ambinder on behalf of the 1969 Marin Ballet Aquacade.

Profits from the aquacade benefit education for orthopedically handicapped pupils at Marindale School. This year's 24th annual show included 217 girls from four years old to high school age, Mrs. Sullivan said.

The Marin County Board of Education also:

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Pilar Titus, instructional aide in child development, who is leaving Marin.

INFORMATION — Approved a resolution supporting the California Education Information System, which has never been funded by the state since its conception 10 years ago. The system would computerize much information for statewide availability.

CONSULTANTS — Approved hiring four consultants; Charles Lavaroni, director of extension services at Dominican College, for workshops in November, December and January on classroom management; Vincent Campi, art consultant for Merced County schools, for the annual Christmas workshop Nov. 20; W. W. Stevens Jr., assistant director of the Social Science Education Consortium at Boulder, Colo. and Michael Scrivens, philosophy professor at Berkeley, for two days' consultation each in November in developing a social studies curriculum.

HIRING — Approved hiring five classified employees: Bernadene Bengson, stenographer and vocational education instruction, at $486 a month, and Margaret Anhorn, Fran Harrington, Doreen Miller and Richard Davina, bus drivers at $2.67 per hour.

Census Manager For 1970 Named

Barbara Hennessy of Fairfax, long active in Republican groups, has been appointed district manager of the San Rafael office for the 1970 census.

She will head a staff of 300 persons when she starts work in January. Her pay for the position, to last about six months, is $917 a month.

Mrs. Hennessy was recommended to the Census Bureau for the appointment by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, after she passed civil service-type tests, the congressman's office reported.

The San Rafael district office will have jurisdiction over Marin and Southern Solano counties, with a total population of about 400,000.

Mrs. Hennessy is a former chairman of the Marin Federated Republican Women.

She resides at 11 Gary Way.

Garbage Talk Set In Homestead Valley

Homestead Valley Sanitary District directors last night agreed to meet with Mill Valley-Refuse Co. representatives to discuss the possibility of establishing unlimited garbage collection service after the ban on backyard burning goes into effect Jan. 1, President James G. MacNichols reported.

MacNichols said the board will meet with garbage company representatives at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at Homestead School.

Hollis Will Continue Scrutiny In Sausalito

County scrutiny of the Sausalito School District will continue even though "the welcome mat was pulled out from under me," Marin County Schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis told the Marin County Board of Education last night.

Hollis was asked earlier this month to stay off Sausalito district property after teachers at Martin Luther King School reportedly voted on the matter.

Observance of Sausalito began last spring, Hollis said, when William Bradley (Chaka) began teaching at King although he had no credential. Hollis also referred to the Black Panther Party breakfast program and "beatings on the school grounds" in May.

During the summer, Hollis said, he and aide Robert Spain met frequently with Sausalito Supt. Philip Schneider and King School assistant principal James A. Toliver.

When Schneider admitted King had problems and hoped people would come and assist, "I took this to be an invitation," Hollis said.

When King's new principal, Sidney F. Walton Jr., arrived, Hollis said, county school men were encouraged to visit classrooms to observe and report on teachers.

Although he has agreed to stay off Sausalito property, Hollis said last night "we are not withdrawing — I hope that's abundantly clear . . . We have a duty to perform and I will carry it out."

His physical presence on the campus is not necessary to keep watch on the district, Hollis said.

Hollis said Schneider had asked him for the names of complaints about the district but "I saw no reason to name them . . . it was clear there were problems."

As for complaints, the fact that Sausalito lost 140 children in one year, with the loss of $39,000 to $40,000 in state aid, "should be enough reason," Hollis said.

Probation Granted To Teen-Ager

Vicki Jean Wood, 18-year-old Washington state resident who had admitted burglarizing a Belvedere home on Aug. 11 while she was living in Marin, yesterday was given a suspended 90-day jail sentence by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court.

He also declared the offense to be a misdemeanor.

A probation report said that Miss Wood, who was the only person charged with the crime, was probably less guilty than two young men who were not charged.

Since her arrest, the probation officer said that she has returned to Washington.

Shelter Ridge Apartments Due Revision

Plans for 373 townhouses and apartments on the east side of Shelter Ridge overlooking Highway 101 were unveiled last night before the Mill Valley Planning Commission. (Another Mill Valley Planning Commission story, page 1.)

Planners indicated they generally approved of the preliminary plans by architect Charles Warren Callister of Tiburon but urged developer Warner Odenthal to restudy plans for moderate cost housing on a lower portion of the ridge behind Goodman's Lumber Co. on Highway 101.

The higher density moderate cost housing had been left off the plans because it is to be developed as a separate unit, Odenthal said.

Commissioner Edward J. Farrell said he considered the entire 73 acre development one unit and incomplete unless moderate cost housing is included.

Callister noted he, too, supported development of moderate cost housing but questioned the ethics of placing it "in a swamp right next to noisy Highway 101."

Odenthal said he would resubmit master plans for approval at the commission's 8 p.m. Nov. 10 meeting in city hall.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also: Recommended to the city council that the southwest corner of the East Blithedale Avenue-Camino Alto intersection be rezoned from single family residential to general commercial zone as requested by Lucille and Mortimer Conklin.

The commission received additional economic feasibility data on development of apartments as opposed to single family homes in the Alto Bowl.

Greenbrae Collision Injures Motorist

George W. Casassa, 23, of 130 Via Loreta, Greenbrae, received minor injuries yesterday when his car hit a car driven by Janet Munson Marquis, 40, of 30 Van Hooten Court, San Anselmo, in Greenbrae, the California Highway Patrol said today.

He was to see his own physician. The patrol said his car hit Mrs. Marquis' car as she was turning into a private drive on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ash Avenue at 4:25 p.m.

THE MARIN PROBLEM

Alcoholic Treatment Units Just Too Late For Some?

By PAT ANGLE
(Second of three articles)

Forty-seven-year old James Windser, a Marin County grocery clerk, has been arrested 140 times in the past 15 years. His crimes: public drunkenness and other alcohol-related offenses.

He has received sentences ranging from a $10 fine to six months imprisonment in the county jail. He is still drinking.

Windser's (not his real name) father was an alcoholic. And his children are beginning to show the effects of an alcoholic parent: in the past two years his three sons have all been in trouble with the law — for drunken assault, drugs and petty theft.

The hundreds of Windsers among the 8,000 alcoholics said to be in Marin may have been lost to recovery by the present drunk tank approach.

"What do you do with a man like this when he comes into your court today?" asks Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of the Marin Municipal Court. "If this individual had received treatment or help when he was younger, there might have been hope; now it is simply too late."

Such a program for help — a halfway house and a detoxification center — are on the drawing boards. But until these programs are operative, the Windsers and the rest of Marin County's alcoholics will continue to add their share of some grim statistics.

Thirty-eight per cent of all police business in the county is concerned with the alcohol abuser, according to Leo Marmol, a member of the Community Planning Group on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse and a staff member at the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

Already overcrowded local hospitals and emergency rooms are being asked to care for intoxicated persons who are too ill to go to jail. As one emergency room physician at Marin General Hospital put it: "We do the best we can, but they take us away from injured and seriously ill patients who need immediate care."

Traffic accidents and fatalities are another cost. Although no figures are available for Marin, on the national level drinking drivers are responsible for 25,000 deaths and 800,000 accidents a year, according to the National Traffic Safety Bureau.

In spite of all the publicity given to juvenile use of drugs, John W. Brewer, Marin County Probation Officer says "Alcohol is much more widespread and is probably a far larger factor in juvenile delinquency than all drugs combined."

In past years, treatment for most alcoholics was limited to pep talks by trusted family physicians or clergymen or a night to sober up on the concrete floor of the county jail drunk tank.

The situation is changing slowly in Marin, but the supply of alcoholics still greatly exceeds the available treatment.

The majority of alcoholics in the county who seek help turn — some all too briefly — to Alcoholics Anonymous which currently has 22 chapters in Marin and about 1,000 members.

AA, founded in 1935 by a drunken New York stockbroker and an alcoholic Akron, Ohio physician relies chiefly on the "buddy system" of encouragement and regular attendance at AA meetings.

Approximately 100 alcoholics a month receive treatment at the Marin Institute, a county-subsidized facility which specializes in group therapy. According to Dan Meyerson, head of the Institute, a drop-in program at the center provides moral support for those who have lost the battle against alcohol.

Although the Marin Community Mental Health Center has no facilities for hospitalizing alcoholics, Dr. Juhan Liikane said the center admits about 10 each month for brief stays because "these people have no place else to go." On a outpatient basis, the center treats about 80 alcoholics at a time.

Other local treatment programs, mostly short-term, are available at Ross General Hospital, Ross Psychiatric Clinic and Synanon House in Marshall and involve about 60 persons a month. Mendocino State Hospital has about 20 Marin alcohol abusers at any one time.

Still, countless alcoholics are not being reached. All over the county, in hotel rooms and mountainside homes, hundreds of individuals are fighting the lonely battle of the bottle — with no help at all.

(Tomorrow: The detoxification center and halfway house).

NWPR Denied Bid To Abandon In Sausalito

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co.'s bid to abandon its Sausalito branch has been denied by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The 7.5-mile line south of Corte Madera "serves a substantial public need," the commission found in its order released yesterday.

But the order also warned industries served by the branch that unless "substantial additional use of the line "comes in the next few years, they should be prepared to adjust their rail needs accordingly."

It was the second time since 1962 that the ICC rejected the company's application to abandon the branch, which the company said was losing money and in need of uneconomical repairs.

But the commission disputed the railroad's contention that it lost money, and said interim repairs would make the line safe for present operating needs.

The order was a reversal of the ICC's own examiner, who recommended approval of abandonment. The railroad had applied to abandon the branch on July 9, 1968.

The application was opposed by the California Public Utilities Commission, Marin County Transit District, A. G. Schoonmaker Company, Inc., Interbay Lumber Co., Ward Manufacturers, Hercules Glue Co., Colloidal Products Corp., and City of Sausalito.

Favoring the abandonment were the City of Mill Valley and Mill Valley School District, both of whom hope to use the city's tidelands for recreation. The rail line bisects the tidelands.

The railroad had banked heavily on its argument that the Corte Madera tunnel needed major reconstruction at a cost of $1,128,390, but the ICC agreed with the protestants that adequate interim repairs would cost only about $40,000.

The ICC acknowledged "the probability than an extensive rehabilitation program" may be needed in the tunnel at some future time," perhaps in five to 10 years, but it added that "heavy prospective maintenance costs in the future that can be postponed is not a reason for abandonment."

Crash Near Sausalito Hurts Woman Driver

Margaret Amanda Burmeister, 56, of 131 Kinross Drive, San Rafael, was injured slightly yesterday when her car was hit in the rear by one driven by Linda Louise Cox, 18, of 218 Rosemont, Mill Valley, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The accident occurred on Bridgeway at Harbor Drive on the Sausalito city line at 4:35 p.m. Mrs. Burmeister was to see her own doctor.

Water Board Candidate's Fiscal Stand

The Independent-Journal erred Friday in reporting that Alan L. Hopkins, candidate for the North Marin County Water District board, said in a statement of his platform that district expansion should be paid for from a tax increase or a hike in water rates.

His platform is that developers and subdividers — ones who benefit from expansion — should pay for it.

Teen-Ager Denies Check Forgery

Thomas R. Cunningham, 19, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of check forgery. A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Cunningham, who was recently released from El Dorado County Jail after a joyriding conviction, is accused of passing a check at a Fairfax food store Sept. 5 to which he signed his father's name.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. yesterday recommended that jailers commit the youth to Marin Community Mental Health Center for a diagnosis after listening to Cunningham's response to questions.

Cunningham had earlier been found sane after a sanity hearing in El Dorado County.

Sometimes News Provides Its Own Commentary

Sometimes the news provides its own commentary:

EIGHTY-THREE PER CENT of Tamalpais High School District residents polled in a Field Research Corp. survey for the district rated teaching written communication skills as "very important" — the highest percentage so rating any of a list of school tasks.

With opening of school last month, the senior English course at Tamalpais High School was eliminated and a series of electives offered in its place.

WASHINGTON, August — Secretary of Defense Melvin H. Laird, announcing cuts totaling $3 billion in military spending, warned, "These cuts will reduce our capability to meet current commitments."

WASHINGTON, October — Total surplus property generated by U.S. civilian and military departments in 1968 was in excess of $2.6 billion, according to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

IN AUGUST, the Fairfax School District board, after eliminating a gardener, cutting down on transportation and maintenance and making other reductions, approved a budget giving teachers a 4.5 per cent pay increase, but promised more if additional money came from the state.

Last week, having received some additional funds, the board proposed to raise all employees 2 per cent more. Teacher representatives objected that all the "new money" should go to teachers.

IN SACRAMENTO, the legislature this year killed a bill to legalize marijuana. Last year, marijuana possession in California was made an optional misdemeanor-felony offense, decision to lie with the judge in each case.

This month, the U.S. Embassy in Moscow renewed requests for reduction of sentences of three Americans serving three-year terms in a Russian prison camp for possession of marijuana and hashish.

In Chattanooga, Tenn., two private corporations are building new hospitals to be operated for profit and have announced their rates will be 10 to 15 per cent below those of publicly owned hospitals.

IN WASHINGTON, Democratic congressmen denounced cuts in Office of Economic Opportunity funds, claiming they imperiled success of the program to give minorities a chance to make a decent living.

On Bimini, a British island in the Bahamas, a two instructor - one pupil fishing school was phased out after the Office of Economic Opportunity had spent $20,000 in U.S. funds on it.

A NOTE from the Tax Foundation provides the final news and its own commentary:

In one county in Mississippi, the Department of Agriculture last year spent $300,000 on food stamps. In the same county, the Farmers Home Administration is guaranteeing a $265,000 loan to install a nine-hole golf course.

Tiny Acrobats

Now that colder weather has come, we can turn our attention from the wildlife outdoors to the wildlife indoors. One of Marin's most interesting manifestations of wildlife (indoor variety) is the non-web-building, jumping spider.

Jumping spiders (also called wolf spiders or crab spiders) are those little, hairy fellows that run up the walls and scurry across the ceiling, and lurk behind the drapes. They stalk and pounce upon any stray insects with all the skill and voracity of an eagle or a leopard. Once they capture a victim and kill it, they inject digestive juices which turn it into liquid food.

Powerful legs, adhesive hairs on their feet, superb vision and excellent coordination combine to make the jumping spider a wonderful acrobat.

Of course, they live outside, too, but it is in the fall of the year, when they populate our houses, that we are most aware of them.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Lake, Humboldt Counties Would Lessen Marin Bridge Board Role

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The last time we were in Del Norte County, we were struck by its moon-like remoteness from the urban congestion on the Golden Gate Bridge. Yet the county is part of the bridge and highway district, and has one of the 18 votes on its board of directors.

Humboldt County was next as we headed south, and it seemed far more logical that it was not part of the bridge district.

Then came Mendocino County, rural like Del Norte and, just as illogically, a member of the bridge district.

The logic of Sonoma's membership was inescapable as we passed its growing suburbs, a development also spreading across Napa, another of the six counties in the district.

When we got to Marin, however, we wondered why this county, the bridge's best customer, should still have only three votes. And why San Francisco should get half of the votes.

THERE WAS A DAY about 30 years ago when these little northern counties were needed to get the bridge built, but this debt already has been repaid many times.

Against this background, it seems gross folly for more of our country cousins to come courting for annexation to the bridge district. Yet this is the strange love affair being pushed by Lake and Humboldt counties.

What they are after is the usual staples that politicians feed on — money and power. The district has both to offer; the fact that they have far less to offer in return does not disturb them.

THE BRIDGE BOARD, or at least its northern county representatives, is taking the annexation proposal seriously, and will conduct a committee hearing Thursday on Lake County's bid.

Strong San Francisco support for Lake County's bid also is coming from bridge director Joseph P. Mazzola, whose plumbers' union has invested huge sums in a resort development in Lake County. San Francisco, under the law that created the district, has nothing to lose because it would maintain its powerful position by automatically adding a 10th representative.

Marin stands to lose, since its representation would be further diluted.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Some 'Hair' Letters Eliminated

Letters on the "hair" dispute at Redwood High School have slowed to a trickle. However, yesterday the Independent-Journal received four letters on the subject, all from Redwood High School students, all referring to the editorial of Oct. 13, and all contending that such rules as that on length of athletes' hair are outmoded.

Since this has all the appearance of a letter-writing campaign instigated by someone as a delayed response to an editorial printed two weeks earlier, these letters are not being printed.

Carrier Dealers Not I-J Employees

In the Independent-Journal issue of Oct. 16, you show the first winner of the lucky license contest as Dorothy Simmons, the mother of one of the Independent-Journal carriers. Rule 5 of said contest states in part, "Employees of I-J and families not eligible."

I suppose your explanation that Mrs. Simmons's son is not an I-J employee would be that carriers are "independent" businessmen. They buy their papers for their customers from the Independent-Journal. The carriers are billed each month for the papers they purchase, they collect the amount of the subscription from their customers and pay their bill. The difference between what the carriers collect from their customers and the amount of their bill from the Independent-Journal is then their salary.

Would this be your explanation that the carriers are not employees of the Independent-Journal? It still doesn't satisfy me. I wonder what your other readers might think about this.

SHEILA S. PATZLAFF

(The explanation in the letter is correct. Carrier-dealers are not employees of the Independent-Journal. — Editor.)

Psychiatrists Find A Defender

I am writing this letter in defense of psychiatrists, sometimes referred to as head shrinkers by some of the population. We live in a hectic world where there is an ever-increasing need for good psychiatrists to handle the different types of problems that people have from the pressures of this fast-paced society.

There may be some taxpayers who feel that the mental health budget is costly and unrealistic. The people who complain the most about the money needed for mental health programs are many time completely ignorant about the whole field of psychiatry and its growth and improvements throughout the century.

I believe that this society needs more government-financed mental health programs. Good mental health programs require funds in order to operate and provide the necessary services for the community . . .

There is such a thing as preventive psychiatry which could help a certain percentage of people before they become involved in drugs or even involved in committing violent crimes.

I have one last thought for those taxpayers who are complaining about the money needed for mental health programs. They should sit down and think — just think about how much psychiatry can contribute to society. The most important thing psychiatrists can do is to help people live happier, more adjusted lives that have a meaning and purpose.

Tax Bill Support Found Dwindling

Last week at a luncheon meeting of the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana made a rather important statement.

He said mail to the Senate supporting the tax reform bill has been reduced to a trickle of that which the people sent to the House. The House of Representatives has passed a fairly strong bill which has been sent to the Senate.

Senator Hartke stated that the lobbyists are out in strong numbers in the capitol and if they succeed in stopping the bill, who will bring it up again, if it can only muster support from the public for three months?

This will be food for thought on April 15, 1970.

Miller's Tactics Show Disregard

It is a sure sign of Dr. Clyde Miller's egotism and his disregard for the mental health of the community that he would sidetrack the charges made against him by attacking, in turn, Dr. Donald Wilson. With the eager assist from a group of intractables among his former employees, Dr. Miller is now trying to discredit our new mental health center. There can be no justification for this, regardless of the cause for the rift between the two men.

Certainly there is no reason to prejudge Dr. Wilson's plans before they have even been tested. The administrative changes, e.g. in the children's services, are planned to broaden and improve the service (not to discontinue it as is erroneously claimed). Why not find out if it will work that way?

Long before Dr. Wilson's arrival many others found Dr. Miller impossible to deal with, either as contractees or in less formal relationships requiring joint planning and cooperation. Obviously Dr. Wilson has met the same obstructionist tactics in his attempt to develop the center program. It is to his credit that he has done as well as his record shows. Free from the constant irritation and frustration of having to cope with Dr. Miller and his disciples he could doubtless do better yet. But Dr. Miller is fighting for his job by downgrading someone else.

How long are we going to pay him a generous salary for that?

MARQUIS CHILDS

Whenever Things Go Wrong, The Cry Is: Blame The Press

WASHINGTON — At a certain point in the life of each administration, as troubles pile up, the search begins for culprits to put the blame on. The primary culprit almost invariably is the agency that reports the troubles — the press. If only this nasty, fault-finding agency would dry up and blow away, all would be well.

It has happened with the Nixon administration early rather than late, if only because the troubles are of such a dismaying magnitude. Suddenly a conspiracy is discovered. The minions of the press have deliberately set out to discredit the splendid endeavors of the new Republican team.

THE ANGRY BLEAT of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell can be heard whenever a responsive audience is assembled. His normally stern visage (nickname of the Department of Justice: the Great Stone Face) takes on an ever-sterner look as he denounces the SOBS of press and television.

They have cooked up all the fuss over the Haynsworth nomination. It would have breezed through without a ripple if it had not been for the troublemakers looking for blemishes on the serene surface of an ideal appointment. Why, as Mitchell put it, if one of the 12 Apostles were named to the Supreme Court the critics would carp!

THE PRESIDENT at his extraordinary impromptu press conference raised the cry of character assassination. Richard Nixon talking about character assassination! It was Mr. Nixon who in the 1952 presidential campaign accused Harry Truman and his secretary of state, Dean Acheson, of covering up if not actually aiding and abetting the Communist conspiracy in the United States. He had earlier attacked Acheson as the dean of the College of Cowardly Communist Containment.

That was character assassination in full flower. As news this was duly reported, perhaps over-rated, by the news media.

Acheson today accuses the press of trying to destroy the president, suggesting a movement such as has wrecked previous chief executives and left the nation leaderless. This has a strange sound coming from a principal victim of that earlier assassination. But the President and is one-time target have entered into a peace treaty, a Nixon-Acheson trade agreement.

Above all, in foreign policy the press is charged with irresponsible prying and poking, giving the external enemy the advantage of loose talk, the carping criticism of an open society. In the halcyon days of Talleyrand and Metternich, no such gross interference would have been tolerated.

EVEN THE MOST ardent partisan will readily concede the imperfections of the press. Like all other human institutions, it has grievous faults. Diplomacy must often be conducted in secret and there have been times when the poking and prying of the press may have been a handicap. Surely, it is also demonstrable that exposure has prevented errors and corrected abuses.

Presidents have reacted in various ways to the hair shirt of the press. At the end of his first term in the White House, Harry Truman had virtually the entire press down on him. The lapses of members of his staff — the mink coats and the food freezers — were given inordinate space. He was written off as an accidental President, a bumbler from Missouri.

Yet, so far as this reporter can recall, he never complained — or never publicly, at any rate. His loyalty to his associates was unfailing even when they came under the heaviest fire, as Acheson did. His terse summing up, 'If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen," deserves to be carved in stone over the White House portal.

What is so fantastic about the periodic effort to pin the blame on the press is the assumption that the troubles are invented by the media. This is extraordinary for the Nixon administration, because the President has never concealed his belief that what commentators and editorial writers said paled beside the importance of a proper camera angle on television.

Somali Uprising Brings Threat To Neighbor Lands

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign Affairs Analyst

When the Somalian army and police force overthrew their government and arrested Premier Mohammed Egal, they were arresting one of two men who had done the most to give the African "horn" a semblance of stability and bring peace between Somalia and its neighbors.

The other was the assassinated President Abdi Rashid Shermarke, whose funeral the coup followed by just one day.

IN THE ARMY'S action and in the shooting of Shermarke by a 22-year-old policeman there remains much to be clarified.

Shermarke may have foreseen it when, after elections last March, he called upon the nation to pray for forgiveness for a "relaxation of moral and spiritual principles" during the campaign.

The army action will create alarm in neighboring Ethiopia to the west and to Kenya, whose economic minister, Tom Mboya, died by assassination last July 5.

Shermarke and Egal played the key roles in late 1967 in restoring a shaky peace along the borders with both countries.

Althourh little known outside Africa, they also had managed to bring off the March elections without the electoral abuses and violence which have characterized other African elections.

THE 15,000 MAN army owes its existence to the Soviet Union, which built it up and trained its officers, and to the border disputes which sprang from Somali aspirations for a "greater Somalia" embracing the northern district of Kenya, Ethiopia's Ogaden province and French Somaliland.

Now both Ethiopia and Kenya will wait for a test of the army's sincerity in the statements of its leaders that they will follow Shermarke-Egal policies of "non-alignment and non-interference."

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Bureau's First Birthday Time For Sort Of 'Year-End Review'

Although it is customary to wait until December and January to compile year-end reviews, October seems appropriate as the first birthday of the Independent-Journal's Southern Sonoma Bureau rolls around.

In the past year, milk cows on the west side of Petaluma have moved on to greener pastures with new homes in sprawling subdivisions taking their place.

The construction of the new Washington Street Bridge became a reality after several false starts, excessively high bids, and complete re-engineering. The new, five-lane structure to replace the 1913 design by Joseph Strauss of Golden Gate Bridge fame is scheduled for completion early next spring with a budget drain of $257,327.

Also reaching fruition after years of haggling was the boat launching facility on the Petaluma River near the Highway 101 overcrossing. With luck and good working weather, the much-needed facility should be complete within two months.

Also pushed into the backgrounds was the innovative core area plan to put new life in Petaluma's downtown business district. With new shopping centers springing up in and around the city, unenthusiastic businessmen and city officials may begin to see new merits to the ideas put forth in the comprehensive plan.

Although Petaluma voters soundly defeated four bond issue last June for street improvements, a fire station and park development, they did rally to support the $12.7 million bond and loan election for building in the Petaluma High School District.

IN ROHNERT PARK, the year also saw more homes being built and a population increase. Plans for the sought-after interchange on Highway 101 at the Rohnert Park expressway reached final approval by the state Division of Highways, with construction to begin early next year.

BOTH Rohnert Park and Cotati finished plans for new sewage facilities, with Rohnert Park receiving several large federal grants to enlarge the sewage plant to serve both communities.

Southern Sonoma also saw the end of a long government career for County Supervisor Leigh S. Shoemaker, who resigned due to ill health.

His successor, George T. DeLong of Petaluma, will stand for re-election in the June primary, and already has a head start on opponents with his success as chairman of the school bond election drive.

DeLong took the chance of remaining as committee chairman after his supervisorial appointment, realizing fully that its defeat could seriously hurt his chances at the polls.

And yes, the Petaluma I-J office has expanded to keep pace with the growth of southern Sonoma County. Since opening last year, the lonesome news reporter has been joined by a fulltime circulation manager, a social writer and a sports writer.

ART BUCHWALD

Humorists May Seek Credit, But Spiro Writes His Own Stuff

WASHINGTON — A lady has written to the Washington Post accusing me of writing Vice President Spiro Agnew's funny speech in New Orleans, concerning the people who participated in the moratorium.

I am very flattered that his lady would think that I am writing Vice President Agnew's speeches, as they are probably the best humor being produced in this country at the moment. But I must disclaim all credit. Mr. Agnew has never asked me to write humorous speeches for him and I have never volunteered.

The question of who wrote the antimoratorium speech, which the Vice President gave with his typical socko delivery, is being speculated all over Washington.

MR. AGNEW is a very close friend of Bob Hope, and it is believed he might have gotten help from Mr. Hope's writers. But the vice president also happens to have friends on "Laugh-In", and many people swear Mr. Agnew's reference to "impudent snobs and intellectuals" is a typical "Laugh-In" throwaway line.

Jackie Gleason, who happens to be President Nixon's good friend, may have had a hand in the final draft of the speech, particularly where the vice president called everyone masochists.

But from all I can discover the vice president is, for the main, writing his own stuff. While he may consult a comedy writer for an occasional thought or gag, the vice president prefers to write his own material which he delivers in his now famous dead-pan style.

THIS, ACCORDING to an intimate friend, is how the vice president works on his speeches. First he studies the occasion. The Republican fund-raising dinner in New Orleans obviously with a lighthearted affair and Mr. Agnew knew he was expected to be humorous and topical.

Since the Oct. 15 moratorium had just taken place, the vice president decided to do his funny monologue around the people who participated in the protest. For every good laugh, the vice president discarded 10. Finally, he had it shaped up, and he took it to the President who read it and chuckled all the way through.

"You're going to knock 'em dead with this one," the President said.

"HOW DO YOU LIKE that line about impudent snobs?" the vice president said.

The President could hardly contain himself. "This thing about 'effete corps' is beautiful. I wish I could come down and see you give it."

"I wish you could, too."

"Spiro, you've said some funny things in your time, but you've outdone yourself on this one. This speech will make you another household word."

"You don't think anyone will take me seriously, do you?" Mr. Agnew asked.

The President wiped tears of laughter from his eyes. "How could they? This country hasn't lost its sense of humor yet."

WITH THE PRESIDENT'S approval, Mr. Agnew went to New Orleans and, as everyone knows, he wowed not only the audience, but millions who saw him on television. Overnight, the vice president lifted the country out of its depression and had everyone laughing.

No vice president in modern times has been able to constantly do this as well as Spiro Agnew. And the thing that has official Washington amazed is that he's doing almost all of it by himself.

Second Phase Eyed On Importing Water

Plans for the second — and smallest — phase of the multi-million dollar project to import additional water from the Russian River to Marin County have been outlined in a report by two Marin water districts.

The second phase, a 50,000-foot pipeline from Petaluma to Novato, is expected to cost $4,778,000, according to the report by the North Marin County and Marin Municipal water districts.

Actual design of the line is not expected to begin until 1975, the report said, but meanwhile costs should be based on current projections of water use, it recommended.

Using the current projections, Marin Municipal would pay 92 per cent of the cost and North Marin 8 per cent, the report said.

The pipeline would generally parallel an existing aqueduct from Petaluma to Novato, and right-of-way acquisition costs are expected to add little to the project cost.

The pipeline would tie together a section from Warm Springs Dam to Petaluma, expected to cost $33 million based on current construction costs, and a section from Novato to Corte Madera, estimated at $15.5 million.

The latter section would be built later and a report on it is expected soon.

All of the plans hinge on voter approval of a bond issue currently planned for the 1970 November election.

To do all of the work, voters in Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and the two Marin districts must approve bond issues.

Based on current estimates, Sonoma's share would be $15 million; North Marin's, $4.6 million, and Marin Municipal's $38 million.

The plans and how to finance them are expected to be discussed at a meeting of directors of all three groups at 8 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Marin Municipal district office.

Stolen Check Charges Denied

Robert Wayne Kitzmiller, 33, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to three counts of possessing checks with intent to defraud.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 6.

Kitzmiller was arrested Friday by San Rafael police who said that he had passed checks allegedly stolen from a Lafayette man at two San Rafael bars earlier this month.

MARIN COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS OR BIDS

Sealed Proposals will be received by, and shall be filed with, the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin, State of California, Room 315, Marin County Civic Center, San Rafael, California, until 10:00 A.M., Nov. 4, 1969, for:

Repair of the slide by removing and reconstructing the slope, constructing a metal crib wall and placing grouted rock slope protection.

The work shall be done in accordance with official plans and specifications prepared in reference thereto which may be seen at the office of the Department of Public Works, County of Marin. Request for forms or information shall be addressed to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

Proposals shall be filed with George H. Gnoss, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Civic Center, San Rafael, California.

Proposals will be opened and read at 10:00 A.M., in Room No. 343, Marin County Civic Center, on the day specified above.

The award of the contract, if it be awarded, will be to the lowest responsible bidder whose proposal complies with the requirements prescribed. The award, if made, will be made within thirty (30) days after the opening of the proposals.

The Board of Supervisors has made a determination of the prevailing rate of hourly wages applicable to the work to be performed. Copies of this determination are on file in the office of the County Clerk, Civic Center, Room 315, San Rafael, California, and are available to any interested party upon request. Copies may be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Room 308, Civic Center.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS

PLAN DEPOSIT — Plans and Specifications (but not including Standard Specifications, or other documents included by reference), and Proposal Forms may be obtained by prospective bidders upon payment of a deposit of Ten Dollars ($10.00) (cash or check made payable to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin) to guarantee safe return of the plans and specifications within ten (10) days after bid opening. Failure to so return the plans and specifications will cause forfeiture of the deposit to the County.

PROPOSAL GUARANTY — All bids must be submitted on the Proposal form obtained from the Director of Public Works and shall be accompanied by a Proposal Guaranty of at least ten percent (10%) of the bid. Guaranties shall be in the form of a certified or Cashier's Check or Bidder's Bond. Failure of the successful bidder to execute and return the contract, or to file acceptable bond, as required, within the time allotted shall be cause for the annulment of the award and forfeiture of the Proposal Guaranty.

BID BONDS — The bid bonds of bidders, other than the successful bidder, may be retained by the Board of Supervisors for a period of thirty (30) days after award or until the successful bidder executes the contract and furnishes bonds, whichever occurs first. If a bidder to whom the contract is awarded fails, or refuses, to execute the contract within fifteen (15) days of notice of award, as herein provided, the Board of Supervisors may award to the next lowest responsible bidder and apply the bid bond of the bidder failing, or refusing, to execute contract, against the County's damages resulting from such failure. If a bidder to whom the contract is awarded executes the contract as herein required, the bid bonds of bidders to whom no award was made will be returned upon request.

BIDS AND BID OPENING: Only the total amount bid will be read at the bid opening and not specific items going to make up said total unless written request for reading of each subtotal and individual items of the bid is requested in writing at the time of the submission of proposals. Bidders will be at liberty to inspect and review bids in the office or the Director of Public Works to which they will be removed for the purpose of checking after the opening and reading of the totals.

Bids are required for the entire work described herein, and neither partial bids nor contingent bids will be considered.

ADDENDUM — Every interpretation of the specifications, changes, additions or corrections will be in the form of an addendum to the contract documents and when issued will be on file at the Department of Public Works at least two working days before bids are opened. In addition, all addenda will be mailed to each person holding contract documents but it shall be the bidder's responsibility to make inquiry as to the addenda issued. All such addenda shall become part of the contract documents and all bidders shall be bound by such addenda whether or not received by the bidders.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Human Tularemia Found In All States; Caught Various Ways

VAN DELLEN

Human Tularemia is always a threat to hunters and trappers who are exposed to infected rodents, ticks, and deer flies. Wild jackrabbits are implicated most often in this country.

The highly infectious disease has been reported in every state except Vermont, that is, until the spring of 1968. An epidemic of tularemia broke out in Addison county involving 47 muskrat handlers and trappers.

TULAREMIA is transmitted from animals to man in various ways. A tick, flea, bedbug, or blood-sucking deer fly acquires the organism from an infected rabbit, fox, squirrel, mouse or muskrat. The insect bites a susceptible person and symptoms develop within two to seven days.

A more common way to get the disease stems from handling the infected animal. While skinning the animal for food or fur, the organism enters the skin through a slight abrasion or wound. This was the modus operandi among the Vermonters who handled the infected muskrats.

Occasionally the causative bacilli enter through the intestinal tract after diseased meat is eaten

THE MANIFESTATIONS vary considerably but most of the victims develop fever, chills, generalized aching, and malaise. Influenza is suspected until one or more ulcerating sores develop on the finger or hand where the organism gained entry.

The glands in the armpit on the involved side enlarge and become tender. When untreated, the illness may last several months.

VARIATIONS IN symptoms are common in that some victims do not develop skin lesions. In others, the disease is confined to the lungs, intestinal tract, or eye.

The best remedoes are a broad spectrum antimicrobial, such as chloramphenicol, streptomycin, or tetracycline.

Prevention should begin with a good insect repellent when in the bush and the wearing of gloves when potentially-infected animals are handled.

CARIES AND HEREDITY

Mrs. D. W. writes: I see to it that my 6-year-old brushes his teeth after eating. But he has more cavities than his playmates. Can you explain why?

REPLY

There is a hereditary aspect to dental caries in that some people are more susceptible to cavity formation that are others. Is the water supply in your community fluoridated? This should help. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on dental caries.

X-RAY BURN

A. S. writes: What injury could follow exposure to X-ray?

REPLY

X-ray treatment is safe when used properly. If the procedure is not done carefully, X-ray burn could follow. Overexposure may be followed by skin cancers 20 years later. Many of our pioneer radiologists were plagued with these lesions later in life.

VASCULAR HEAD PAIN

H. V. writes: What is a vascular headache?

REPLY

The usual type of head pain is thought to be due to contraction of the muscles of the scalp or to distended blood vessels in the brain. The latter is considered vascular in origin and is secondary to emotional upsets, fatigue, and stress.

SUICIDE STATISTICS

T. A. writes: About how many people commit suicide in this country in a year?

REPLY

More than 22,000 suicides are recorded each year. However, attempted suicides are not included in this estimate.

Sausalito Hits I-J Juvenile Name Policy

A petition signed by four members of the Sausalito School board and Supt. Phillip W. Schneider last night demanded that the Independent-Journal change its policy of publishing the names of juveniles arrested as suspects in felonies.

James T. Toliver Jr., special assistant to the principal and staff at King, presented the petition to the board and said parents in the Sausalito district would be asked to cancel their subscriptions to the I-J and advertisers would be asked to stop advertising in the paper.

Toliver also criticized "the I-J.s coverage of the Sausalito district and these (board) meetings."

None of the four board members present — Nathaniel Johnson, C. Gerald Clear, David E. Freedheim or Martha Freebairn - Smith — commented on Toliver's statement or on the petition they signed.

Toliver specifically objected to a recent I-J story reporting the arrest of two Marin City juveniles for allegedly burglarizing a boat. The paper's policy is to identify all juveniles arrested on suspicion of a felony.

The petition, addressed to the city editor of the I-J with copies to two other newspapers, said: "We, the undersigned, hereby register our objection to the dehumanizing and socially irresponsible treatment accorded elementary school children by the Marin County Independent-Journal in that it publishes by name and address the names of children who are in trouble.

"Further, we feel that this exposure by the I-J ignores the social, psychological and economic root causes responsible for the development of socially misguided youth. Children are not hardened criminals — with help, understanding, and modification of the causes of their involvement, they might be helped."

Schenider's and the board members' signatures were added at the meeting. The others, headed by King Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr. and Toliver, were collected at a faculty meeting.

Indians' Center Destroyed By $100,000 Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fire swept through the American Indian Center and a television shop in the Mission District early today, causing at least $100,000 damage.

Police Sgt. Mike Lennon was driving past 16th and Hoff streets when an explosion blew out the windows of Stanley's Radio and TV store about 5 a. m. He turned in the first alarm of the four-alarmer.

Firemen used axes to hack down the door of the Indian Center and rescue Victor White Eagle, 26, a Commanche; Donald Rodriguez, 25, a Mexican Indian; and Raymond Franklin Jr., 33, a Cheyenne. The three had been sleeping in the recreation hall.

Brothers Get Life In Prison

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two Chicago brothers convicted of murdering silent film star Ramon Novarro were sentenced to life in prison yesterday by a judge who recommended they never be freed on parole.

"Both of these defendants are still completely devoid of even a semblance of remorse or repentence," Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler said following sentencing.

Judge Brandler recommended that Paul and Tom Ferguson, "for this horrendous killing," both be confined for life.

Brandler said evidence during the two-month trial of Paul, 23, and Thomas, 18, "established convincingly and conclusively to the jury and the court the guilt as to each of the defendants in the brutal, vicious torture-killing of Mr. Ramon Novarro."

Holstein Is Judged Among Best In U.S.

A registered holstein cow owned by Marvin L. Nunes of Point Reyes Station has been judged "excellent" or "3E" for body type by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, it was announced today.

Of the 83,950 registered holsteins judged last year only 2 per cent were rated "excellent," the association stated.

Nichols Cheered By Collegians

Nichols received a standing ovation — and several minutes of — uninterrupted applause and cheers.

James Gillette, militant student body president, praised Nichols for his support of the student government. "We've not always agreed on everything, but we've always loved you as a man of great integrity and principle," he said.

An exhibit of the metal sculpture of Gene Flores and the serigraphs of Karen Battat will be on display.

Refreshments will be served to provide an opportunity to meet the choir after the concert. The church is located at 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

Burglary On Boat Denied By Teener

TV REVIEW

'Bonanza' Boss Fine As A Spy

By CYNTHIA LAURY

NEW YOR K (AP) — Peter Vanin of Monday night's "Destiny of a Spy" on NBC was an off-beat television hero. Here was a 50-year-old widower, retired from active spying to a Russian bureaucrat's job, tapped to destroy a new British weapons system. He was a luke-warm Communist and a pretty inept agent.

The complicated script really stuffed the two-hour made-for-TV film. It was brightened by the heroic presence of Lorne Greene with a slight foreign accent and in a business suit instead of Western drawl and "Bonanza" uniform; by the authentic London exteriors, and by a cast of fine British character actors.

SPY'S ASSIGNMENT

The spy's assignment was to track down some unknown person who was threatening the inventor of the weaponry, to ferret out his guilty secret and persuade him to pull out of the project. This led the spy into the arms of a blonde double agent —Rachel Roberts—to the solution of a 20-year-old murder and to a dive under a moving train.

Along the way there was plenty of tailing by agents for both sides and a clutch of accidental and premeditated deaths. The program will never be spun off as a series since the hero—struck by the train, then shot by the murderer—died at the end.

Bob Hope, NBC's biggest gun in the hot ratings war, triumphed again in the newest Nielsen list. His last special, according to the audience research organization, was tuned in by 47 per cent of the sets in use.

OTHER PROGRAM

Other programs in Nielsen's top 10 shows were, in order, NBC's "Laugh-In" and "Music Hall," CBS' "Red Skelton Show," National Geographic special, "Family Affair" and "Here's Lucy," NBC's rerun of "Heidi" and "Ironside."

Hope still works as hard as a newcomer to promote a new movie, a new book or an upcoming TV show. Right now he is interested in a 90-minute TV adaptation of the 30-year-old stage musical "Roberta" which will be broadcast Nov. 6.

Asked why his shows invariably attracted huge audiences, Hope said he thought the secret was "diversity—making the audience curious about what we'll do next. I think they'll get a kick out of our doing a fine old musical show."

"Roberta" undoubtedly is an especially important show for Bob. He appeared in the Broadway show at a time when few people were aware of his existence.

Spurrier Wins Starting Assignment

JIM GILMARTIN

Happy Times Return For 49er Boosters

I haven't seen so many smiles since the old school house burned down. Seemed like everyone was humming "Happy Days Are Here Again." The bartender was busier than usual.

It was the weekly luncheon of the Marin Chapter, 49er Boosters Club and some 60 of the die-hards of the fledgling organization gathered under extremely unusual circumstances: Their team had won its first game of 1969. I refer to Sunday's 24-21 victory over Baltimore in a real Vensus de Milo — that's a nail-biter, son.

Anyway, the Boosters suddenly developed a Spurrierority complex, singing the praises of the team's new quarterback while a gent named Brodie suddenly was regelated to status of John Who?

On hand to represent the 49ers at the luncheon were defensive tackle Roland Lakes, who was an offensive lineman the last time the 49ers beat Baltimore in 1962, and young reserve defensive end Tommy Hart.

Asking The Wrong Man

One Booster was so ecstatic over the sudden wealth of triumph that he asked these defensive hirelings if Steve Superior would start next Sunday's game against Detroit. Lakes, a gregarious son of a minister, peered over the top of his horn-rimmed glasses and said: "Sir, I represent labor, not management."

The 6-4, 264-pound Wichita Lineman, sartorially splended in black, double-breasted, bell-bottomed suit garnished with black and whilte silk accessories and a pair of alligator gunboats, allowed as how it was "a pleasant five hour plane ride" home from Baltimore Sunday night. "I think," he said, "we have reached the point now where we know we have the stuff to beat the other teams. The whole club's attitude has been given a lift. Things just seemed to click like they haven't in the past," referring to San Francisco's 11-game winless streak. "I can't say that the change in quarterbacks made that much difference. Had Brodie played maybe we would have won anyway," he said in answer to a question.

Consistency Is THE Thing

"We feel we have deep personnel to be a championship club. Just about every club has the talent, but consistency is what makes the difference."

Lakes was quick to dish out praise to all phases of the 49er game, from the computer that "helped us draw up our game plan," to Coach Dick Nolan, " . . . he has excellent leadership, is a dedicated football man, a hard worker who works us equally as hard and has the ability to lead us to a championship," to the offensive line, "did a fine job on pass protection and opening holes," to the defensive line, "we didn't drop (Johnny) Unitas for a loss all day, but we forced him into some quick, off-target passes and some crucial turnovers," to the offense, "They made the big plays (10 out of 17 third down crucials) and used a lot of time on the clock."

Somebody Like Gayle Sayers

Lakes also had these observations: "I've seen Unitas better than he was yesterday, but he's still one of the best"; "Eighty to 85 per cent of football is desire, the will to win"; On 49er draft needs, "I guess we can use one of those breakaway threats to turn the corner, like Gayle Sayers"; "Minnesota's defensive front four is better than the L.A. Rams' 'Fearsome Foursome' right now"; comparing the Colts to the Rams, "I have to lean with the Rams. They have good balance"; and, on officiating, a sore point to 49ers all year: "I think it's been inconsistent."

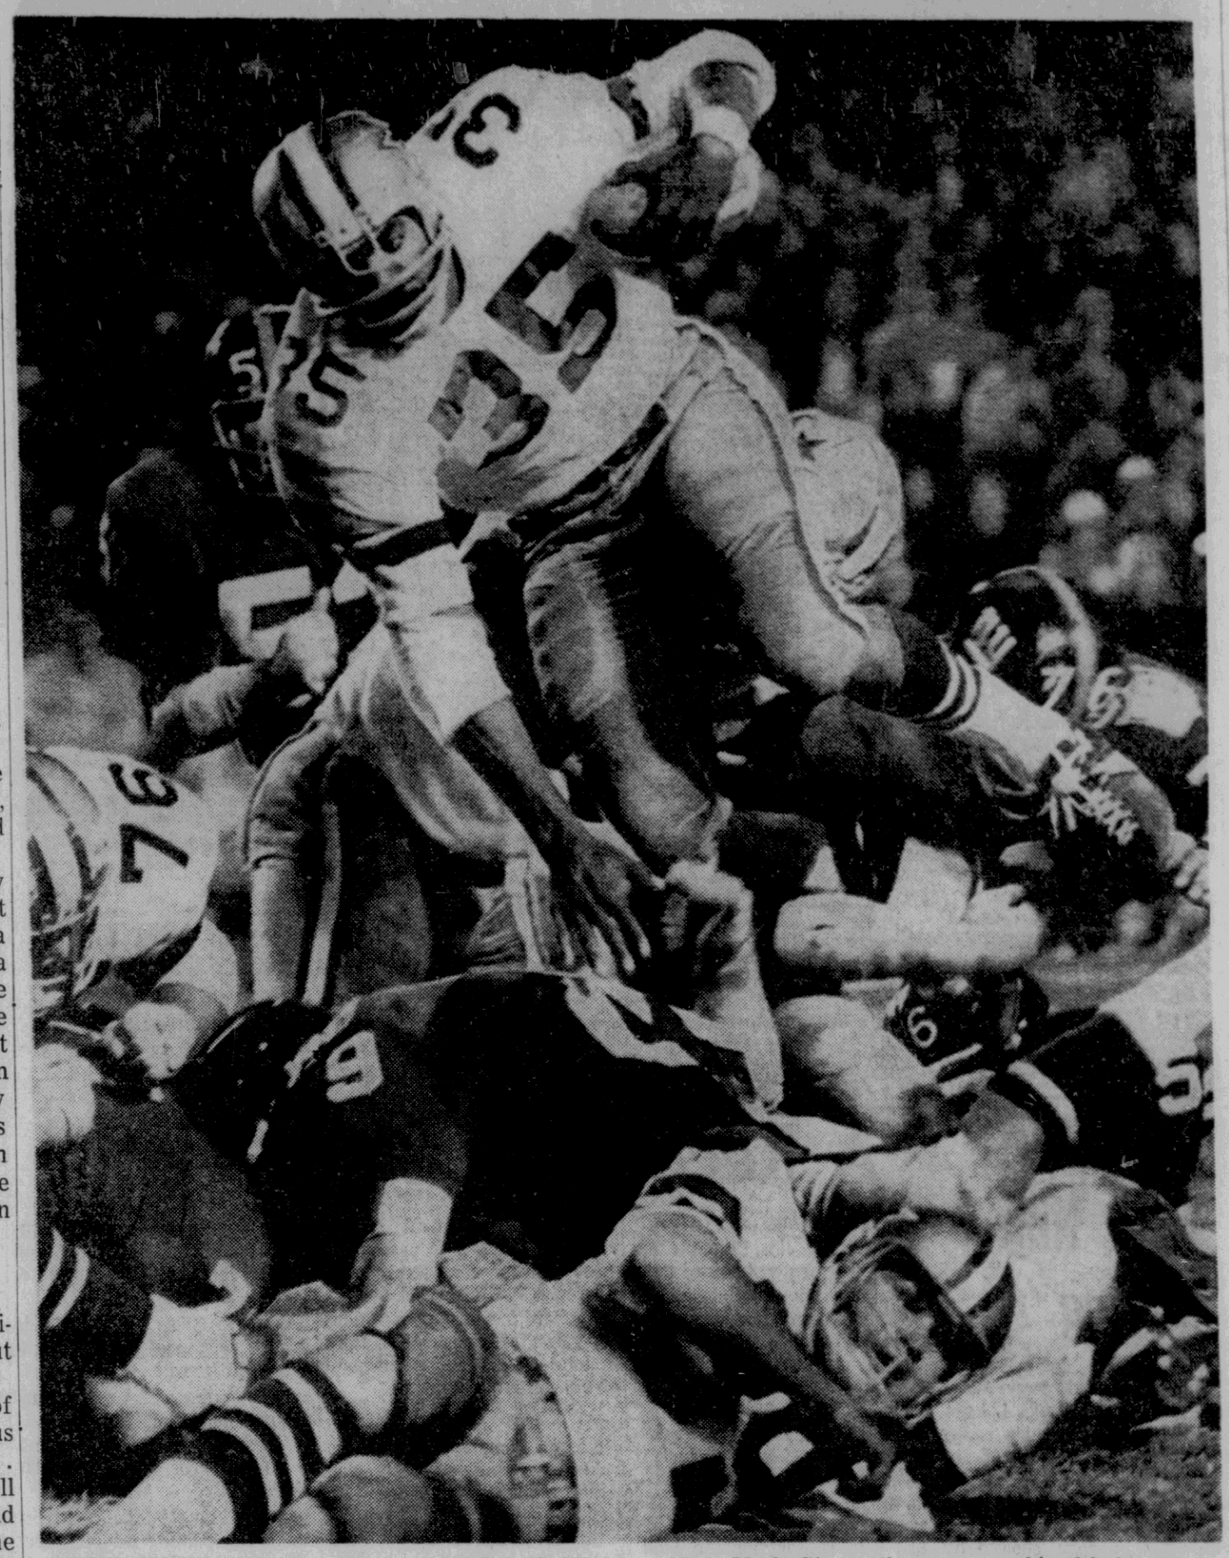
One Booster wanted to know how Lakes felt about the team returning home after each road game, rather than staying in the east for a series of games. Big Ro smiled: "I have mixed emotions. It depends on who I know back east." He's a bachelor.

232 Pounds Not Enough

For the benefit of those with weight problems, Hart told how he had to gain poundage to win a job with the Niners. The shy, soft-spoken son of a Georgia Farmer joined the team as a 232-pound linebacker, but was switched to defensive end and put on a weight program that would not curtail his speed. "In two months I gained 10 pounds," he said. "Before I could run 40 yards in 4.5 seconds and I still do it in 4.5."

Now that's what I call a polyunsaturated end.

Other notes gleaned from Boosters huddles: Win or lose, Spurrier should start every remaining game for experience: Dick Witcher will replace Clif McNeil as starting wide receiver; Elmer Collett played one whale of a game at offensive guard, perhaps his best as a pro; the club may schedule a future meeting on a Tuesday to get one of the "never on Monday" coaches to appear; the Boosters honored linebacker Jack Burnam and defensive coach Carrol Dillon of San Marin High's undefeated team. Emcee Dave Scofield called the new San Marin school and "expansion club."



HIGH FLYER — Dallas Cowboys' rookie, Calvin Hill (35) couldn't go through, so he went over the New York Giants linemen on this third quarter play of last night's game, and gained five yards and a first down. (UPI Telephoto)

49ers Vs. Lions In Kezar Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — It will be Steve Spurrier at the controls again when the San Francisco 49ers try to double their luck against Detroit Sunday at Kezar Stadium.

Coach Dick Nolan made the announcement yesterday and said he was pleased and even a little surprised by Spurrier's performance (18 for 30 for 205 yards, one touchdown and no interceptions) in the 24-21 upset at Baltimore last Sunday.

WORRIED

"I wasn't surprised by his poise," said Nolan, "but I was worried because he was seeing everything for the first time...It's seeing everything coming at you at full speed, and I didn't know whether he would be able to recognize defenses. But he did an excellent job."

Nolan added that John Brodie's arm "is not well. I don't know when he'll be able to throw again. That's up to the doctor."

Has Spurrier moved out Brodie? Nolan was asked what would happen if Brodie suddenly recovered.

"Well, that's a situation, I'll face when I come to it," Nolan replied.

Assistant coach Paul Wiggin pointed out Spurrier made the first down on 10 third down situations out of 17.

The 49ers were met at the San Francisco airport Sunday night by more than 100 fans carrying signs and ringing cowbells.

One sign, with big heart drawings, said:

"That's the way to heave, Steve, we love you 49ers."

Only a week earlier the 49ers had been booed in a home loss to Atlanta.

KERMIT OUT

Kermit Alexander will stay on the sidelines for another two weeks because of his shoulder injury which means mighty mite Johnny Woitt will take his place again. Baltimore threw at Woitt constantly last Sunday and while plenty were completed his way, he returned an interception 60 yards for a touchdown and he and Alvin Randolph combined to knock down a Johnny Unitas pass in the end zone on the final play to preserve the win.

Safetyman Mel Phillips may also be out after injuring his thumb at Baltimore. Johnny Fuller would take his place if needed.

Martin Stays Out Of Sports

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Billy Martin, the baseball manager, doesn't have a job. But Billy Martin, the brewery public relations man, radio announcer and the man that "Ode to Billy" was written about does.

And Martin, who led the Minnesota Twins to the American League West Division crown before getting canned by Minnesota President Calvin Griffith, says "I don't have any plans to get back into sports.

"Right now I intend to do some sports work for KWDB radio in Minneapolis, work for Grain Belt (the brewery) and generally enjoy life." Martin is also a director of United Sulpha and Chemical Co.

ON HAND

The "Ode to Billy" record by a group that plays at a local bar was released yesterday and Martin was on hand to give it a listen.

The tune, which deals with Martin's successes on the field and his problems with Griffith, is "great" music to the ears of the fiery former Twins leader.

The proceeds of the recording will be used "to put Martin in a better bargaining position with his next employer," said Joe Duffy, the bar owner.

Martin meanwhile denied a batch of Griffith charges, accusing him of allowing large-scale gambling on the team plane and talking to Seattle Pilots' officials about a managerial job.

Griffith had said players had been playing in a $750 poker game.

'RIDICULOUS'

"I talked to Calvin about the matter and he didn't seem to object as long as the stakes weren't big. The players who were in the games were in the $40,000 to $50,000 per year category. They could afford to lose."

Martin also denied talking to Seattle officials about a job. "I did visit with Seattle executives on our last trip there," he said but added that he was just paying Bill Daley a personal visit.

"Mr. Daley had been in my wedding and we were good friends," Martin said.

Banaszak Gets The Game Ball

Banaszak, filling in for the injured Hewritt Dixon, gained 123 yards in 25 carries last Sunday as the Raiders beat the San Diego Chargers.

Included in the total was a 40-yard sprint, the longest this year by a Raider.

"They were using a three-man line most of the game," he said. "We figure we can always run against that kind of defense."

The Raiders, who now have a 6-0-1 record in the American Football League, will be meeting a young Bengal club that won its first three games and then lost four.

Injuries to rookie quarterback Greg Scott have hurt the Bengals.

VICTORY OVER GIANTS

Dallas Defense Does It

DALLAS (UPI)—Sophomore defensive end Larry Cole and some of his defensive mates had "a lot of fun" last night against the New York Giants, but the Dallas Cowboys offense spent a miserable three and one-half quarters before it could crack a smile.

The Cowboys finally overcame the stubborn Giants, 25-3, to remain alongside the Los Angeles Rams as the only undefeated teams in the National Football League, but the score was 3-3 at halftime and only 6-3 going into the final quarter.

The Dallas offense, which had been the most explosive in the league, sputtered and flamed out frequently and had to settle for 47, 35 and 15-yard field goals by Mike Clark against Pete Gogolak's 23-yarder that launched the Giants in front in the first period.

Then, and only then, did the NFL's leading quarterback, Craig Morton get the bugs out of the Cowboys' offensive machinery to hit Lance Rentzel on a 16-yard scoring toss and set up Calvin Hill's 40-yard halfback scoring pass to Bobby Hayes.

Until then, it had been a night of glory for Cole, George Andrie and Jethro Pugh—who combined to spin Giants' quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the seat of his pants 10 times for 70 yards in losses, including once in the end zone for a fourth-quarter safety.

Tarkenton also suffered his first interception of the year—by Cowboy corner back Mel Renfro—leaving the NFL without a perfect record tosser since the Los Angeles Rams' Roman Gabriel had his string broken Sunday by the Chicago Bears.

Arnie Fires Practice Round 65

NAPA (UPI)—While young Steve Spray was savoring his surprise victory in the San Francisco Open, old pros Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus were shooting practice rounds here for the $140,000 Kaiser International Open golf tournament.

The tournament begins Thursday and runs through Sunday.

Spray, the five-year pro from Iowa, says his best performance at the Napa tournament "was between 50th and 60th place." This will be Spray's third try at the Kaiser Open.

Spray sunk a six-foot putt last Sunday to win the San Francisco Open and equal the tournament record with a 15-under 269.

Spray barely avoided a playoff with Chi Chi Rodriguez who was coming on strong in the back nine. But Rodriguez cost himself an extra shot by blowing a one-foot putt on the 12th hole.

"I could have knocked it in with my tongue," Rodriguez said later.

Spray's victory was his first tournament win in five years as a professional.

Detroit Cagers Complain About Coach's Methods

DETROIT (AP) — Disgruntled University of Detroit basketball players held a grievance meeting for an hour and a half yesterday, accusing new Coach Jim Harding of imposing "extremely severe" practice sessions.

Harding answered the criticism by handing the 16 players an ultimatum: practice and play under his rules or get out.

NO COMPROMISE

"We don't compromise with ballplayers who have complaints," said the 40-year-old coach who joined Detroit after being fired last season as coach of the Minnesota Pipers of the American Basketball Association.

"They were told there would be no concessions," Harding said after the closed confrontation in the school's Memorial Building. After the session, the players went onto the basketball floor and drilled for about an hour.

Harding said the players demanded the meeting and handed his assistant, Howard Fagan, a list of three grievances. The coach refused to state the exact nature of the grievances but said they did not involve any racial problem.

SEVERE

A player, who declined use of his name, told sportscaster Al Ackerman of WWJ-TV in Detroit that the dispute involved extremely severe practice sessions. Ackerman first disclosed the dispute.

Harding said the Titans team is comprised of "very, very average basketball players who are going to have to work very hard on the fundamentals of basketball to make up for a lack of talent.

"As a result," he said, "we'll have to spend a lot of extra hours to make up for the deficit. Those that want to play and pay the price and want to follow the philosophy that's set out will play, and those that don't will be dropped from the team."

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Harding noted that the Titans face a series of tough opponents this season. Their first game is against Michigan on Dec. 1. Other opponents include Notre Dame, Wichita, Loyola of New Orleans, Western Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Canisius, St. Bonaventure, Illinois, Pittsburgh.

Harding has been putting the team through practice sessions seven days a week.

On weekdays, he said, the drills last an average of 2½ hours each. On weekend days, they run up to three hours.

Before coaching the pro team, he led LaSalle to a 20-8 record and an NCAA tournament appearance. Earlier he coached at Loyola of New Orleans and Gannon.

Businessmen Trying To Keep The Pilots

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Daley says he will retain a portion of the Seattle Pilots stock if it will help keep major league baseball in this city, The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said today.

Daley, chairman of the board of the troubled American League team, made the comment in a telephone interview from Cleveland after a meeting of 50 of the city's top businessmen in Seattle last night.

The meeting was called by Edward E. Carlson, president of Western International Hotels to gather support and possibly a commitment of funds, for purchase of controlling interest in the club.

"I love baseball," Daley said. "I'm not in it for money, and I have never been associated with baseball in Cleveland for monetary reasons.

Daley said he "would be willing to throw $1 or $2 million into the kitty as a stockholder," and "I suppose a figure of about $10

Plunkett's Mother Has Never Seen Him

If Stanford quarterback Jim Plunkett should make it by a long shot to the Rose Bowl this year, his No. 1 fan — his mother — won't be able to see him.

HIS FATHER, before his death some years ago, was nearly so. He could see just enough to sell cigars and candy bars in the lobby of the Department of Employment office in San Jose. But he was legally blind and, if the coin was small, he had to make change by feel.

SOME 50 universities and multiversities, institutions of higher football, were after Jim Plunkett to enroll. Friends say he chose Stanford because he could get home in an hour in case his mother needed his arm more than the team did. "She gets lost sometimes," Jim admitted to a reporter.

Jim's parents were Mexican — or, more correctly, New Mexican, from Santa Fe and Albuquerque. They came north to San Jose in the late '40s with Jim's two older sisters, but Jim was born in San Jose.

BEING THE son of sightless, near- helpless parents upsets the delicate balance of dependence in a household. Blind people LISTEN for reassurance. Silence can be terrifying. When a son is due home from school the ticking of a clock can be Chinese water torture to a mother listening for that welcome familiar footfall, the slamming of a door, the "It's me, Ma!" even though the scent and sound have made that unnecessary. To have to go look for a child is parental trauma. Not to be able to is terror.

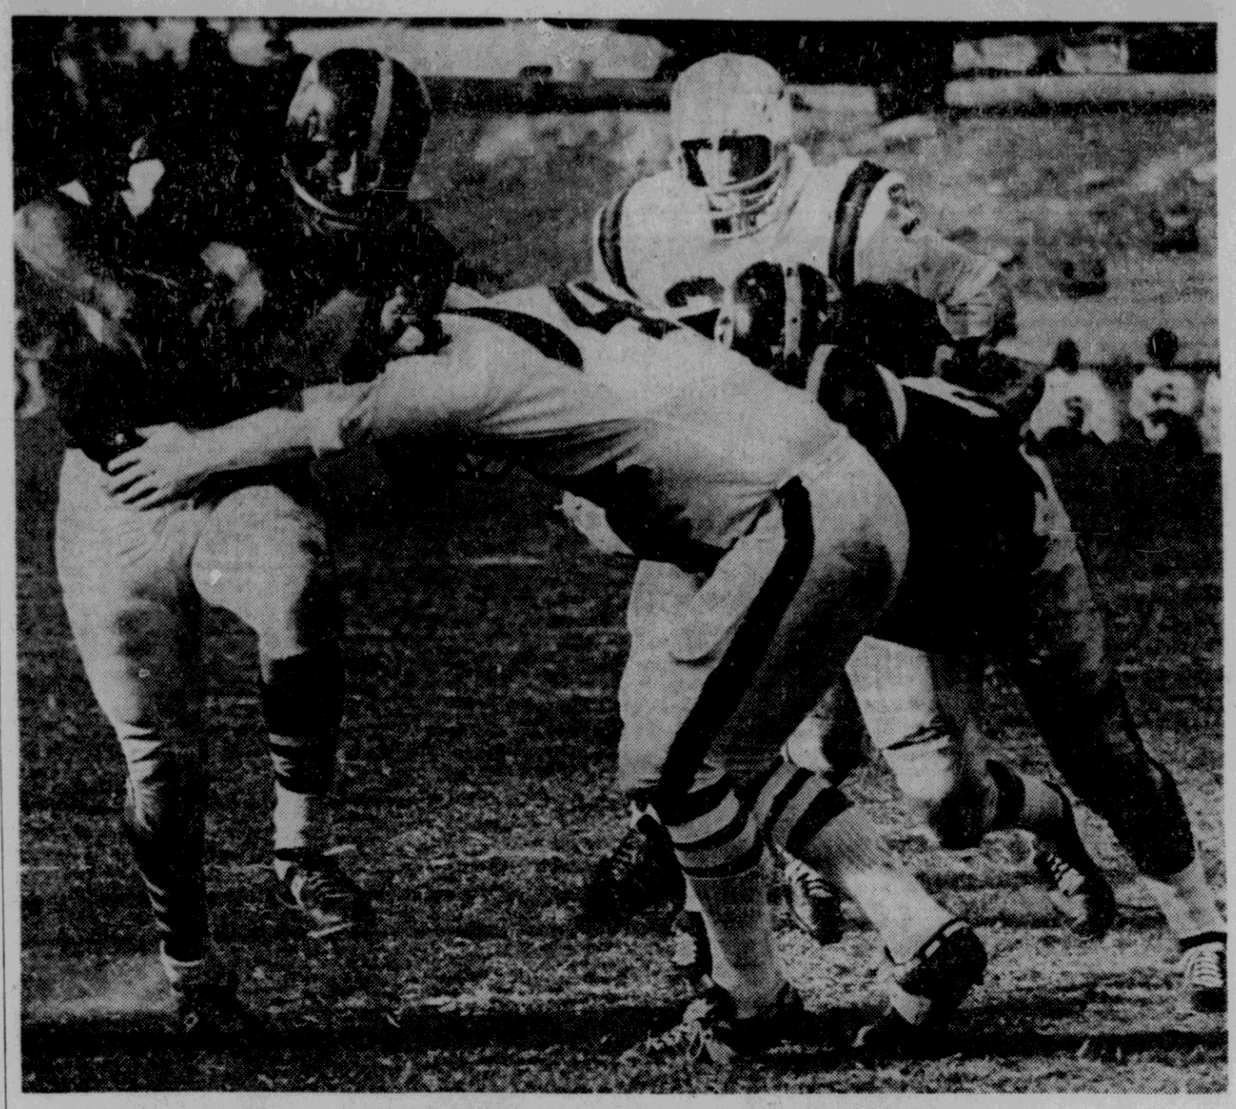
JIM PLUNKETT was as dependable as 5 o'clock traffic. He accepted his parents' sightlessness the way an Eskimo accepts snow. He either had a football in his hands or a load of wash, a bat or a gasoline hose, a basketball or a box of groceries. Loitering around street corners, was for kids whose folks could see — sometimes well enough to be down the corner saloon themselves.

"FLOWERS ARE more beautiful to the blind," Mark Twain once said, adding, "while the world is full of vacant, staring, unseeing soulless eyes." "No one can truly hear a violin with his eyes open," Fritz Kreisler is supposed to have said. The blind can tell more from a handshake than the police can from a dossier.

It may seem strange to some that a son of the blind could hit a moving target with a football 70 yards away or spot a telltale flick in the eye of a defensive halfback behind a face mask 20 steps away, but Jim Plunkett is not only the best passer in Stanford history but the best in conference history. And this is a stadium, Stanford, that annually sees more passes from the home team forces than a waterfront dance hall.

STANFORD KEEPS the ball in the air more than the Boston Celtics or even most volleyball teams. When you consider the school has had Bob Garrett, Gary Kerkorian and John Brodie in recent years, Plunkett's record 2,419 yards passing is heroic. That hs is continuing this with his second set of receivers, minus the incomparable Gene Washington, indicates the pros may not wait till his class graduates but may spin off a high draft choice this year and cheerfully wait till 1971 for him.

IT WOULD be nice if, first, he could put on display this immense talent in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. Not only might this thrill 99,999 other fans but there might be a quiet little old lady sitting there listening. This would be Mrs. Plunkett — and she might be the only one in that thronged saucer who could actually smell the roses. And know what the quarterback sounded like when he came home from school, dropped his books and said, "Ma, it's me!" As if she didn't know.



FOWLER ON THE RUN

College of Marin runner Mike Fowler tried to avoid a Solano Junior College defender enroute to a nine-yard pickup Friday. The Tars won, 21-14, to push their Camino Norte Conference record to 1-1 and their season mark to 2-3. They'll meet powerful conference leader DeAnza at Foothill in Los Altos Friday at 8:30 p.m.

PAYS THE BILLS

Prep Football Is Money Maker

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Basketball is self-supporting, but football is the big winner at San Rafael High School, the grid program making enough money to almost pay for the rest of the athletic program.

It has always been said that football proceeds pay for the rest of athletics at high schools and colleges, and in San Rafael High School's case, it's just about right.

According to Joseph Brighenti, director of activities at San Rafael High, and Jack Sims, its athletic director, last year's football program made a profit of $2,023, and the basketball program made $100. Since those are the only two high school sports to charge admission, the rest of the athletic program is all expense, no income.

The sports program had to draw out only $492 from the student body fund to help pay its expenses, which totaled $6,600.

Cocahes' pay and football uniforms are among the items paid for by the San Rafael School District. Expenses to the school for football last year totaled 2,460, and income came to $4,483, showing net profit of $2,023. Basketball did slightly better than paying for itself, a $1,525 expense compared to income of $1,625, profit of $100.

OTHER COSTS

Other sports and costs which had to be paid by the shcool were track and field, $115; swimming, $100; baseball, $800; wrestling, $200; girls athletics, $200; league fees and dues, $800; California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) dues, $200, and awards, $200.

"We look for more income from football this year," said Brighenti. "Our projection figure is $5,500. But, of course, our expenses have gone up, too.

REASONS

If coaches' pay and the huge costs of uniforms and pads are paid by the district, some people may argue, why is there so much expense for football?

Sims listed costs for a single game on the San Rafael High School field, and here they are:

Four officials to work a varsity game, $125; custodians, $26; field work in preparation for the game, $10; guards, $90; film, $20; electrician, $25, and ticket takers, $40.

And if it's a night game, add about $8 for cost of lighting. (According to Pacific Gas and Electric Co. officials, cost to run the floodlights at San Rafael's field is $2.24 per hour.)

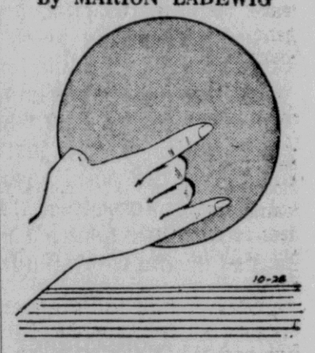
FIELD COST

Because of these costs, San Rafael High School charges other schools using the football field $200 for day games and $250 for night games. In addition to lights, there must be two additional policemen on hand for night games, thus the higher price. San Rafael currently has the only football field with lights.

So, you see, there is a business end to football, even on the high school level. Without football, student body funds would be drained to pay for the other sports in the athletic program.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Finger control is all important in bowling. Therefore a good lift is necessary. To check your grip, insert the thumb all the way into its hole. The middle joints of the second and third fingers should extend a quarter-inch past the inside edges of the finger holes (see illustration). Then the ball is gripped with those edges just beyond the middle joints.

STANFORD'S PLUNKETT

A Record-Smashing Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett has surpassed former Stanford passing greats John Brodie and Dick Norman in total offense, and is now closing in on a Pacific-8 season mark held by another former Stanford Star, Bobby Garrett.

Pacific-8 football statistics released today show that Plunkett needs only three more touchdown passes to tie Garrett's 1953 mark of 17. Plunkett is tied with Garrett for the Stanford career mark with 28 touchdown passes.

Rolling up 233 yards in a 20-20 tie with UCLA last weekend, Plunkett brought his career offense total to 3,756 yards to 3,654 for Norman and 3,560 for Brodie. Barring an injury, Plunkett still has 14 games remaining at Stanford since he is only a junior.

In this season's statistics, Plunkett holds a 19-yard lead over UCLA quarterback Dennis Dummit in the total offense race. Plunkett has passed for 1,500 and run for 53 this year.

Oregon quarterback Tom Blanchard, who has a minus 37 yards rushing, ranks third in total offense on the strength of 979 yards passing.

TOP SCORER

Oregon wingback Bob Moore holds the Pacific-8 scoring lead with 56 points, two more than UCLA halfback Greg Jones.

Clarence Davis of Southern Cal is the conference's leading rusher with 826 yards, compared with 595 for Jones and 559 for Jones' UCLA teammate, Mickey Cureton.

FOOTBALL

A Year Of New Look Quarterbacks In NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — The quarterback revolution is in full swing in the National Football League due to a combination of injuries, sore arms and the inconsistency of some of the veterans.

Bruce Lemmerman, who holds most of the passing records at San Fernando Valley State College in California and was picked up by Atlanta as a free agent, started Sunday against Green Bay in place of the injured Bob Berry. Randy Johnson has been tried and found wanting the previous week.

SPURRIER

Steve Spurrier sat on the bench and confined his game activity to punting for the San Francisco 49ers until John Brodie's sore arm forced Coach Dick Nolan to make a change. Spurrier led the 49ers to their first victory Sunday in an upset of the Baltimore Colts, a happy day for those Florida football fans who had been waiting for the real Spurrier to show the pros how it is done.

Terry Hanratty, the Notre Dame product who is being groomed for the No. 1 job at Pittsburgh, got a starting shot when Dick Shiner was clotheslined and unable to speak.

The Chicago Bears, desperate for a win, switched to Bob Douglass, the lefty passer from Kansas, and almost made it against Los Angeles, finally succumbing 9-7.

LANDRY

Bill Munson's injury opened the gates for Greg Landry at Detroit. The 22-year-old Massachusetts alumnus has taken over since Munson suffered a broken hand. The lanky quarterback took the Lions in to victory over the Bears but was unable to handle the Minnesota pass rush.

An injury to Jim Hart has enabled Charley Johnson, who used to be St. Louis' No. 1 boy, to regain the job. Johnson responded with three touchdown passes, including a pressure toss in the final seconds for a 21-21 tie with Cleveland.

DON HORN

Bart Starr sat for a time a week ago while Green Bay took another look at Don Horn, the San Diego State passer who came out of the service last year to knock the Bears out of a divisional title in the final game of the season.

An exhibition game injury cost Koe Kapp his regular job with the Minnesota Vikings when the season started. However, after Gary Cuozzo was beaten by New York, Kapp took over again and has been having fantastic success.

Dallas also gave Roger Staubach a shot when Craig Morton was hurt but Morton has come back strong.

Tracking Down Wounded Deer Can Be Problem

Have you ever crippled a buck and wondered what to do? Hunters using dogs can recover most crippled bucks because of the dogs' tracking and scenting ability.

But in a case where you have no dog, then it's best to get the others in your party together and to figure out a plan.

LET'S SAY you are alone, but hunting with a group, and you get a shot that you think hit the deer. I find it good policy to check the area for blood at the spot you saw the deer. Sometimes you find nothing, but still feel you had scored a hit. Mark the spot, then go back to the place from where you shot. Sometimes looking from the original shooting position at a marked spot shows an error in the place picked where you thought you last saw the deer.

Mark your shooting spot, and using markers, make your way down to the proper spot. I sometimes even drag my foot along leaving a line from the first shooting position to the spot marking the deer. This serves as an easy guide to the gang if you call them to assist you. They have the assurance that the place is the right one. And it's especially good if you have to leave the area to hunt up the gang because the area is marked when you return.

GETTING THE right spot located is most important because it is here that blood will usually be found. Large amounts of blood or blood that shows a foaminess will tell you that the deer is mortally hit and probably will be within 200 or 300 years.

In this case, I would search the area out, following the blood sign and the tracks of the animal, and you will probably be successful. Even a heart shot deer can travel several hundred yards at times. A foamy blood trail means a lung shot deer.

A LIGHTLY bloodied trail can be real trouble, but it always pays to check the trail out. In this latter case, I would get help. One person to watch ahead and one or two persons to do the tracking. Even here it pasy to mark each blood patch or track with say three rocks or sticks. It's always easy and quick then to back track if you establish that you've gotten on the wrong track.

Using this system, with the help of one or two of the other hunters, I have been able to catch up to bucks with sometimes almost minor wounds, getting another shot for a finisher. Also I've located bucks that were gut shot, or badly hit in the leg areas, and which would have surely died and been wasted.

I ONCE SHOT a buck in the Sierras above the foreknee which I tracked for two hours to a stream. Of course I looked up and down the stream for an hour with no luck. Finally I back tracked, and looking again toward the stream instantly realized the buck had crossed and gone up-hill on the far side. The line was that straight. I climbed up the far side and about 200 yards up, laying in some granite, sat the buck watching me all that time.

Hunting for bucks and then wounding one can be the most frustrating experience and yet the most satisfying one if proper tracking techniques are used. Check every shot out, sometimes a hit is scored without knowing it.

I REMEMBER DICK Haas of San Rafael on his first hunt. He shot at two bucks on opening morning of deer season, thinking he had missed both. Mary, my wife, was on a nearby stand. She went over, and after hearing Dick's sad story, checked out each shot. One was in a pine tree, but the second had been a hit, and Dick had a big 3 pointer down about 100 yards in the timber.

There are other problems that come up also. I've shot bucks across a canyon, then, in hiking down, crossing a creek, and hiking up the far side, I couldn't find the animal. And yet, it was there all the time. I just didn't get to the right spot because I hadn't marked it properly.

IF YOU DROP a buck in its tracks in these circumstances, mark the spot by a tree, boulder or some other prominent markings, making a mental note of distances. It will save you the trouble of going back to your original spot and seeing where you were making your mistake. In a hot day or close to dark, this can avert a real problem.

And there's nothing like shooting a buck about 400 yards across the sage where almost everything looks the same and not having things marked. Here it's good to mark your sage shooting spot with a cloth or piece of paper, mentally measuring the distance to the buck, and making marks all along the brush until you reach the deer. If you fail to do this, some time you will end up far off and completely lost from your buck and your original shooting position.

West Virginia Inks Some Hefty Tackles

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Jim Carlen and his West Virginia University football staff signed 27 high school stars to grants-in-aid this spring.

Four of the oncoming freshmen are tackles weighing between 220 and 260 pounds. They are Sidney Green of Matewan, W. Va., Adam Gluchowski of Woodbridge, N.J., Dennis Reis of Hollywood, Fla., and Bill Samuelson of York, Pa. Green is the 260-pounder. All are 6-foot-2 or taller.

Oops, Wrong Player

Casper Cracks Top Ten

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Casper, last year's leading money winner among the pro golfers, has moved back into the top 10 this week.

Casper displaced Tommy Aaron in 10th place after tieing for sixth place in the San Francisco Open last week.

Figures released by the PGA Tournament Players Division today showed that Casper earned $3,112 to boost his 1969 income to $89,747.

Aaron, 10th a week agyo with $87,625, finished far down the listings in the San Francisco field and won only $493 to drop out of the top 10.

Steve Spray, who won the San Francisco Open and the top prize of $20,000, still is a long way from cracking the top 10. His $28,293 earnings moved him into the top 60 money winners.

The 28-year-old Iowan's best previous year on the tour was 1967 when he won $29,253.

The top 10 money winners through the San Francisco Open, including number of tournaments completed, victories and times finished in the top five:

1. Frank Beard, 28-2-10, $173,746.
2. Dave Hill, 26-3-10, 155,849.
3. Gary Player, 16-1-10, 123,897.

Ralston Praises Bubba

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coach John Ralston had high praise for running back Bubba Brown in the wake of Stanford's 20-20 tie with highly-ranked UCLA.

He told the Northern California Football Writers and Sportscasters luncheon yesterday that Brown "finally broke open like we thought he could" against the Bruins.

Brown was singled out by the writers as the most valuable back of the week on the basis of a performance in which he gained 100 yards and caught two passes.

Stanford's next opponent will be Oregon State Saturday.

Linebacker Bruce Lecuyer was named the Northern California lineman of the week for his defensive play in San Jose's 16-7 loss to undefeated Wyoming.

Lecuyer was in on 13 tackles and recovered two fumbles.

Southern California publicist Don Andersen said the California Bears' sturdy defense will face a major test Saturday against the Trojan offensive line.

CREDIT

USC Coach John McKay gives his line much of the credit for Clarence Davis' rushing average of 128 yards a game and for quarterback Jimmy Jones' 709 yards in passing, Anderson said.

Undefeated USC has the inside track to a fourth straight Rose Bowl appearance in the wake of UCLA's tie with Stanford. Such a string would se a record.

California coach Ray Willsey told the writers he was proud of running backs Gary Fowler and Bob Darby and reserve quarterback Dave Penhall for their performances in the Bears' 17-0 victory over Washington State.

PREP NOTES

By GARY TISCHLER

The moment of truth has arrived in the Marin County Athletic League.

By a convenient quirk of scheduling, none of the top four teams in the league have yet played each other with half the season gone.

Terra Linda, San Marin and Redwood, the unbeaten (in league play) front-runners and San Rafael, have all played Drake, Novato and Tamalpais.

So now the fun begins.

Terra Linda and upstart San Marin square off at 1:30 at San Rafael High's field Saturday. Redwood and San Rafael mix it up on the same field Friday night.

SCHEDULE

From there on in, its Terra Linda vs. Redwood (Oct. 8); San Rafael vs. San Marin (Oct. 8); Terra Linda vs. San Rafael (Oct. 14) and San Marin vs. Redwood (Oct. 14).

Conceivably, some kind of messed-up tie could develop out of all this, although Terra Linda is generally acknowledged to be the class of the quartet. The Trojans have tied for the title in the last three years.

A certainty when the race comes down to three pressure weekends is that you can always go by compartive scores. So here's a quick look at how the four front-runners fared against the three cellar-dwellers. Terra Linda beat Drake, 43-8, beat Tamalpais, 28-12, beat Novato, 28-6. San Marin beat Drake, 27-8, beat Tamalpais 26-13, beat Novato, 9-0. Redwood beat Drake 6-0, beat Tamalpais 28-19, beat Novato, 12-7. San Rafael lost to Drake, 17-7, beat Tamalpais, 41-16, beat Novato, 10-0.

POINT SYSTEM

By an ingenious point spread method Terra Linda will finish first (73 points) San Marin second (41) San Rafael third (25) and Redwood fourth (20).

However, there are all kinds of mitigating circumstancew and quirks. For instance, San Rafael was the only team to play Drake when it was at full strength. By the time San Marin got to Drake, the Pirates were without Bob Sutherland, Jim Dominguez, Rod Warnhoff and John Loane. Also, Redwood was the only team to hold Drake scoreless. San Rafael rolled up the biggest score against Tamalpais. Redwood seems to be the only team that had a genuinely tough time winning all three of their games while Terra Linda, San Rafael and San Marin pretty much dominated the contests they won. And so on and so forth.

EXCUSE ME DEPT. — I got my numbers mixed up Friday. That was Tom Fowler, not Tom Nelson, who recovered that fumble in the end zone for San Marin's first score against Drake Friday. Wrong Tom.

DANIELE BOOTS IT AGAIN — Terra Linda extra point specialist Bob Daniele and his kicking unit of holder Mike Sanderson and center Mitch Lang, have captured the Gordon Tovani place-kicking unit award again. They may be stuffed full of certificates by year's end. Daniele booted four out of four conversions in a 28-6 win over Novato Saturday, winning out over Mike Howard of San Rafael (five for six) and Urbano Bouscieguez of San Marin, (three for three).

Incidentally, Urbano's last name which is pronounced Bos-si-gez, came out a little different over the PA system Friday, ringing out loud and clear as "Boskowitz." Urbano, a native of Mexico is of Spanish and French descent but there's no Polish in that name.

FIRST OFFENSE — San Rafael's football team, which has had its problem offensively, finally found an attack Saturday against Tamalpais. Everything clicked and fell into place as the Bulldogs scored 41 points almost three times as many points as they scored in two previous league games combined, and only 15 points off their entire output prior to the game.

CHIVALRY STILL REIGNS — There's still lots of honor and class on the high school field. Terra Linda defensive end Jon Wilson displayed a lot of it Saturday when he helped a pair of Novato runners to their feet on different occasions after downing them with particularly hard and clean tackles.

Believe It Or Not, A Weak Hand Is Sometimes Useful

If you eat your oatmeal and brush your teeth you may never hold as weak a hand as North's. It's just as unlikely as holding 13 cards of one suit. But if you do hold this ghastly Yarborough, let's hope that you're lucky enough to have a partner who can make the most of it.

CHANGE CARDS

When this hand was actually played, the dummy wasn't quite as weak as the North hand shown today. North really held a couple of sixes and a seven, but I changed a few of his cards in the hope of winning the Pulitzer Prize for drama.

South won with the king of diamonds, drew exactly one round of trumps and then shrewdly led his lowest spade. East won with the eight of spades and hopefully returned a club, which was as good as anything else he could do.

Declarer took the ace of clubs, drew a second round of trumps and then cashed the ace of spades, holding his breath as he did so.

BEST CHANCE

Declarer knew he had left a trump out, but his play was correct. There was no danger if each opponent had started with three spades. If either opponent had more than three spades, South's only chance was to ruff his last spade in the dummy. This was possible if the player with length in spades also had the last trump.

South's gamble worked well. West couldn't ruff the king of spades, and East had to follow suit. South ruffed his last spade in dummy, returned to his hand with a club and only then drew the last trump. He could then claim the rest.

CAN'T AFFORD

South couldn't afford to draw two rounds of trumps before giving up a spade. East would return a third trump and would eventually win a second spade trick.

South likewise couldn't afford to take one top spade before losing a spade trick. East would happily lead a third spade, and West would overruff the dummy.

If this doesn't win a Pulitzer Prize, I'll sell the movie rights cheap. An Oscar would look nice on my bar.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q J 9 8
♥—9 8 5
♦—Q 8 7
♣—Q J 9.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two no-trump, the negative response.

A positive response to a strong two-bid should hint at a slam, and you need aces and kings for that kind of hint. Points based solely on queens and jacks are not enough.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1969 with 64 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1929, losses in quoted values on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges came to more than $10 billion. Some high-priced bank stocks dropping from 100 to 500 points.

A thought for the day: German poet Johann Heinrich said, "Who does not love wine, women and song remains a fool his whole life long."

Court Ignored: Pudding Or Pie?

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Godfrey Illingworth, 19-year-old student teacher, was looking forward to the steak pie he was carrying home for supper.

But suddenly a van pulled up alongside him, a man jumped out, grabbed the pie and drove off.

In a Manchester court David Woods, 22, painter and decorator, pleaded guilty to stealing the pie, value 1 shilling 3 pence — 15 cents. He said he had been drinking and told the court: "It was a pudding, not a pie."

Woods was conditionally discharged.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Sometimes Switch Will Fail To Produce Funds

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My broker advises buying Harbor Fund after selling 75 Northwest Industries, 25 Zenith Radio and 25 Peoples Gas. I'm 79 and discouraged by the paper losses on my stocks. What's your advice? — M. B.

A. Your broker is recommending an income fund that showed strong growth from 1963 through 1968. Net asset value increased 128 per cent and the capital gains payout jumped to $2 in 1968 from a five-year average of 21.6 cents through 1967.

Last February's distribution of capital gains was $1.78. These two unusually high payments reflect the final upsurge in a long bull market and the profit potential of convertible bonds, composing the bulk of Harbor Fund's portfolio. The fund's regular dividend payments since 1963 have averaged 40 cents annually.

Your broker's enthusiasm for Harbor Fund is understandable. But if capital gains revert to the levels reported through 1967, the annual return to you would be noticeably less. The high cost of money adversely affects the price level of convertible bonds, and profit-taking is thereby restricted.

The three stocks you now hold are paying you $189 annually. The proceeds from their sale would purchase a pproximately 312 shares of Harbor Fund. Using the fund's 1963-1967 average payout of 58 cents (dividends plus capital gains), you would receive around $180 a year. Since both your alternatives have speculative overtones, you may be just as well off to hold your stocks for price recovery.

Q. Where can I get some general information on mutual funds? Someone told me there is a clearinghouse that supplies it. — Q. R.

A. The Investment Company Institute, 61 Broadway, New York City 10006, might be called a clearinghouse for the mutual fund industry. This organization collects and compiles figures on the industry's progress and sends out regular press releases on its findings. It also publishes and sells a variety of booklets on the operation of mutual funds and the many ways investors use them for specific goals.

Ground Broken For $250,000 Mobile Home Recreation Unit

Ground has been broken for a $250,000 recreational unit to service the Marin Mobile Country Club on the east side of Highway 101, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

This is a 160-acre multimillion dollar mobile home park being developed by Julio V. Dougherty Realty of San Mateo and financed by Bank of America and its subsidiary Small Business Enterprises Co. The general contractor is Page Construction Co. of Novato.

There are already 170 completed home sites and plans for 340 more spaces to be added by next spring. A large selection of mobile homes priced from $11,000 to $25,000 are now on display.

Homes are angled in separate neighborhood clusters of five spaces to the acre — all serviced by underground utilities, lighted streets and recreational facilities. Landscaping will provide large green areas, shrubs and expansive lawns when the park is completed.

Owner Alfred (Bud) Arenz of Greenbrae offers horsemen and livestock owners hay, grain and horse feed mixes delivered to their stable doors, along with an extensive line of tack supplies including just about everything except saddles and show equipment, stable supplies, veterinary medicines and other equipment. Deliveries are made both in Marin and Sonoma counties.

He also does horse hauling and shipping, trailer electrical work, fence and corral building and repair and has a limited horse brokerage listing service. Hours are from noon to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Closed Sundays.

Market In Decline At Closing Bell

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks declined today in moderately active trading.

Also active were Electric & Musical Industries, Texaco, Atlas Chemical and Occidental. The latter reported a higher third quarter net.

NO G.E. TALKS

Union Eyes Pact At Westinghouse

NEW YORK (AP) — With no new talks scheduled in the crippling nationwide strike against General Electric, union officials began to shift their attention today to the Westinghouse Electric Corp., which faces a Nov. 9 contract expiration deadline.

More than three-quarters of General Electric's 170,000 production employees were out, union and company spokesmen agreed. The nation's No. 4 industrial giant said its 280 U.S. plants would remain open for those who wanted to work, but a local G.E. spokesman in Fort Wayne, Ind., summed up by saying, "We have to have people to produce in this business."

Meanwhile, the strikers' wage demands were called "superinflationary' 'by Fred J. Borch, G.E.'s chairman and chief executive officer.

The AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers, chief among the 13 unions that struck G.E. yesterday, transferred its communications and strike headquarters from New York to Pittsburgh, Pa., scene of talks with Westinghouse.

As the strike went into its second day, the Nixon administration, viewing it as a test of its antiinflation policies, said it will let the company and unions fight it out without federal interference.

Secretary of Labor George P. Schultz said the government will keep out of the G.E. strike except for the voluntary efforts of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. If any war production is stopped, Schultz indicated, the government would consider a Taft-Hartley injunction only against the few plants involved.

Shultz said the Nixon administration had already warned both labor and business not to base wage and price decisions on the assumption of continued inflation.

Scattered incidents of minor violence were reported. In Schenectady, N.Y., three white collar workers were bloodied trying to cross picket lines.

Worker's tires were reported slashed in Evendale, Ohio. Thirteen persons were arrested yesterday in Chicago on charges of mob action or disorderly conduct.

The company said 40,000 production workers were on their jobs, 30,000 of them nonunion. The unions said 90 per cent of their 147,000 G.E. members, nearly all of them production employes, were out.

Borch told stockholders in Minneapolis today that the union's wage demands would force layoffs due to foreign competition. He said the company's offer, rejected in secret ballot votes in local union units, was already inflationary. "To push it up another substantial notch, as the union officials are de-

Pt. Reyes Ranch Due On Block

Another ranch within the boundary of Point Reyes National Seashore has been put on the market for subdivision by an owner fed up with the federal govenrment's failure to complete purchase of the park.

"Our taxes have taken an Apollo 11 flight without a recovery site selected," she said in a letter yesterday to the Independent-Journal in which she complained of the government's "breach of faith and a considerable loss of time and money to all the landowners in this area."

Citing "Years of anxiety caused by procrastination by the U.S. Budget Bureau," she said that she had listed the entire ranch for sale.

She also sent a copy of a letter to John Rutter, regional director in San Francisco of the National Park Service, in which she said the sale would be advertised nationally.

"We have been in the ranch and dairy business almost 50 years and have managed to meet the rising cost by working and doing more to offset the rising costs of production," she wrote Rutter. But she added she no longer could meet rising taxes that shot up after the park boundary was set in 1962.

Legislation is pending in Congress to raise the appropriation for the park purchase from the present ceiling of $19.5 million to $57 million.

Already being carved up for subdivision is the 2,500 acre Lake Ranch. Another 2,500 acres within the park boundary on the Pierce Ranch may go on the market soon, its owner has said.

Cosmonauts Peer Up At Marin Trees

Soviet Spacemen Visit Muir Woods, Tiburon

By DAVID DIETZ

Two talkative Russian cosmonauts dressed like businessmen made Marin County the second stop of a whirlwind Bay Area tour today.

The pair, 45-year-old Konstantin Feokistov, and Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoy, walked the sun-dappled trails of Muir Woods National Monument and later had luncheon at the Windjammer Restaurant in Tiburon.

The cosmonauts, who are touring the United States, arrived at Muir Woods at about 10:30 a.m. accompanied by State Department officials and U.S. astronaut Gordon Cooper. They were greeted by Leonard A. Frank, superintendent of the park, and Arthur Volz, park ranger, who gave them monument pamphlet souvenirs.

While walking the trials, the cosmonauts — Feokistov, a thin, gray-haired man with Nero-haircut, and Beregovoy, a tall, broad-shouldered, dark haired man — asked repeated questions through interpreters about the age of the trees, height and dimensions of the soaring redwoods.

Feokistov persisted about the age of one giant tree, but Volz said that it was impossible to give the true age of the tree without taking a core sample. He estimated, however, that the tree was about 800 years old.

"Why can't we see the oldest tree," asked Beregovoy in Russian. Beregovoy was also told that core samples would have to be taken to find the oldest tree.

At one point the cosmonauts squirmed into the burned-out base of a redwood tree with Cooper and joked for photographers.

Later, passing a quiet grove, Beregovoy said, "It must be nice to rest here on a warm day."

For the third grade class of Mrs. Gladys Bowe at Strawberry School, the cosmonauts' visit proved an unexpected surprise.

"We had planned a little jaunt through the woods, but then we found out the cosmonauts ere coming."

The Russians signed autographs and visited the park's snack bar before leaving for Tiburon in a limousine under California Highway Patrol escort.

Last night, the cosmonauts climaxed their visit in San Francisco with a trip to the Grand National Rodeo, Horse Show and Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace.

The Cow Palace trip highlighted an afternoon for the Russians spent in San Francisco doing just about what every other tourist does in the Bay City.

By ANNE BARDWELL

Charged with plotting to turn part of Corte Madera into a "disaster area" to save its own streets from a traffic overload, the Mill Valley Planning Commission last night postponed action on its proposed North Ridge master street plan for four months.

But, in so doing, the commission challenged its critics to develop feasible engineering alternatives to the plan controlling street access to the undeveloped ridge which divides the cities of Larkspur, Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

The audience of more than 70 Corte Madera city officials, residents and Mill Valley conservationists was almost unanimous in its opposition to the road plan prepared last year by Bala and Strandgaard, city engineering consultants.

Despite the fact that Mill Valley cannot independently effect the road plan since most of the ridge lies in Larkspur, Corte Madera and the county, the commission had declared in February that it would adopt the proposal as its "best thinking" unless there is evidence that other agencies are developing feasible engineering alternatives.

"All everyone says is 'no'," said City Engineer Stanley M. Bala. "As long as this land is in private ownership, it must have a road system. And now we have the chance to develop a good road system before the development pressures really hit us," Bala said.

The controversial plans calls for two major access roads in the North Ridge, one from Corte Madera Avenue in Corte Madera along the ridge to the old railroad grade on Mount Tamalpais and the second from the North Ridge road down Warner Ridge to the upper reaches of Elinor and Upland avenues in Mill Valley.

Sarah Drive, Glen Drive east and west, Tartan Road, Elinor Avenue, Cushing Drive, Upland Avenue, Blithedale Trail and the railroad grade, all in Mill Valley, would be extended to connect the two roads to downtown Mill Valley.

But the major traffic flow, particularly commuters, from the 450 acres opened up by the plan would use the North Ridge road to Corte Madera Avenue-Camino Alto and ultimately to Highway 101, Bala explained.

The North Ridge road would follow the crest Bala said and it would require less cut and fill work than any other route.

Strongest objections came from residents of Corte Madera Avenue who said the plan would require widening and straightening of their street to accommodate the additional traffic from the possible 875 homes in the area.

"Corte Madera Avenue would become a complete disaster area," complained William W. Wood, president of the Corte Madera Avenue Homeowners Association. He noted trees, front yards, back yards and garages would have to be "mowed down" for the wider street.

Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald Usher told Bala: "Sure you think it's a good plan, because it takes all the heat off your residential streets and routes it up onto our residential streets.

"Don't disrupt our streets just

A Hazy Two Months For Lost Marinite

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — The director of a camping ground who turned over Joan Wilkinson, of Tiburon, missing daughter of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, to police reported today that she told him she was robbed of her clothing and money while wandering on France's Mediterranean coast.

But Mrs. Wilkinson was unable to explain how she left her family two months ago, or where she had traveled while being hunted by European police.

Lucien Canal told a reporter: "According to her, her money and clothing were stolen at Saintes Maries de la Mer. Afterwards, she said she worked in vineyards on the Riviera. How long had she been in Marseille? She couldn't answer."

Mrs. Wilkinson remains under treatment at a hospital for undernourishment and general physical weakness. There was no official statement from her physician about her health.

Mrs. Leonie Rolling said Mrs. Wilkinson had come to her door in the camp ground outside Marseille last Thursday, asking for water.

"She was only skin and bones," Mrs. Rolling said. " 'Aren't you hungry,' I asked."

She said Mrs. Wilkinson replied: "Thank you, but I don't accept charity."

In order to make sure she would take some nourishment, according to Mrs. Rolling, Mrs. Wilkinson was offered some tuna fish and apples in exchange for a promise that she would do a bit of work.

The job was brushing down a number of tents. It was at this point, Mrs. Rolling said, that the boxer's daughter explained that she had come to Europe with her husband but did not know how she had lost him.

Canal said he was troubled by Mrs. Wilkinson's "fixed and worried look," and decided to call the American consulate in Marseille. With the assistance of the consular officer and local authorities she was taken to a hospital.

Carter Wilkinson, who came to Marseille to attend to his wife, was under treatment by a physician himself for a stomach ailment and declined to discuss the case with newsmen.

Nixon Says Appropriation Bills Delay Hurts Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon told Congressional leaders today he may find it impossible to submit a new federal budget next January as required by law, unless action on appropriation bills is speeded up.

Meeting with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress, Nixon said work on the forthcoming budget is being hampered because only two out of 15 annual appropriation bills have been passed to date.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, after meeting with Nixon, raised still another possibility—payless paydays for all federal employees after Oct. 31 should the House and Senate become deadlocked over handling of authorization and appropriation measures.

Since the 1970 fiscal year began last July 1, the federal government has been paying its bills on the basis of month-to-month authorizations approved by Congress. The current authorization expires on Friday and Ford suggested there was a possibility Congress would not be able to get together on a similar measure to cover November.

Nixon in his letter noted that the fiscal 1971 budget already is being prepared.

"Unless the congressional pace is sharply accelerated," he wrote, "it is clear that many appropriation bills will not pass in time for federal agencies to assemble the voluminous details necessary to meet the budget deadlines."

Declaring that action by Congress on appropriation measures "must be substantially completed within the next few weeks," the President said:

"If this is not done, it may be impossible for me to transmit the 1971 budget in January."

Apollo 12 Launch Rehearsal Finished

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The launch crew today successfully completed a countdown rehearsal for next month's launching of the Apollo 12 moon landing mission.

The lengthy test, which began last Wednesday, was completed with a simulated blastoff of the 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket at 11:25 a.m., two and a half minutes late.

President's Wife, Daughter Are Ailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, stricken last night by a 24-hour virus, has been advised by her doctor to cancel appearances for the next two days, including campaign visits with the President to Virginia and New Jersey, the White House announced today.

Her daughter, Julie Eisenhower, was stricken with similar symptoms at her apartment in Northampton, Mass., it was announced.

Pepper Urges $1 Billion Fund For Crime 'Crisis'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crime in America "has reached crisis proportions" and the federal government should establish a $1 billion fund to fight it, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., said today.

The congressman, chairman of the House Select Committee on Crime which is conducting a nationwide series of hearings on dangerous drug abuses, told the Commonwealth Club, "perhaps not since frontier days have Americans known such fear."

One of the most critical phases of the crime picture is drug abuse, he said, and "the public is just waking up to what is going on.

"The evidence before our committee documents that 50 per cent of the dangerous drugs that are produced in the United States fall into the illegal market and are used for non-medicinal purposes, primarily by young people," he added.

Pepper's committee ended the San Francisco phase of its investigations yesterday after hearing a witness declare the federal government goes only half way in efforts to solve the drug abuse problem.

Roger C. Smith, a criminologist with the local Haight-Ashbury Clinic, testified that the government will spend money on research but provides practically nothing once the problem is defined.

San Francisco Police Chief Thomas Cahill told the committee that thousands of American youngsters are trapped in a desperate predicament caused "by the availability of narcotics,

Congress Relents On Marin Research Fund

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Severe budget cuts for the Marine Minerals Technology Center in Tiburon have been partially restored by the House of Representatives in an appropriations bill awaiting the signature of President Richard M. Nixon.

The administration had asked $878,000 for the center, a sharp drop from the $1,478,000 it got last fiscal year, but the House Appropriations Interior Subcommittee then slashed the figure to $600,000.

Belated pressure from the California congressional delegation saw the amount hiked back up to $878,000 by the Senate and agreed to by the House, which approved the Interior Department's $1,380,375,300 budget for 1969-70.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, who was among those who fought successfully to restore the $278,000 cut by the House, reported that the President has until tomorrow to sign the bill, or it will become law anyway.

A clearly pleased Arthur P. Nelson, research director at the center, told the Independent-Journal that the restored money meant "we can increase the scope of each one of our projects considerably."

He conceded that research generally will be restricted to the center now that there was too little money to operate the center's ships, but said future budgets probably will allow for more ocean research.

He said he had a staff of 94 persons last year, but was down to 36 now because of the budgetary fight in Congress. The restored money will allow him to add 10 employees, but he said most of the previous staff had joined private industry and no longer was available.

"We were hurt, there's no question about it," Nelson said about the budget fight.

Marinites Get Medal For Son

Pfc. Thomas A. Cincotta of San Rafael, killed in action in Vietnam June 28, was posthumously awarded the Silver Star yesterday in ceremonies at the Marines Memorial Club, San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Serge Cincotta, 531 Fairhill Drive, accepted the medal for their son. Making the presentation was Maj. Gen. Carl C. Owens, commanding general of the Third Marine Air Craft Wing at El Toro Marine Corps Base.

Cincotta, 18, a 1968 graduate of Marin Catholic High School, was honored for "conspicuous gallantry" during Operation Utah Mesa when he deliberately drew enemy grenades to warn his companions of a concealed Viet Cong bunker.

Supervisors May Force Firings Of Both Dr. Miller, Dr. Wilson

The firing of both Dr. Donald P. Wilson, director of the mental health center, and Dr. Clyde G. Miller, director of community mental health services, loomed as a possibility today, as the Marin County Board of Supervisors met behind closed doors again.

On Sept. 30, the supervisors suspended Miller for 30 days with pay, and asked Marin General Hospitals board of directors to suspend Wilson. The hospital board refused.

However, the Independent-Journal learned today that the supervisors are counting on the wording of a contract with the hospital district, which gives supervisors the authority to "jointly appoint" the clinical director (Wilson). This joint appointment is renewable each September. The supervisors have refused to join in the appointment this year, and thus hope to exercise a veto power over the hospital board.

The supervisors have scheduled another closed meeting with the hospital board tomorrow for a decision on what to do with Wilson, Miller or both.

Small Viet Fights, Heavy Bomb Raids

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces killed nearly 100 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in fighting across South Vietnam late yesterday and early today, and U.S. B52s pounded enemy base camps with 500 tons of bombs, along the Cambodian border north of Saigon, and also soutn of Da Nang, the U.S. Command reported.

Casualty reports listed two Americans wounded. Although no American dead were announced, a U.S. spokesman said there probably were some killed in small actions not included in the communiques.

U.S. forces killed 18 enemy in two small fights in provinces along the border, 12 of them in a clash a few miles from where the B52 raids hit.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 32 enemy killed in two Mekong Delta battles 127 miles southwest and 113 miles west of Saigon. It said government casualties were "very light."

In the northern provinces, elements of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division battled a company-size unit Monday 21 miles west of Hue. Vietnamese headquarters said 23 enemy soldiers were killed at a cost of two wounded.

The South Vietnamese government announced that it will release 24 prisoners of war tomorrow but said this was not in response to the Viet Cong's announcement that it would free three U.S. soldiers.

A government spokesman said all the prisoners are former Viet Cong who are being released for "humanitarian reasons" and because of their good behavior while in prison camps.

For the second time in a week, Hanoi charged today that the United States had bombed North Vietnam in violation of the U.S. ban on such attacks, radio monitors in Tokyo reported.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said in a broadcast, that U.S. planes and artillery units shelled Quang Binh Province, north of the demilitarized zone, on Oct. 16, 18 and 21, causing "losses of life and property to the local population."

Link To Hanoi Sees POW Letter Exchange

CHICAGO (AP) — David T. Dellinger says Hanoi plans to open up a regular exchange of mail between American prisoners of war and their families.

Dellinger, head of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, also declared yesterday the North Vietnamese would release the names of their prisoners, although not necessarily right away.

He said the U.S. peace movement was the only channel Hanoi would use in providing such a list.

Dellinger made these statements in disclosing parts of a plan his attorney said was arranged in meetings with the North Vietnamese in Paris over the weekend. The disclosure came at a news conference between sessions of a U.S. District Court trial where Dellinger and seven other men are being tried on charges of conspiracy to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Defense attorney William M. Kunstler visited Paris at the request of Dellinger and another defendant, Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, Dellinger said. He said he and Davis had been invited to make the trip but were not granted permission to leave the jurisdiction of the court.

Dellinger said the North Vietnamese would release the names of prisoners of war at some future date but that someone may have to go to Paris again before this could be brought about. He said he assumed the names of all flyers shot down would be included.

In Washington, State Department officials cautioned against expectations that North Vietnam is about to release a list of American prisoners it is holding.

The officials added that it is not clear that Kunstler had learned any more than wives of captive Americans who also talked to North Vietnamese representatives in Paris.

Davis told the news conference that North Vietnam also intends to lrease "more detailed information" on conditions in prisoner- of-war camps.

Wreck Claims Ninth Person

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A ninth person has died from injuries suffered when a parked car was hit by another auto allegedly involved in a drag race Sunday.

Stephen Coleman, 25, whose wife, two children and two foster children died in the wreck, died yesterday from burns received when the parked car caught fire.

Police said witnesses reported that a car driven by Dalton Wallace, 26, of Indianapolis, which hit the Coleman auto, appeared to be drag racing with another car which sped from the scene after the fatal accident.

SIFTING QUAKE RUBBLE—Yugoslav soldiers form a human chain to remove bricks in searching for victims of yesterday's devastating quake that practically levelled Banja Luka. (AP Wirephoto)

Tito Visits City Gutted By Quakes

BANJA LUKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito came here for a look at this quake-devastated city today as rescue workers sifted through rubble in search of more victims.

The quakes Sunday and yesterday killed at least 20 persons, injured hundreds, damaged or destroyed almost every building in the city and sent thousands fleeing in panic.

As Tito toured the city's streets, he saw thousands of homeless residents huddled beneath tents or around campfires in parks and empty lots.

Those who did not flee this industrial city of 65,000 stayed in the open, fearing more destructive earth shocks. Officials said a preliminary survey showed only a few of the city's 10,000 apartments were safe to live in.

Engineers made the rounds of standing buildings. They used paint of different colors to mark each structure—yellow for those to be demolished immediately, red for ruins which should not be approached and green for those which eventually may be repaired.

Light tremors shook the city again today, but no further damage was reported.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav government said it would ask the federal parliament to allocate $800,000 to help the stricken area get back on its feet. The Yugoslav Red Cross announced that the United States had contributed $24,000 to aid disaster victims.

Banja Luka's downtown area suffered the heaviest damage yesterday. It looked like a giant bomb had exploded, bringing down department stores, government building and the town hall.

Roads were jammed with traffic as help poured in from all over Yugoslavia.

Brandt Wants Closer Ties With Germany

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt today anchored his new government's foreign policy to improving relations with West Germany's Communist neighbors while seeking a more independent voice within the Western alliance.

He told the Bundestag in a policy statement that West German ties and common interests with the United States "need neither additional assurances nor repeated declarations."

"They are strong enough to allow for a more independent German policy within a more active partnership," he declared.

Brandt also expressed hope "that the war in Vietnam may at long last be ended by way of a political solution that can be accepted by all involved."

He also reaffirmed West Germany's "readiness to take part in the reconstruction of both parts of the devastated country" when the war ends.

Brandt said his government would again offer East Germany negotiations at government level "without discrimination on either side, which could lead to contractually agreed cooperation."

Brandt also emphasized "our fundamental readiness to have diplomatic relations and to increase existing trade relations with all states in the world that share our desire for peaceful cooperation."

In pledging continued loyalty to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Brandt said the alliance "has proven its value in the 20 years of its existence and will guarantee our security also in the future."

Brandt also announced "a critical stock-taking" of West Germany's armed forces to make it better able to carry out its role in the modern world. The results will be presented in a defense white paper which will be submitted to parliament next year.

Natural Gas Does Well In Autos

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state reports encouraging results in the early stages of its experiment that uses natural gas instead of gasoline to power 10 cars in an antismog effort.

Robert E. Nance, public information officer for the State Highways Division, said yesterday that "We've been getting very encouraging readings... enough so there's consideration being given to increasing the number involved in this fleet."

The cars are being used by state engineers to check construction projects in the Los Angeles area. They look like a gasoline-powered car, but their power source is natural gas.

Glycerin is used in lipsticks to make them moist.

Beirut Says New Attacks By Arabs

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese government reported new attacks by Arab guerrillas on Lebanese villages and army posts during the night. The attacks dimmed hopes for negotiations to settle the week-long crisis.

The attackers used rockets and heavy mortars in their strikes on the town of Rachaya and the village of Mashta Hassan. An army post at Aiha also was raided, the government said.

SOLDIER KILLED

One Lebanese soldier was reported killed and four wounded. Three guerrillas died, three were wounded and four were taken prisoner, the government said. It also reported that in the rocket attack on Rachaya, 30 miles southeast of Beirut, a woman was killed when her house received a direct hit.

Intermittent fighting continued this morning at the Aiha army post, five miles from the Syrian border.

Guerrillas occupying the village of Yanta brought in reinforcements Monday night to consolidate their hold, the government said. Yanta was overrun Friday night.

32 LOCATIONS

The presence of guerrillas at Rachaya and Mashta Hassan brings to 32 the number of localities where they have been reported. Since the present crisis began, the guerrillas have occupied four villages in eastern and southern Lebanon.

Earlier in the night, bazookas hit an American oil tank, and shooting and bombs erupted in Beirut as Lebanese officials prepared for peace talks with the leaders of the guerrillas.

Huge flames hit the night sky in the oil port of Sidon after two bazookas, apparently fired by Arab guerrillas, blasted big holes in a 100-000-barrel oil tank.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Blames Role

Political observers had speculated on this possibility, but speaking to labor leaders last night the governor himself made the assessment publicly for the first time.

Introducing the Pepublican governor, Raymond Corbett, president of the state AFL-CIO, said he knew labor "had a friend in Nelson Rockefeller when he did not put the troops on the streets of New York" during the garbage collector's walkout.

Said Rockefeller, "I think that incident-at least one of the factors-cost me the nomination of the Republican Party."

"If I had it to do over again, I'd do it exactly the same way," he added.

The agency said a note to this effect has been presented to the American government by the military regime which overthrew the monarchy last September.

A July Christmas

MIAMI (AP) — Fidel Castro says Christmas in Cuba this year is officially postponed until next July because the sugar crop has first call on the national energies.

Castro gave his countrymen the bad news in a broadcast speech in Havana last night.

Sugar is Cuba's major source of foreign exchange to pay for imports, and Castro has vowed that the new harvest will reach the 10 million-ton mark, more than double the 1969 yield.

Another Fiery Trustee Session

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

A communications gap splintering the Sausalito School District widened perceptibly last night as the board and a citizens group engaged in frequently repetive and often abrasive exchanges on interdistrict transfers, feee breakfasts and the conduct of the board president.

Nobody's mind appeared to be changed but the board approved two transfers into Sausalito from San Francisco, set a meeting Thursday to screen candidates for a new breakfast coordinator and backed president Nathaniel Johnson in his defense of his handling of board meetings.

The lengthiest exchange — popping up throughout the evening — started when Supt. Phillip W. Schneider recommended the district accept two children from San Francisco. Schneider recommended such transfers be approved on an individual basis "up to 25" pupils per classroom.

Barbara Nelson, chairman of Citizens for Excellence in Integrated Education, and other CEIE members seized on Schneider's statement as evidence that he was aiming towards "importing" large numbers of San Francisco youngsters into Sausalito to balance the number of children whose parents have transferred them out of the district.

Mrs. Nelson read a statement saying: "The children presently leaving the Sausalito School District every morning to attend other schools should not be replaced by a large flow of children coming from San Francisco or any other area." The statement urged the board to concern itself with bringing Sausalito youngsters back into the district.

Although it was not stated publicly last night, some Sausalito parents fear the importance of ghetto youngsters from San Francisco will turn the Sausalito district into a completely nonwhite district.

School officials last night said they did not know the ethnic background of the two transfers granted.

Board members, particularly David E. Freedheim, insisted — and Schneider agreed — that each transfer request should be considered individually and Schneider was not recommending recruiting of out-of-town students just to replace those who have left the district.

Members of the audience also expressed fears that bringing in more students from outside the district would cost Sausalito taxpayers more money, but Schneider said it would not.

The transfer debate also sparked an exchange between Johnson and several members of the audience when he said there would be no more "games played" at board meetings. "I'm not going to have any more of the shenanigans that have gone on the last three months," Johnson said.

This prompted a man in the audience to say in a loud voice, "Maybe you better start listening to the people, Mr. Johnson." Johnson replied, "You better hold your seat . . . or leave."

Criticism of Johnson's handling of meetings came up again later — as did repeatedly the transfer questions — when Mrs. Nelson attacked him for accusing the audience of "playing games" and "putting visitors in the role of the child."

The argument sputtered out when Freedheim defended the board's patience and understanding with its frequently critical audience. Mrs. Nelson said she was sorry the debate had become emotional.

Another repetitive exchange occurred during discussion of the breakfast program, canceled last week when Nancy Borgstrom, the coordinator quit, presumably under pressure brought by black youngsters who want the Black Panthers to take the program back.

In this debate, Delta Christ, research chairman of CEIE, and others challenged the board on opening the screening committee for a new coordinator to students but keeping it closed to district taxpayers. The board ended up asking Mrs. Christ to serve on the committee and giving trustee Martha Freebairn-Smith discretion in adding others.

Mrs. Freebairn-Smith said she hopes the breakfasts will be resumed early next week.

Walton Wants Answers From His Critics

Sidney F. Walton Jr., the fiery and embattled black principal of Sausalito's Martin Luther King School, last night declared he might run against Dr. Max Rafferty for state superintendent of public instruction next year.

Walton, under attack for his militant background ever since he was hired by the Sausalito district last summer, raised the possibility in a sharply worded letter to Rafferty and other officials demanding that the reason for and the scope of an alleged secret investigation of him be revealed.

In the letter, which demanded answers to 20 questions about the probe, Walton asked, "Is the fact that I stated that I may run against Dr. Max Rafferty for state superintendent of public instruction one of the primary motives for this investigation?"

The letter was addressed to Rafferty, Dr. Virgil S. Hollis, Marin County Schools superintendent, Richard Watson of the California Teachers Association and Alfred W. Bowman, foreman of the Marin County Grand Jury.

Both Rafferty and Hollis are reportedly conducting investigations of Walton's past to determine whether charges made against him at Merritt College warrant revocation of his credentails. The grand jury also is known to be making some kind of investigation of the Sausalito district but it has not revealed what it is probing. Walton declined to elaborate on the CTA's involvement in any probe.

Copies of the letter went to Sausalito school officials, Assemblymen Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, and John J. Miller, D-Alameda, and Leon D. Ralph, D-Los Angeles, Walton's attorney and the California and National Associations for African American Education.

In the letter, read to the school board last night by board president Nathaniel Johnson, Walton said: "It has come to my attention that an investigation is being conducted and that I have been the subject of a great deal of the inquiry. . . "

He demanded the nature, scope, direction and results of any investigations, the identities and ethnic backgrounds of investigators and anyone who has been questioned.

Rafferty told the Independent-Journal last month that Walton's case was not expected before the state credentials committee "for a couple of months." Hollis, who has denied he is investigating Walton other than looking at his credentials, was asked two weeks ago to stay off the Martin Luther King campus where he and a top aide had been "observing" since the beginning of school.

Tiburon Says Sundeck Must Go On House In A Stormy Session

By CHARLES YOAKUM

In a two-hour battle in which decorum was frequently lost amid rising tempers and shouted accusations, the Tiburon City Council last night "reluctantly" ruled that a nonconforming sundeck on a $60,000 house must go.

The council denied — by deadlock vote of 2 to 2 — an appeal from Lawrence Stotter to allow the sundeck to remain at his 2244 Vistazo East residence.

Councilmen Anne L. Ellinwood and Thomas E. Drohan voted to uphold the Tiburon Board of Adjustment's antisundeck ruling while William R. Bremer and Mayor Branwell D. Fanning supported Stotter's appeal. Councilman Denis T. Rice abstained.

While denying Stotter's appeal, the council officially named the home's first owner and builder, Alfred P. Birich of Tiburon as the real villian and unofficially blamed the city in general and building inspector Philemon V. Scott for adding to the problem.

The council then asked City Atty. Robert T. Conn to study what legal action might be taken against Birich, who sold the home to Stotter allegedly knowing that the home's sundeck was illegal.

Nevers and several other Tiburon residents, urged the council to reject Stotter's appeal not so much because of the sundeck in question but on the basis that if it were allowed to remain, it would open the door up for a "flood of other nonconforming variance requests."

Stotter told the council that the sundeck was built as a condition of sale when he purchased the home from Birich, and Birich never told him it was illegal.

"Weren't you told by the city before you moved in that there was something wrong with the house," countered Nevers hotly.

Stotter admitted that his wife had received a call from "someone in the city" saying that "something was wrong" but that Councilman Denis T. Rice had called and told her "not to worry."

Rice, who admitted making the call, later abstained in the voting of the appeal issue because of it.

Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood then turned the attack from Stotter to Scott. She read an excerpt from a letter she wrote March 3, 1968, to the city's planning commission in which she said there were "several deficencies" in the home then under construction and said that ". . . without prior remedy of these deficencies . . . both the neighboring property owner and the city will rue the day."

Rice admitted that the city had "dropped the ball" in the matter and said he felt that Stotter had not "stepped on the public's toes."

Nevers declared, "There's two violations right there." Nevers then offered a compromise, saying that if Stotter would pay for a survey of the land to determine exact boundaries of the properties involved, he would remove his opposition to the sundeck. He had charged that the sundeck intruded onto his property.

Stotter, however, declined, saying that he knew exactly where the property lines were.

At this Drohan moved to deny the appeal, but the motion was defeated 3-2 with Fanning, Bremer and Rice in the majority.

"The whole thing is fixed," then roared Nevers when it appeared that the council intended to grant Stotter's appeal.

Bremer then moved to grant the appeal, but this ended in the deadlock.

Miss Ellinwood then asked City Atty. Robert I. Conn about a little-known law which said that an abstention was counted as a "yes" vote when a deadlock occurred in disputes where a decision must be reached on an appeal.

Conn, after a brief search, then ruled that the law did not apply in this case, and Stotter's appeal died.

Crowded Ships Bring Leathernecks Home

SAN DIEGO (AP) — More than 3,000 U.S. Marines have sailed home from Vietnam in two crowded ships, the largest group to return at one time since the Korean War.

"Thanks, Dick. It's good to be back" — a salute to President Richard M. Nixon — read a sign painted on a sea bag hanging from the amphibious assault ship Iwo Jima when it moored yesterday at the naval station pier.

Another group of Marines hung a peace symbol painted on a sheet over the side of the assault ship Bexar and gave the peace sign as it docked.

Many of the 3,164 Marines aboard the Iwo Jima and the Bexar were coming home as a result of the President's orders to reduce the number of troops in Vietnam.

Most belonged to the 3rd Marine Regiment and the rest were returning from 13-month tours of duty with other units.

The 7,000-mile, 18-day voyage involved a scramble for living space, said Capt. Martin M. Casey of Coronado, skipper of the Iwo Jima.

"When you crowd that many young, active American males into a steel chateau like this, you worry that the crush will create problems," said Casey. "Especially since we had chilly weather, and the men had to stay below decks a good deal of the time.

"There was no need to worry, though. The men were well-behaved, well-disciplined."

Conditions were even worse on the Bexar, said its skipper, Capt. James H. Barry of La Jolla.

"The Marines practically had to fight for a spot to sit down," Barry said.

"I heard one Marine say that a friend of his had offered to stay another six months in Vietnam if he didn't have to go home by ship."

Aga Khan, His Socialite Bride Take Moslem Vows

PARIS (AP) — The Aga Khan IV, the handsome and wealthy young spiritual leader of the world's Ismaili Moslems, was married today to a British society divorcee in an Oriental ceremony that included a shower of pearls at their feet and garlands of flowers around the neck.

It was the second ceremony for 32-year-old Prince Karim and Lady Sarah Crichton-Stuart, 29. Last week they went through the civil ceremony required by French law.

The bride, born in India of English parents, wore a white and silver sari of Benares silk. The bridegroom, aa direct descendant of the prophet Mohammed, by way of the late Aly Khan and an English mother, wore a white sharkskin sherwani with knee-length coat, an Iranian formal outfit, and a tall astrakhan hat.

Members of the couple's families, a handful of special guests and representatives of the national religious communities of the Ismaili sect were present.

The bridal couple sat on a sofa at one end of the long room. The families and special guests were on other sofas at either side, and the religious representatives sat on the floor facing the wedding party.

The room was a mass of vivid colors, with roses behind the newlyweds and most of the women guests in saris of different hues. The Begum Mohammed Khan, widow of the Aga Khan III, was in a green sari. Among the family was the groom's half sister, Princess Yasmin Aly Khan, the daughter of movie actress Rita Hayworth.

The 40-minute ceremony included recitation of verses from the Koran, a sermon by the rector, the signing of marriage contracts in French and Arabic and prayers. Then the Rani of Hunza, thle princess of a tiny principality in the Himalayas north of Kashmir, scattered pearls at the feet of the newlyweds.

At the reception which followed the bride and groom cut a four-tier cake decorated with the Aga Khan's family crest and bordered with red and green outlines of minaret arches.

His bride is a convert to the Moslem religion. She was born Sarah Crocker Poole and is known to her friends as Sally. At her conversion she took the name Salima.

RIDGE

because you don't want to disrupt yours," Usher said.

He also noted that both the Corte Madera Town Council and planning commission have opposed the plan.

Usher and others also said that Corte Madera Avenue in his town has been removed from the major street plan and designated as a rural road, despite the fact that it is the only through road between Mill Valley and the Ross Valley other than Highway 101.

Several Mill Valley residents, identifying themselves as conservationists, urged the commission to delay or discard the plan to prevent the ridge from being developed.

Douglas P. Ferguson of Mill Valley asked the planners to compare costs of developing the roads to that of buying land.

But Planning Commissioner Ivan S. Poutiatine replied that state gas tax funds could be used to build the roads but not to buy the property."

Commissioners all agreed that they too would prefer to keep the North Ridge open but said that so long as the property remains in private ownership it will be developed and the city has a responsibility to make sure the development conserves the landscape as much as possible.

Others in the audience suggested bridging Courte Madera Avenue and routing traffic directly east to Highway 101 but Bala said the state Division of Highways has prohibited another entrance to the freeway between the Alto Wye and Corte Madera.

Still others argued that the only access to the North Ridge be through feeder streets from downtown Mill Valley. "Keep development helter skelter as roads can be cut up the hillsides," argued Dr. Sheldon Schwebel of Corte Madera. The audience applauded.

manding, would clearly be superinflationary," he said.

At the heart of the walkout is the wage issue. The company offered, but the union rejected, a 20-cents-an-hour increase for the first year of a three-year contract, with provision for wage reopeners in the subsequent years.

G.E. also offered up to 25 cents an hour for highly skilled workers. The average wage for the strikers had been $3.25 an hour.

The unions asked for a 90 cents an hour boost in a 30-month pact — 35 cents the first year, 30 cents the second and 25 cents in the final six months, with 50 cents an hour additional for special skills and a cost-of-living escalator clause. They also asked for protection against what they termed arbitrary dismissals and pay cuts.

Two Militants Get Life Terms

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two brothers, members of the black militant group US, were formally sentenced yesterday to life in prison for the slayings of two Black Panthers at UCLA last Jan. 17.

George Stiner, 23, and Larry Stiner, 22, each were convicted of conspiracy to commit murder and two counts of second degree murder.

Judge Malcolm Lucas postponed until Nov. 17 the case of a third defendant, Donald Hawkins, 20, also an US member, to see if he will be accepted in a detention program of the California Youth Authority.

The prosecution asserted the fatal shootings of John Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, were the result of a feud between the Panthers and US over control of a black studies program at UCLA.

Petaluma Drafts Street Needs List

A list of street projects totaling $80,000 to be funded by gas tax moneys was proposed last night to the Petaluma City Council.

The council said it would not act on any particular project until a street deficiency report had been submitted by City Eng. David A. Young and it is determined how much of the funds must be spent on repairs.

Hoping the city will have $80,000 remaining in funds for capital outlay projects, Young suggested a priority list headed by the improvement of the interdection of D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South by rounding the northeast and southwest corners. Estimated to cost $8,000, Young said the improvements would provide much needed expanded radius for large trucks.

Second on his list was the signalization of East Washington Street at Payran street at an estimated cost of $25,000. "This project you needed two years ago," he told the council.

Curb roundings for a truck route were proposed on Bridge Street at Petaluma Boulevard, East Washington Street at Hopper Street and D Street at Hopper Street. Young said the rounding would cost $3,000.

On East Washington Street west of Maria Drive, sidewalks, gutters and storm drains would be extended over a culvert for $30,000, Young said that perhaps the property owner would be interested in cooperation on the project.

Western Avenue Extension, now an alley near the river, would become a two-lane, 24 foot wide access road. Cost of that improvement from Petaluma Boulevard North to the Water Street parking lot was set at $8,500.

The engineer reminded the council that gas tax funds had already been committed to three large projects that are underway or scheduled to begin soon.

The projects include hhe Washington Street Bridge, traffic signals and street improvements at $263,500; South McDowell Boulevard improvements and signals at $70,500; and Magnolia Avenue improvements and signals at Petaluma Boulevard north, $99,000.

Span Crash Hurts Three Motorists

Two persons were hospitalized and a third treated for a broken nose yesterday after a three-car pile-up on the Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Azizollah Bashi, 31, of San Francisco, was listed in good condition at Marin General Hospital with a whiplash and bruises on the forehead and left knee. A passenger in his car, Meymanat Rezaian, 28, of 376 South Morningsun Avenue, Mill Valley, was reported in fair to good condition with multiple bruises and muscle spasms. Samuel Posner, 46, of 54 Billou Street, San Rafael, was a passenger in the third car in the accident and was treated for a broken nose.

The patrol said a car driven by Hugh Thomas McCann Jr., 43, of 29 Sunset Way, San Rafael, hit the rear of Bashi's car, pushing it into one driven by Richard Paul Bovaird, 46, of 200 Stasia Court, ovato.

The 5.35 p.m. accident was in the northbound lanes of the bridge.

Misdemeanor Charge Filed

Only a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Michael Edward Collins, 18, of Novato, who was arrested Sunday on suspicion of narcotics possession.

His case was continued until Monday for entry of plea.

Collins and three juvenile companions were arrested when neighbors complained to police of a party at 53 Baca Vista.

assorted pills, acid and marijuana."

The committee heard more than 25 witnesses in a probe of what Pepper called "the dirty trail of drugs from legitimate manufacturers to black market operators and to sick kids."

Two more days of hearings will open at Columbia S.C., Nov. 4.

Smith told the congressmen that the drug pattern in the Haight-Ashbury hippie community has changed dramatically in less than three years.

It has progressed from social and ritual use of marijuana and psychedelics to "speed," barbiturates and now compulsive use of heroin, he said.

The need for cash for their habits leads to violence and other distress among drug users and most of them want to get out, he added.

Dr. Ellis Sox, San Francisco public health director, testified there is a growing need for 24-hour treatment centers for drug addicts and for laws allowing teen-agers to give consent for drug treatment without having to consult their parents.

Rev. Leon Preston Harris, pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church in the Haight-Ashbury, described a transformation in the hippie district.

"Good hippies have moved out and drug pushers and rapists have moved in," he said. "I used to keep the church open 24 hours, but now I don't even leave the door unlocked five or 10 minutes."

Trustees Banish Pupil In Lagunitas

A Lagunitas School student was "excluded" from the school last night by the district board.

The board held a closed session to hear charges against the unidentified student and then reconvened in open session and voted to "exclude a student," according to Supt. Marshall J. McCunniff.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the administrative staff, he said.

In other business the board heard a request from the Central Citizens Committee of San Geronimo Valley asking that a room in the old Lagunitas School be made available for use as a sheriff's substation, McCunniff said.

However, the board has already committed the building for a cultural center.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

PRESERVE — Sept. 2 p.m. Nov. 8 as the date to dedicate the Marietta Larsen Memorial Nature Preserve between Lagunitas and San Geronimo Valley schools. The preserve was named for a former school board member.

PLAYGROUND — Set Saturday at 9 a.m. as the final work day on construction of a playground for San Geronimo Valley School. All of the work on the playground has been donated, along with many of the materials.

PERSONNEL — Accepted the resignation of Betty Storz, a teacher of the educationally handicapped, due to health reasons.

Flood Plans Get Kentfield's Nod

Landscaping plans along the Corte Madera Creek flood control channel on the Adaline E. Kent School campus were approved last night by the Kentfield School District board.

Vernon Dean, landscaping engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, told the board the corps will maintain the landscaping for two years. It then will become Marin County's responsibility, reported Roy L. Smith, principal of Greenbrae School.

District psychologist Jack D. Williams told the board that tests show district pupils are working above grade level in almost every area, Smith reported.

The board also approved categorizing teacher aides as classified employees, making them eligible for fringe benefits.

Session On Sewage

The Bolinas Community Public District board will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the district offices to discuss a possible new sewage disposal system.

A Wider Merrydale Road Backed

Merrydale Road in Los Ranchitos should ultimately be 66 feet wide instead of the present 37 feet, the Marin County Planning Commissioners decided by unanimous vote yesterday.

On a motion by Eugene R. Trombley, commissioners set the future width line between North San Pedro Road and Willow Avenue, which is the present offramp for southbound traffic on Highway 101. The state Division of Highways plans to build a new offramp just south of Wiltshire Towers.

The widening will take about 29 feet from the west side of Merrydale Road.

"Why doesn't the county move in and condemn the strip for widening now rather than saying we're going to set a future width line?" asked Walter F. Freitas.

Planner Werner Von Gundsell explained that the widened street is not needed until a new offramp is built by the state, but the county has no way of knowing when the offramp will be built.

John H. Chambers of 127 Merrydale Road said he does not object to a wider road but feels owners should get compensation for damage to their properties. He said the widening will cut off some garages and some to within a few feet of some homes.

Mrs. Howard C. Lee of 163 Merrydale Road objected to widening on the west side alone. She said part of the widening should be on the east side.

James Robertson, county traffic engineer, said the state is taking 20 feet from the other side for highway widening.

Commissioners set the future right-of-way, assuring property owners that this does not imply any dedication of land by owners.

Marin County Planning Commissioners also:

MARINVIEW — Approved one extra lot for the 53-lot Marinview Unit 1 in Tennessee Valley but postponed a decision until Nov. 10 on whether or not to require sidewalks instead of pedestrian lanes within the subdivision.

BOLINAS SUBDIVISION — Approved Sherman Smith's tentative map for Spanish Bit Subdivision of 15 lots on 20 acres at the corner of Mesa and Bolinas-Olema roads on condition that alternate lots will be allowed septic tanks to see how they work, with the rest to await a sewer system or another approval from the commission, and that an equestrian-pedestrian way to be provided at the edge of the property.

STRAWBERRY COVE — Granted Clifford Pedersen of Clipper Yacht Harbor a rezoning of his 20-acre parcel in Strawberry Cove from limited agricultural to planned multiple, with 72 units allowed along the southeast shore of the cove.

Belvedere Youth Faces Hearing

A preliminary hearing for Martin James Fleischman, 19, of Belvedere, was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Nov. 6. He is accused of possessing marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Another youth who was arrested with Fleischman on Oct. 8 pleaded guilty to having an open container of beer in the car. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. set sentencing for Joseph Whitfield Royer III, 19, also of Belvedere, for Dec. 5.

The pair was arrested by Tiburon sheriff's deputies at Town and County Shopping Center for a defective taillight on their car. Deputies said one of them threw a package containing what appeared to be hashish out of the car.

Man, Woman Deny Bad Check Charges

Judi Ann Tomei and Gary Schaeffer, both of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of check forgery and possessing a check with intent to defraud.

A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Planners Reject Feeder Flights At Smith Ranch

Smith Brothers Ranch Airport north of Santa Venetia lost its battle for commercial airline feeder flights in a 4-to-3 vote of the Marin County Planning Commission late yesterday.

After a two-hour debate, the four-man majority voted down Commissioner Eugene R. Trombley's motion that Golden West Airlines be allowed six flights per day by a 19-passenger turbo-prop plane between the airport and San Francisco International.

Commissioners Niels Schultz Jr. and Walter F. Freitas voted with Trombley. Opposing were Commissioners Margaret Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, Chairman Michael Praszker and Jack G. Nixon.

The same four-man majority then voted to approve the use permit granted by County Zoning Administrator Thomas Cordill on Sept. 16, except that orientation flights by owners of the 35 planes stationed there will be allowed.

The use permit authorized by Cordill allows a maximum of 35 planes, but no commercial use or flight training.

The decision was a victory for residents of Santa Venetia and Gallinas Village who came out in force to oppose any expansion or commercialization of the 102-acre private airfield.

Mrs. Azevedo said she was impressed with the services offered by Golden West and its general manager, Dunham H. Seaton, and would have approved the feeder service if the county had made an overall study of air service in Marin and found that ranch airport was the most suitable spot. Without such an overall study and determination, said Mrs. Azevedo, "I don't think we have any business approving any expansion."

Nixon agreed with Mrs. Azevedo that a decision should not be made on a "hit and miss approach." He announced hope that the Marin County Aviation Commission will come up with information on air service needs throughout the county.

Nixon acknowledged the need for feeder or charter flights from Smith Ranch on a one-year trial basis, and then moving the service to Gnoss Field, north of Novato, if it proves successful. Seaton said it would take almost a year to develop the feeder flight patronage, and moving to a new location would force him to develop patronage all over again.

Nixon then asked if charter flights out of Smith Ranch Airport would be feasible. "No, we don't want charter flights," replied Benjamin R. Ostlind, spokesman for the Smith Ranch Airport.

Dougherty and Praszker declared that any commercial use of the airport would be detrimental to the neighborhood.

William B. Loeber, representing Gallinas Village Improvement Association, and Herbert C. Belben, representing the Gallinas Village Community Services District, led the opposition to the feeder service. They and several other individual protestors said they fear that once a commercial airline is allowed to operate, there would be no limit to commercialization.

Among those supported the feeder service was Stanley Goldsmith, president of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

Ben A. Farlatti, president of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, sent a carefully worded letter, urging that the feeder service be given "sympathetic consideration," but with full consideration for the fact that Gnoss Field is the established center for general aviation.

Wording Of Ordinance On Control Fill Hit

A new ordinance to control filling and building in Marin Must be couched in sufficiently general terms to leave Marin County Planning Commission freedom of decision and must place more emphasis on what property owners can do than on what they cannot do, the commission decided yesterday.

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said he would change some of the wording and bring the ordinance back for another discussion on Nov. 10.

Normand H. Traverso, executive director of the Marin Property Owners Association, took issue with detailed description of the purpose of the ordinance.

The present draft of the ordinance lists water pollution, erosion, and destruction of wildlife and scenic beauty as hazards that can result from oncontrolled filling.

Instead of specifying each hazard, Traverso suggested a catch-all phrase like "deleterious effect on ecology." This, he argued, would give the planning commissioners the right to exercise some option on whether or not filling and construction would be harmful or helpful, instead of pinning them down to specifics.

Traverso also criticized the "negative attitude" of the ordinance, telling developers what they cannot do.

Zucker said he will try more positive wording, listing circumstances under which filling will be allowed rather than a series of don'ts.

Harold E. Gregg, president of the Marin Conservation League, asked that fill regulations adopted by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission be incorporated into Marin's ordinance.

The planning staff, however, argued that in some cases, local conditions may not fit the BCDC rules, and therefore local rules should be separate and apart.

Peter D. Whitney, representing the Scenic Roads Association, said tidal waterways should be pinned down by a statement of water elevation such as the mean high water mark so that property owners will know just what portion of their land would come under the new ordinance.

Waldo Giacomini, who owns tidelands along Tomales Bay, got assurance that repair of dikes he has built along Papermill Creek would be allowed under "exceptions" in the new ordinance, which allows emergency repairs. However, commissioners said the construction of new dikes to reclaim tidelands would come under control of the new ordinance.

Commissioners Niels Schultz Jr. and Walter F. Freitas criticized a sentence in the ordinance that says an applicant for waterways encroachment must provide information of sufficient detail "to allow a determination of the impact of the proposal on the ecology . . ."

"How do you determine impact on ecology?" asked Schultz. "Do you need a fish census or a clam census?"

"I don't think it's fair to require an applicant to go to the University of California and conjure up all that information," said Freitas. "Suppose the applicant is some poor illiterate Portuguese or something."

On a motion by Schultz, the commissioners continued the hearing on the ordinance until Nov. 10.

The ordinance would prohibit filling or construction on waterways and tidelands unless an application is submitted and approved.

If the application is for fill or construction on less than an acre, a fill committee would decide. Anything larger would come before the commission.

Guilty Verdict In FBI Killings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A District of Columbia jury has found Billie Austin Bryant guilty on two counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths last January of two FBI agents.

Bryant, a 30-year-old Washington man, was accused of killing agents Anthony Palmisano and Edwin R. Woodriffe in a shootout at the apartment of Bryant's wife. The agents had gone there to question him about a Maryland bank robbery.

Bryant admitted shooting the agents, but said they fired first and he shot back in self-defense. U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell told the jury it would be asked to set Bryant's penalty—life imprisonment or death—on Thursday.

Warrant Is Issued On Cocaine Charge

A bench warrant with bail set at $500 was issued yesterday in Marin Superior Court for Karen Elaine Gowel, 23, of Mill Valley, when she failed to appear in court to face a charge of possessing cocaine.

Miss Gowel is accused of having the drug when booked into Marin County Jail May 5 on traffic warrants.

Money Order Forgery Admitted By Youth

Eugene Richard Rudnick, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of forging a money order April 17 believed to be stolen by a former postman.

Fairfax Refuses M-Day Edict Plea

By JOANNE GRANT

The Fairfax City Council, haunted by the ghost of a 1968 brouhaha, last night refused to declare Nov. 15 Moratorium Day in Fairfax for fear it would appear it was taking a stand on the war.

However, (some) members of the council voiced decidedly antiwar feelings in a dicussion that preceded the 4-1 vote against the declaration. Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson was on the losing end.

The request came from the Fairfax Vietnam War Moratorium Committee which is planning a march and rally on Nov. 15. A letter signed by 35 residents who are members of the committee was given to the council. Hugh O. Winn, a city planning commissioner and committee member, also made an oral presentation.

Winn emphasized repeatedly all the committee wanted was the declaration. "I don't want to ask you to take a stand pro or con on the war," he stressed.

In April 1968, then Mayor, George A. Pagni attempted to pass a resolution supporting the fighting men in Vietnam, an attempt which was one of the most controversial issues of the year in Fairfax.

Pagni won that round by using his capacity as mayor to proclaim the rest of the week to support the armed forces in Vietnam.

Last night, although Mayor Francis J. O'Connell said early he would abstain from a vote on the declaration, he later voted against it. "We were not elected to take care of national policy," he maintained, though admitting he felt strongly about the war "as a parent and as a mayor."

Mrs. Wilson said she had the same opinion at the time of the Pagni resolution came up but now felt differently.

She contended that national leaders would not listen if the moratorium effort was limited to young people and students. "If we expect the kids to do it for us it's never going to be done."

Noting it was really easier not to stand up and be counted, she reminded the council it regularly declared White Cane Day and "National Hot Dog Day."

Priscilla Gray, a member of the Fairfax School District board, told the council a "yes" vote would only be recognizing the day. "People will be demonstrating that day and I'll be among them," she said firmly.

O'Connell maintained the demonstration would be held whether the council declared the day or not.

Councilman Robert R. Souza wondered if the day could be a peace day, to encompass peace at home, instead of a moratorium day, but the committee didn't support that.

Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr reported the committee had been in touch with him about the march and cleaning up and said, "I'm sure they'll cooperate."

He worried, however, about the city ordinance which makes it illegal to be in a park after dark, since the committee is planning a candlelight ceremony.

"It's never seemed to me that we've paid much attention to that," said Mrs. Wilson.

"That's true," Orr replied, but wondered what he would do if someone who is against the demonstration asks that it be enforced.

"How do we have night basketball games in the pavilion?" queried O'Connell.

"You don't have to enforce an ordinance unless you want to, I guess," said City Atty. Wallace S. Myers.

Councilman Frank J. Egger commented the Fairfax council tries to stretch the tax dollar — "Then you look at Vietnam and see the graft and corruption, the waste of dollars and the waste of lives. In short, I'm fed up with this war."

However, he also said he didn't believe it was within the council's purview to take action.

Support for favorable council action on the moratorium day came from several members of the audience, but one was flatly against it.

Lee Nelder, a San Francisco police officer and brother of that city's deputy chief, said, "I think the city council would be out of order if they take a stand on this one way or the other."

He criticized sanctioning breaking the law and reminded the council it was supposed to represent the whole city.

Louis Vaccaro of 21 Olema Drive, — the only other person who spoke out in opposition, said he was against the entire plans, including the march, because he was worried about glass in the Little League Ballpark. However, nothing — is planned in the ballpark.

Souza made the motion to refuse and Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet seconded, his only word during the discussion.

GITA KARASIK

19-Year-Old Pianist To Perform

Gita Karasik, 19-year-old San Francisco pianist, will open San Domenico School's 1969-70 cultural series in a recital at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow in the assembly hall.

Miss Karasik, who first appeared with the San Francisco Symphony at the age of nine, has just won the Hertz Memorial Award and membership in Young Concert Artists, which earns her a New York recital debut during the 1969-70 season.

At the age of 13 she was the youngest winner of the Oakland Symphony and Young Musicians Foundation awards, each of which meant solo appearances with the orchestra.

A long list of other prizes and awards included the top prize of the Pacific Musical Society in San Francisco and the Kimber Award, and at the age of 14 she performed on the nationally televised Bell Telephone Hour.

Tomorrow the young pianist will play Bach's "Fantasy and Fugue in D Minor, Beethoven's F Minor Appassionata Sonata, Chopin's Nocturne in F Major and a group of contemporary selections.

Wallace Plans To 'Observe' Asia

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace, 1968 third party presidential candidate, says he will function "strictly as an observer" on his trip to Vietnam and other Southeast Asian countries.

Wallace told a news conference yesterday that the trip had no political implications and was intended to be only a fact-finding tour.

"I'm going there with an open mind to acquaint myself with conditions existing politically and militarily in that part of the world," Wallace said.

The former Alabama governor said he plans to leave Thursday on the trip which will include visits to U.S. officials and foreign dignitaries in Formosa, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand, Cambodia, South Korea, Laos and South Vietnam.

Fire Chief Balked On Naming Third Captain

A request from Fire Chief Charles F. Thornton to promote a fireman to captain erupted into a heated discussion among Fairfax city councilmen last night.

The subject had been discussed in a closed session at the last council meeting, but some members of the council weren't ready to drop it.

"I feel this is a perfect example of what happens when a city council tries to administrate," said Councilman Frank J. Egger in disgust.

He pointed out that when examinations were given for the position in April, only one of three men passed. "We added four points to each applicant's score, which had all three passing," he said.

He said that Thornton's request had been turned down in budget discussions last summer and said he believed further council action "would not be beneficial."

"On what grounds would it not be beneficial?" demanded Thornton.

Egger reiterated that only one had passed.

Councilman Robert R. Souza said he believed it "would have been helpful" if the test had been given by the state personnel board.

Councilman Adelaide P. Wilson commented on the difficulties of getting a promotion in Fairfax. "You practically have to spill blood," she said angrily. "We're playing games with people's careers."

Egger pointed out the promotion would mean there would be three captains, a chief and three firemen in the department.

However, Thornton explained there are also 20 volunteers when the department is at full strength.

Mrs. Wilson said Thornton believes George Hettema is "excellent" as a fire prevention officer and Jean Lestanguet, husband of the city administrator, can do the job of shift captain.

"If you don't believe him, I think you should fire him," she said flatly.

"When were four points added to the examination?" asked Egger.

"Answer that, council," demanded Souza.

"You've said it is very common," Mayor Francis J. O'Connell told him.

Thornton said nine points were added to the last fireman's test and maintained the adding was done by the state personnel people, not by Fairfax.

A motion by Councilman Cornelis Van Vliet to approve the chief's request was approved 3-2 with Egger and Souza voting no.

A substitute motion by Souza to table the matter also lost by a 3-2 vote with the same line up.

The Fairfax City Council Also:

FESTIVAL — Heard a report that the city's costs for the Fairfax Festival exceeded $988 and set an adjourned meeting on the matter for 8 p.m. Nov. 24 in the Women's Club.

PERSONNEL — Hired Allen Wernstrum of San Rafael as a police officer at $4 an hour.

OVERTIME — Postponed to the next meeting action on a request for additional funds for overtime in the police department.

SHORT STOP — Adjourned to a closed session to discuss pending litigation against the city by Short Stop Market and emerged 34 minutes later without reconvening.

Sonoma Teeners Held On Charges

Two teen-age boys were arrested in San Francisco last night on suspicion of burgling a Petaluma home and stealing a car.

Booked into Sonoma County Juvenile Hall in Santa Rosa were Keith Allen Flach, 16, of Santa Rosa, and James Stull, 16, of 408 Mountain View Avenue, Petaluma.

Police said the pair had broken into the home of Fred Crikos, 891 Olive Street, last month and took three rifles from a gun case. The 1964 Chevrolet owned by Crikos was reported stolen from the home Sunday and recovered the same day by Sunnyvale police. The stolen rifles were found in the car.

Sausalito Lions Set Halloween Parade

Sonoma Asks Improvement On Highways

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday recommended that the state Division of Highways consider five improvement projects in the south county area including the widening of Highway 101 from Marin County to Santa Rosa.

Supervisor George T. De Long of Petaluma said the freeway traffic is already becoming prohibitive and that widening to six lanes is inevitable. "We must ask them to plan now so that the widening won't be done at the expense of the communities involved," De Long said.

The recommendations also included enlarging the Highway 101 interchange at East Washington Street in Petaluma to accommodate a larger traffic flow. The new Highway 101 interchange at the Rohnert Park Expressway was included on the list, but Donald B. Head, director of public works, noted that plans have been completed with construction due to start early next spring.

Also recommended was the beginning of studies to bring Route 116 from Highway 101 near Petaluma to Route 121 to freeway status. The study was recommended to include 11 miles of roadway.

For long term planning, the board suggested studies for a freeway location on Route 116 from Highway 101 near Cotati to Monte Rio.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Mercy Street' Due Scant Compassion

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne Sexton, winner of the 1967 Pulitzer Prize for poetry, attempts drama with more ardor than success in "Mercy Street," a merciless test of audience patience unveiled for review last night at the American Palace Theater.

Mrs. Sexton uses much agonized metaphor and tormented syntax for her quasireligious story about an unsavory clan of once-proper Bostonians. It all manages to come out both tediously obvious and pretentiously obscure.

The central character, played by Marian Seldes with the disciplined hysteria that is her speciality, first appears during high-altar ritual, begging for the redeeming wafer and wine of Eucharist. The priest takes it himself instead, an inversion that signals the start of some archey convoluted scenes.

A procession of deceased relations appears to parade sordid family skeletons of bankruptcy, alcoholism, incest and madness. Mrs. Sexton is more absorbed in manipulation than meaning, in theatrical affectation than coherent comment.

Despite clouds of incense, liturgical intonations and indulgence in abruptly rude moments of biological candor, "Mercy Street" defies audience involvement.

The cast principals other than Miss Seldes include Jerome Raphel, perhaps priest as well as psychiatrist; Virginia Downing and William Prince, parents of the bothered and befuddled heroine; and M'el Dowd, imperious great-aunt in contrapuntal agony at one corner of the set in regret over lost love while the central fantasy continues.

'Exploring Marin County' Featured

"Exploring Marin County" is the subject of a special "central touring section" of the fall issue of Chevron U.S.A., publication of Standard Oil Co. of California's Chevron Travel Club.

The article on exploring Marin, as well as several others in the issue, is by Marion Dietrich, former Independent-Journal reporter now on the staff of Chevron U.S.A.

Writer Given Prison Sentence

BELGRADE (AP) — The Belgrade District Court sentenced a Yugoslav writer to six months in prison today for an editorial criticizing the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The court found Zoran Gluscevic guilty of offending the Soviet Union, its leaders and its army in an editorial published in the bimonthly newspaper Knjizevne Novine shortly after the invasion in August 1968.

Gluscevic, 43, had called the charges "absurd" and pleaded not guilty. He showed no emotion at the court's decision.

He said he would probably report to work in El Cerrito about the middle of next month. He said that his resignation date was not set and would be at the convenience of Rose.

Eight Seeking Tough Job In Bolinas

(Seventh of eight articles)

In one of Marin County's most active election campaigns — and one which could have important repercussions on the development of West Marin — eight candidates are vying for three seats on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board in next Tuesday's election.

The campaign centers mainly on three issues: The extension of sewage facilities to include the whole community instead of just the downtown village area; future water sources to meet expected demands of projected housing developments resulting from the sewage system extension and money.

Bolinas is faced with a touchy situation. Development of the coastal area has not lived up to original expectations and most blame it on the lack of adequate sewage facilities.

The existing community is generally felt to have too small a tax base to finance the sewage system needed to attract development but it is also felt by many that the development won't come until the sewers do. That leaves the public utility board with the problem of how and when to pay for expanded sewage treatment facilities.

Adding to the urgency of the problem is a cease-and-desist order from the Bay Area Regional Water Quality Board to stop dumping raw sewage into Bolinas Lagoon and into the Pacific Ocean, something that has been going on for nearly 70 years. Some of the candidates have accused the current board of moving too slow in meeting the water quality control board standards.

One possible solution to the sewage problem is being explored with the Stinson Beach County Water District, which the Bolinas district may join to build a $2.3 million sewage system. That is under intensive study by both communities and by the county.

Another issue facing the candidates is future water needs. Although the area's small population currently has adequate water supplies, few feel it has enough to meet demands of the expected growth of the 1970s. One of the main tasks of the new board will be to continue exploring possible new sources of water for the district.

The eight candidates are:

FRED E. DAVIS, 60, of Aspen Road, is an incumbent; he has served on the board for 22 months. A handyman by trade, Davis also has been a trustee of the Bolinas Fire Protection District for two years.

He says "maintaining and improving the district" are the most important functions of the board, adding: "We want to get more water supplies. We've got to get the sewage deal going."

Charles G. Hadley, of 196 Rosewood Road, has been hospitalized for several days and was not available for comment on the election. Hadley is a former trustee of the utility district.

James E. Kerr, 71, of Ocean Avenue, a semi-retired engineer formerly with Bechtel Corp. and now a consultant. He is a member of the American Society of Professional Engineers and has done a book for the State of California on conservation and fish preservation in the San Joaquin Delta.

He says the big issue is "to provide adequate sewer service," adding: "at the present time, Bolinas is discharging raw sewage into public bodies of water. This must be corrected. At the same time, basically I feel there should be put in an adequate sewage plant to take care of the Bolinas Peninsula requirements."

ALBERT W. MEYER JR., 35, of Mabel Street, a high school teacher in San Francisco. Meyer is a volunteer fireman in Bolinas, vice president of Bolinas Community, Inc., and a bishop's warden at St. Adrian's Church.

"The two major problems facing all of us in Bolinas are sewage disposal and a reliable water supply," he says. "These problems must be solved promptly at the lowest cost to the taxpayers."

ALONZO STEWART NELSON, 60, of Larch Road, an accountant and assistant cashier at a stock brokerage house in San Francisco. Nelson is a member of the Bolinas Beach Community Improvement Club and Bolinas Community, Inc.

In a campaign statement, he says: "I intent to see that sound accounting practices are established; that records and reports are properly kept and promptly filed; to strive, by efficient management, to lower rates if at all feasible; that rules and regulations are strictly enforced; that maintenance is properly and efficiently supervised; that capable men are selected for new installation and repair work; to see whether or not it is advisable to repair old lines or tear out a whole section and install new construction; to work toward a solution to our road problems, particularly in the mesa area." He added that the "immediate problem, of course, is the sewage problem," which demands careful, long-range planning in conjunction with Stinson Beach.

MANUEL S. PETERS, 62, a retired dairyman and incumbent on the utility board. Peters also is chairman of the Bolinas Fire Protection District board.

On the district's problems, he says, "I'll do the best I can. The sewer system is something the district has to live with. I'll try my best to give people the lowest price solution to the sewage problem."

CLEM C. SLATER, 36, of 355 Vine Road, is a workmen's compensation representative in Santa Rosa. He is a member of Bolinas Community, Inc., and the Marin Conservation League.

Slater said the main issues are how to meet the regional water quality standards and what area the new assessment district will cover when an expanded sewage system is approved. He said ideally, the entire Bolinas area would be sewered, adding, "It may run into millions but it would be to the community's best interests. There will be need for additional water if areas other than the immediate village come into any program. New subdivisions should become part of the (sewer) district." He said there "obviously is going to be a building boom in the area" and the district must prepare for it. "The most important thing now is to stop dumping raw sewage into the lagoon and the ocean," he said, adding he felt this should already have been done by past boards.

He is a former president of the Bolinas Improvement Club, former president of the utility district board, former manager of the district, former Bolinas fire chief and former Marin County fire warden. He is currently a member of the fire department and Bolinas Community, Inc.

Attempts to reach Smith for a camapign statement were unsuccessful.

Defendants Win Mansfield Suits

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal court jury has ruled for the defendants in three suits for $8.7 million in damages arising from the highway crash which killed actress Jayne Mansfield.

Miss Mansfield died when the car in which she was riding rammed into a truck June 29, 1967, on the outskirts of the city. Also killed were her lawyer, Samuel S. Brody of Los Angeles, and their driver, Ronnie Harrison of Biloxi, Miss.

The truck driver, Richard Rambo of Pensacola, Fla., said he had reduced speed because of a warning light on a city-owned mosquito spraying truck driven by James T. McLelland.

The jury, named to assess liability in the accident, found that Rambo was not negligent, that McLelland was negligent but that this was not a "proximate cause" of the crash, and that Harrison was negligent.

Novatan Denies Theft Of Seven Chain Saws

Kenneth James Hough, 22, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court of burglarizing a San Rafael landscaping firm Thursday. A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Police said they arrested Hough and a 16-year-old companion after they were found near the Turf and Tree firm at 625 Grand Avenue. They are accused of taking seven chain saws valued at $2,200.

Suspect Denies Burglary Charge

Robert John Fleeks, 40, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of burglary and possessing stolen property stemming from the burglary of a San Rafael business last May.

A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Fleeks was arrested last Wednesday in a San Rafael bar by officers who recongized him. He is accused of storing about $1,700 worth of cash and loot taken from the Tone-Tex Specialities Co. in his residence.

Space Scientist Chief Leaving

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The man who directed the first study of moon rock says he is resigning from the space agency after learning an engineer is to take his job.

Dr. Persa R. Bell, director of the moon labortory and a recent critic of the space agency's lunar plans, said yesterday the space agency engineers "feel they should have firm operational control of the laboratory."

"It's time for the guys who organized it to move on," he added.

Bell, who has worked for the space agency for two years, said he would leave in mid-January to return to the Oak Ridge, Tenn., National Laboratory to do theromonuclear studies. He worked in Oak Ridge before joining the space agency.

Trial Slated On Weapons Possession

Stephen Michael Weeks, 22, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing a dagger and a billy club and disturbing the peace.

A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 19. He is accused of having the weapons on Aug. 1.

Innocent Plea

Paul Ross Mushen, 19, of Sausalito, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to possessing a dangerous drug Aug. 28 in Sausalito. A jury trial was set for the week of Dec. 15.

Trial Scheduled On Stolen Property

Bartlett Cannon Tucker, 54, a San Anselmo junk and antique dealer, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of receiving stolen property. A jury trial was set for the week of Feb. 9.

Tucker is accused of buying silverware and jewelry stolen from the home of Ramona C. Wayland in San Rafael on May 4.

Then there's our real showstopper: our 12:00-noon Chef's Gourmet Flight to New York from San Francisco. It's First Class. The most magnificent restaurant in the sky. With appetizers like Glazed Chinook Salmon. And entrées like Beef Wellington, a whole filet of beef, nestled in a delicate pastry. There's even a special version of our Chef's Gourmet feast in Coach Service, complete with 5 beautiful courses. (Our Chef, John Wolfsheimer, is the happy man in the picture.)

That's our Broadway lineup. And it's beautiful.

But United also performs off-Broadway. With nonstops to major cities all across the country.

And, remember, United is the only airline that flies east from all 3 Bay Area airports: San Francisco, Oakland, and San Jose. That's quite a lineup in itself, wouldn't you say?

Panel Will Check Marin's Traffic Woes

Marin's tangled traffic problems will get an on-the-spot inspection next month by the men who can unravel them as the California Highway Commission holds its monthly meeting in the county.

The commission will meet at 10 a.m. Nov. 20 at the Civic Center and will continue through Nov. 21 as long as it takes to finish its business, the commission's secretary, T. Fred Bagsaw of Mill Valley, said yesterday.

Bagshaw was one of a series of speakers yesterday at the Holiday Inn for a meeting on Marin highway priorities by representatives of the California Chamber of Commerce, the state Division of Highways and the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Bagshaw recalled a hearing of the highway commission with the board of supervisors a few years ago which ended in a deadlock. He said he believes it is time for the commission to return to Marin because of the changes in the makeup of the board, but did not elaborate.

Also discussed yesterday was the possibility of diverting gas tax funds from highways.

Robert Bishop of Santa Rosa, regional vice president of the state chamber, warned, "I don't think you've heard anything yet, compared to the efforts that will be made to reallocate and redistribute gas tax funds."

He predicted Southern California legislators would lead the fight to divert the highway funds.

A representative of Citizens for Freeways and Highways, a San Francisco based group, reported the organization planned to begin publishing a newsletter Feb. 1 to report on diversion efforts.

Alan Hart, district 4 engineer for the division of highways, reported on progress of last year's recommendations for priorities, most of which are on this year's list.

The top priority last year was the new viaduct through San Rafael which is under construction, moving last year's second priority, a freeway through Novato, to the top position.

The Novato project, he said, will probably be funded in the 1971-72 fiscal year. This year, $500,000 was included in the highway commission budget, to purchase right-of-way for the project.

He indicated other priorities are in approximately the same position as the Marin recommendations which were approved last Tuesday by the board of supervisors.

Donald A. Beacock of the Marin County chamber highway committee spoke briefly on the new priorities and announced next year Highway 17 from Highway 101 to Point Reyes Seashore would be a major area of concern for the committee.

"Apathy seems to have set in" on the plans for Highway 17, he commented.

The project has been in limbo for about three years after the board of supervisors ordered a balanced transportation, Hart said. He reported the study is due in mid-1970.

The group took no action on the priorities presented because they have already been approved by the board of supervisors who accepted essentially the same priorities as recommended by the chamber committee.

Two Closed Sessions Set

Two closed sessions by Marin Hospital District directors have been set when the board meets at 8 p.m. today at Marin General Hospital.

One will be to discuss salary and fringe benefits with its representatives in employee wage negotiations, and the other to get the evaluation committee's report on the Marin County Board of Supervisors' request that Dr. Donald P. Wilson, director of the Community Mental Health Center, be suspended.

The supervisors asked for his suspension on Sept. 30 when they suspended Dr. Clyde G. Miller, controversial director of mental health services for the county.

Costume Parade For Halloween

A Halloween costume parade sponsored by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department will be held Friday, weather permitting, starting at 7 p.m. at the Greyhound bus depot parking lot on Miller Avenue near Lytton Square.

Prizes will be awarded to children wearing the most original, scariest, funniest, prettiest and best witches costumes.

Judging will be held at the Boyle Park tennis courts or at the Park School auditorium if it rains.

Hundreds To Join Drive For UNICEF

On Friday night, hundreds of Marin youngsters will forgo Halloween trick or treating to collect money for poor children around the world.

The youngsters, who can be identified by their official collection cartons, will be soliciting funds for the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund. A large part of their collection will go to the children of Biafra and Vietnam, according to Mrs. Harold W. Kling, Marin County UNICEF chairman.

More help is still needed in the fund drive, especially from youngsters in the San Rafael school district, said Mrs. Kling, who asked interested persons to call at her home, 37 Buena Vista Avenue, Corte Madera.

The chairman urged Marin residents to remember that as little as 10 cents can provide 50 glasses of milk, while 25 cents can buy a basic education kit for a primary school child.

Four Marinites To Exhibit In Show At Center

Four Marin artists will be among exhibitors in the "People Who Need People" art show Nov. 7 through 9 in the Carolyn Livermore Room at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Gwen Stone, known for her work in collage and her abstracts and winner of 27 awards, will display eight to 10 of her works. Jeane Nobel of San Rafael will show her works in oil and acrylic of old mission scenes.

Pastels by Marcella Winer of Mill Valley and oils of children by James E. Lannert Jr., of Fairfax, will be displayed at the show which will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is sponsored by Village Frames of Fairfax.

HAUNTED AND TOPSY TURVY

Everything is upside down in this room in the Haunted House. The right side up people are Mrs. Ruben Valtierra and Blair and Mack Winters studying the ghoul (Mrs. Dietrich Stroeh) haunting the room from under (?) a bureau. The Haunted House, located at Grand Avenue and Linden Lane in San Rafael, is open for Halloween fun from 3:30 to 9 p.m. daily through Friday, when haunting hours are 3:30 to 6 p.m.

MRS. GEORGE Burnwell pulls back so two visitors on a terrifying tour of the Haunted House can see Frankenstein and his ghastly bride preparing to cut their wedding cake in another of the 25 frighteningly real rooms of the house, sponsored by the Jolly Rogers Chapter of the Children's Home Society. All proceeds from sixth annual eerie event are donated to the society, a nonprofit adoption agency.

HOW TO STAY MARRIED

Sharing Some Common Goals

First of a series by Norman M. Lobsenz and Clark W. Blackburn, general director of the Family Service Association of America.

There is no such thing as an "ideal" marriage. The very adjective implies a perfection that is not applicable to human relationships. Moreover, what may seem ideal to one couple may be intolerable to another.

Marriages can, however, be happy, satisfying, successful, and rewarding. Although it is not realistic to compile a list of the specific ingredients of such marriages, it is feasible to pinpoint the common elements that characterize them.

These would include the ability of the husband and wife:

1. To communicate with each other.
2. To be mutually interdependent.
3. To meet each other's practical and emotional needs.
4. To work and play together, and to plan, meet, and solve their problems cooperatively.
5. To share the duties and pleasures of parenthood.
6. To take pride and pleasure in each other's accomplishments and sense of self-esteem.
7. To be productive members of their community as individuals and as a couple.
8. To respect each other's views.

IT IS FUTILE to try to adapt your own marriage to outside standards and what applies to patterns retained from the parental home goes even more emphatically for those observed in the marriages of friends or neighbors. Sometimes it is tempting to copy the ways of friends who seem to have better marriages. But those friends are different people with different needs. And what appears to be a desirable relationship may not be so under the surface.

One way to avoid some of the outside pressures and false standards in marriage is to combat in a broad way the entire concept of social conformity, to accept that it is not always necessary to be like other people. Take pride in your individuality.

This sense of individuality, is in many ways essential to another key factor in any meaningful marriage. It makes it possible for a man and woman to achieve a sense of identity as a couple.

Marriage is often defined as the making of two people into one. The question arises, however, as to which "one" the two become. To some the idea of "union" may imply that one person must totally accommodate himself or herself to the other, thereby virtually ceasing to exist as an individual.

But mere connection is not identity. Nor is identity sameness, with the consequent loss of uniqueness. Identity as a couple can perhaps best be defined as a sense of family unity, a feeling of belonging together and of developing ways to face the world together.

IDENTITY AS a married couple exists when a man and wife stop thinking of themselves as "she," "he," "you," and "me" — and start to think of themselves as "we" and "us."

It might seem to be a paradox, but coexistent with family identity as a factor in meaningful marriage is the concept of individual growth: Often, the ability of husband and wife to develop as mature individuals enables them as a couple to establish a sense of marital unity.

People starting out in marriage stand on the threshold of an experience that will demand changes from them: changes in character, in ways of relating to each other, in the roles they assume and discard.

Individual growth that enables a spouse to meet these changes aids the growth of the marriage. It allows the relationship to deepen and the essential communication between the partners to flourish. It gives them more to share and affords them more opportunities to be proud of each other's accomplishments.

The honeymoon and the first months of marriage are the crucible in which two people with two different patterns of behavior attempt to work out a single new pattern with which both of them can be comfortable.

THE NEWLY marrieds must face such "first-time" situations as dressing and undressing in each other's presence, or performing toilet functions in close proximity to each other.

The bathroom in particular seems to be the place where differences in cleanliness, neatness, and consideration for others come to the fore.

Like the young wife reduced to tears because her husband neglected to turn the bathroom shower knob to "tub" position after he used it. When she went to take her bath, the unexpected downpour drenched her.

It may be that the bathroom intensifies adjustment problems because throughout life it symbolizes our intimate functions. But some of the concern about bathroom habits may actually be the projection of subconscious anxieties about sex or sexual adequacy. Also, since the bathroom is one's "personal" domain, intrusions there may be taken as personal affronts.

The bedroom is another place where surprises await the honeymooners. The simple sharing of a double bed creates a problem for the person who has always slept alone or who is used to stretching out in all directions.

THE POINT IS that during the first year of marriage a couple is in the process of making many such adjustments about "closeness" and "separateness," and the surface problems are the ground on which they act out emotional differences.

Consequently, each of the partners must go through a kind of learning experience. In essence, it is nothing more mysterious or difficult than becoming truly aware of the other's presence.

Premarital counseling, no matter how effective, cannot prepare a bride for such problems as: Who sleeps on which side of the bed? Does her husband like his fried eggs soft or hard, and is what he means by "hard" the same as what she means by it? . . . Does he expect her to decide when his suits need to go to the cleaners? . . .

Take the spending of money. It may be hard to think in terms of "our" money when previously each has thought first of his own needs. The man, accustomed to spending all his income on himself, now finds his wife has certain demands to make upon it. Decisions about finances have to be made jointly.

Just as spending money is a joint problem, so is the spending of time. Instead of planning how they will spend a few hours, they now must plan in terms of weeks and months. Simply being together on such a concentrated basis raises problems of adjustments.

The intense togetherness of the early months of marriage may not be altogether a good thing. Social contact with outsiders is necessary to preserve a sense of balance.

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember about all these first tensions of marriage is that they can be overcome. Misunderstandings, thoughtlessness, selfishness, fear of failure, needs that make compromise difficult — all of these may cause stress but need not destroy a marriage.

Perhaps the most destructive thing is a person's inability to recognize this fact, an inability to accept the strains of the adjustment period and to face the need to change his or her own behavior.

Possibly the most dangerous attitude of all in the adjustment period is the "determination to reform" — to insist that another individual conform to one's own standards. All this does is set up a resistance that only increases the

Lay that monkey wrench down, lady, and listen to the voice of experience when it comes to tools and how to use them.

For housewives faced with the prospect of mini-repairs around the home, Joe Martina, assistant vice president of maintenance for an airline, prescribes a small, inexpensive tool kit for ending frustration over loose screws, bent nails or squeaky appliances.

Martina, whose job is caring for 50 huge jet aircraft, says a mini-tool kit should include:

1. Screwdrivers. One with a quarter-inch blade and with a separate Phillips attachment to deal with regular-sized screws. Ignore the huge mechnaic's-type screwdrivers and leave the teeny ones to watchmakers.

2. Pliers. Strong and plain. Great for disconnecting jammed garden hose couplings or easing a stubborn lid from a can, particularly when the man around the house isn't there to help.

3. Adhesive tape, wide variety and tube of all-purpose glue. In some instances, the tape can be used for emergency first aid and is ideal for pottery and glass repairs. When wrapped around a leaky pipe, tape will stem the water flow until the plumber arrives.

4. All purpose oil can with applicator. Could save fingernails on a jammed window or take the squeak out of a cabinet door.

5. Work scissors. Save your dressmaking shears and have a tough pair in your tool kit for cutting everything from light wire to corrugated boxes.

"For two or three dollars," Martina said, "such a tool kit can easily be assembled. It should also be kept in a convenient spot at all times."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

This house is unreal. I can't take it much longer.

My mother and brother make a point of ignoring my father. He's just someone who brings home the paper every night and the paycheck every week. He's always cheerful and has a smile — but I'm the only one who notices.

Mom won't say hello to Dad. She thinks of any possible excuse to leave the house so she won't have to eat dinner with him. If she can't manage a shopping trip, night classes or whatever, she sits at the table reading, while he eats and acts as if nothing's wrong — while I sit there trying to break the great silence and getting indigestion.

Maybe my father did something terrible, but he doesn't act like it. He's a kind, warm, wonderful person, though a bit stubborn. I love my mother and brother too, and this split down the middle of the family is tearing me to pieces.

Sometimes I feel like screaming, or smashing something, just so I could stop this quietness. But my mother would think I was having a nervous breakdown, my brother would consider me un-cool, and my Dad would probably be embarrassed to death. Maybe they can take this pretend living, but it is driving me up the wall. What can I do? — LIPPINCOTT

DEAR LIPPINCOTT:

I think this great silence needs a crisis to break it — and perhaps your scream might do the trick. Let your family know what they are doing to you. It might shock them into facing their problems as adults. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a young girl of 22, getting old. I've been told I'm very pretty and have a good personality. But I'm continually disappointed in the kind of dates I get.

I want a guy who is terribly attractive, both physically and otherwise. I usually get the otherwise. I know this isn't smart, but if a man isn't handsome he doesn't rate with me.

I'm tired of being single, but I'm afraid I've already passed up my husband who was probably one of those ugly ducklings I turned down.

DEAR FUSSY:

Not a psychiatrist — just a better seeing eye. Attractive people are almost always hooked on looks for like seeks like. Because they fall for the package and not the content, they often end up disappointed.

Learn to recognize the many different kinds of handsomeness (inner as well as outer) and remember the absolutely perfect man exists only in the dreams of young, unmarried females. — H.

Personal to "Miserable": When you smoke, drink, and "sneak out" to prove your parents are all wrong about being too strict, you're proving only one thing: Your parents were right in the first place — you aren't mature enough for the privileges you seek.

Play it their way for the next few months. Then write again, and if things are no better, I'll reopen your case. — H.

problems and tensions. Often, by accepting a characteristic of habit that seemingly cannot be changed by conscious effort, the result will be that the other person modifies his behavior on his own.

For most newlyweds, resolving early frictions caused by individual differences requires: First, communicating dissatisfactions and divergent viewpoints with honesty and with an open mind; second, seeing the other person as an individual rather than as an extension of one's own wants or needs; third, viewing each issue in perspective so as to decide whether it is best to hold on to a particular feeling or opinion, or to give in for the sake of all-round happier living; and, fourth, putting emphasis on growing together rather than on retaining one's own ideas.

Accepting differences is a fact of life, and to love someone is not synonymous with agreeing with him.

When She Began To Hunt She Learned To Cook Boar, Bear

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's hard to envision Viennese-born Joie McGrail as a hunter who has shot black bear and wild boar, and even cooked them herself.

This chic, petite brunette looks more like the fashion magazine editor she once was than half a husband-wife team who spend much of their free time hunting and fishing.

"I DON'T think I cooked very much before our marriage," she said. "When I began to hunt, I began to cook."

She added that she sticks closely to recipes, while her husband "changes everything constantly."

Mrs. McGrail said she collects recipes from her family, and from other hunters and sport fishermen. Their boar and bear recipes came from a couple who own a lodge in the Great Smoky Mountains where they hunted.

The boar recipe calls for only six ingredients—including the beast and 60 pounds of coarse salt for making a soaking brine that has to be changed every four hours for 24 hours.

BUT FEW of the McGrails' recipes are that arduous or exotic.

"We go on party boats out of Sheepshead Bay (in Brooklyn) to catch bluefish," she said. "There's only one recipe for bluefish, in my estimation. You bake it with butter and fresh parsley."

She added that her favorite recipes are pheasant in cream sauce, honey duck and smoked trout, the latter made with a Swedish smoker that does the job in 20 minutes on a kitchen range.

Recipes and stories about their hunting and fishing adventures are in their newly-published book, "The Catch and the Feast," published by Webright and Talley. The color photographs in it were made by the late Mark Shaw, who was White House photographer for the Kennedy administration.

McGRAIL, A sportswear manufacturer, calls himself a thrifty cook who first got interested in the subject as a child.

When his ship was in the Persian Gulf, he caught and cooked a huge sea turtle, at a time when fresh food supplies had run out and only dehydrated products were available.

He cut it into steaks, sauteed them and served them cold with local vegetables.

"They tasted like veal and served 70 men," he added.

Even people who think they don't like game or game cookery are apt to be caught up in the McGrails' enthusiasm. Both agree that cleaning the catch is man's work—"an extension of the hunt," said Mrs. McGrail.

Her husband added that he thinks wives of many hunters and sport fishermen dislike cooking the catch because it has been mishandled in the field or by the stream.

"THE MOST important thing to remember is that the things you catch should be properly prepared before you bring them home," he said. "They should be as fresh as if they came from a market—well-cleaned, cool and, in the case of big game, not dusty from being carried on the hood of a car.

Another problem, one that's hard if not impossible to foresee, arose once when Mrs. McGrail was cooking a duck dinner for a very special friend from Paris and his new wife.

She explained that wild duck for her recipe must be hung five days in plumage, then marinated five days, then cooked for 2½ hours—but you can't tell until 1½ hours of cooking time if the birds had fed on eel grass or fish, both of which create a very fishy odor and taste. The only way to avoid the problem is by skinning the ducks before cooking. But she hadn't, on this occasion.

"At 7:15 the entire house reeked of fish and our guests were coming at 8. I ran directly to the incinerator. Then to the freezer for grackles, which we keep prepared in round cake pans."

GRACKLES ARE blackbirds, a delicacy in Europe but rarely shot here, she said. She added that she sauteed them quickly in butter and served them with the wild cherry jelly and wild rice that had been prepared for the duck dinner.

JOIE AND Bill McGrail are a husband-wife team who spend much of their free time hunting and fishing. Recipes and stories about their outdoor adventures are in their newly published book, "The Catch and the Feast." (UPI Telephoto)

Kettles

The cauldron, or kettle, is one of man's oldest cooking utensils. The earliest kettles were fashioned of sheets of bronze hammered into shape and riveted together, reports "The Complete Encyclopedia of Antiques." Later, kettles were made of cast bronze and from the 16th century on, of cast iron. Aluminum and other materials came into use in more recent times.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1969 19

Shelter Ridge Apartments Due Revision

Plans for 373 townhouses and apartments on the east side of Shelter Ridge overlooking Highway 101 were unveiled last night before the Mill Valley Planning Commission. (Another Mill Valley Planning Commission story, page 1.)

Planners indicated they generally approved of the preliminary plans by architect Charles Warren Callister of Tiburon but urged developer Warner Odenthal to restudy plans for moderate cost housing on a lower portion of the ridge behind Goodman's Lumber Co. on Highway 101.

The higher density moderate cost housing had been left off the plans because it is to be developed as a separate unit, Odenthal said.

Commissioner Edward J. Farrell said he considered the entire 73 acre development one unit and incomplete unless moderate cost housing is included.

Callister noted he, too, supported development of moderate cost housing but questioned the ethics of placing it "in a swamp right next to noisy Highway 101."

Odenthal said he would resubmit master plans for approval at the commission's 8 p.m. Nov. 10 meeting in city hall.

The Mill Valley Planning Commission also: Recommended to the city council that the southwest corner of the East Blithedale Avenue-Camino Alto intersection be rezoned from single family residential to general commercial zone as requested by Lucille and Mortimer Conklin.

The commission received additional economic feasibility data on development of apartments as opposed to single family homes in the Alto Bowl.

Greenbrae Collision Injures Motorist

George W. Casassa, 23, of 130 Via Loreta, Greenbrae, received minor injuries yesterday when his car hit a car driven by Janet Munson Marquis, 40, of 30 Van Hooten Court, San Anselmo, in Greenbrae, the California Highway Patrol said today.

He was to see his own physician. The patrol said his car hit Mrs. Marquis' car as she was turning into a private drive on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Ash Avenue at 4:25 p.m.

THE MARIN PROBLEM

Alcoholic Treatment Units Just Too Late For Some?

By PAT ANGLE
(Second of three articles)

Forty-seven-year old James Windser, a Marin County grocery clerk, has been arrested 140 times in the past 15 years. His crimes: public drunkenness and other alcohol-related offenses.

He has received sentences ranging from a $10 fine to six months imprisonment in the county jail. He is still drinking.

Windser's (not his real name) father was an alcoholic. And his children are beginning to show the effects of an alcoholic parent: in the past two years his three sons have all been in trouble with the law — for drunken assault, drugs and petty theft.

The hundreds of Windsers among the 8,000 alcoholics said to be in Marin may have been lost to recovery by the present drunk tank approach.

"What do you do with a man like this when he comes into your court today?" asks Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of the Marin Municipal Court. "If this individual had received treatment or help when he was younger, there might have been hope; now it is simply too late."

Such a program for help — a halfway house and a detoxification center — are on the drawing boards. But until these programs are operative, the Windsers and the rest of Marin County's alcoholics will continue to add their share of some grim statistics.

Thirty-eight per cent of all police business in the county is concerned with the alcohol abuser, according to Leo Marmol, a member of the Community Planning Group on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse and a staff member at the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

Already overcrowded local hospitals and emergency rooms are being asked to care for intoxicated persons who are too ill to go to jail. As one emergency room physician at Marin General Hospital put it: "We do the best we can, but they take us away from injured and seriously ill patients who need immediate care."

Traffic accidents and fatalities are another cost. Although no figures are available for Marin, on the national level drinking drivers are responsible for 25,000 deaths and 800,000 accidents a year, according to the National Traffic Safety Bureau.

In spite of all the publicity given to juvenile use of drugs, John W. Brewer, Marin County Probation Officer says "Alcohol is much more widespread and is probably a far larger factor in juvenile delinquency than all drugs combined."

In past years, treatment for most alcoholics was limited to pep talks by trusted family physicians or clergymen or a night to sober up on the concrete floor of the county jail drunk tank.

The situation is changing slowly in Marin, but the supply of alcoholics still greatly exceeds the available treatment.

The majority of alcoholics in the county who seek help turn — some all too briefly — to Alcoholics Anonymous which currently has 22 chapters in Marin and about 1,000 members.

AA, founded in 1935 by a drunken New York stockbroker and an alcoholic Akron, Ohio physician relies chiefly on the "buddy system" of encouragement and regular attendance at AA meetings.

Approximately 100 alcoholics a month receive treatment at the Marin Institute, a county-subsidized facility which specializes in group therapy. According to Dan Meyerson, head of the Institute, a drop-in program at the center provides moral support for those who have lost the battle against alcohol.

Although the Marin Community Mental Health Center has no facilities for hospitalizing alcoholics, Dr. Juhan Liikane said the center admits about 10 each month for brief stays because "these people have no place else to go." On a outpatient basis, the center treats about 80 alcoholics at a time.

Other local treatment programs, mostly short-term, are available at Ross General Hospital, Ross Psychiatric Clinic and Synanon House in Marshall and involve about 60 persons a month. Mendocino State Hospital has about 20 Marin alcohol abusers at any one time.

Still, countless alcoholics are not being reached. All over the county, in hotel rooms and mountainside homes, hundreds of individuals are fighting the lonely battle of the bottle — with no help at all.

NWPR Denied Bid To Abandon In Sausalito

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co.'s bid to abandon its Sausalito branch has been denied by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The 7.5-mile line south of Corte Madera "serves a substantial public need," the commission found in its order released yesterday.

But the order also warned industries served by the branch that unless "substantial additional use of the line "comes in the next few years, they should be prepared to adjust their rail needs accordingly."

It was the second time since 1962 that the ICC rejected the company's application to abandon the branch, which the company said was losing money and in need of uneconomical repairs.

But the commission order disputed the railroad's contention that it lost money, and said interim repairs would make the line safe for present operating needs.

The order was a reversal of the ICC's own examiner, who recommended approval of abandonment. The railroad had applied to abandon the branch on July 9, 1968.

The application was opposed by the California Public Utilities Commission, Marin County Transit District, A. G. Schoonmaker Company, Inc., Interbay Lumber Co., Ward Manufacturers, Hercules Glue Co., Colloidal Products Corp., and City of Sausalito.

Favoring the abandonment were the City of Mill Valley and Mill Valley School District, both of whom hope to use the city's tidelands for recreation. The rail line bisects the tidelands.

The railroad had banked heavily on its argument that the Corte Madera tunnel needed major reconstruction at a cost of $1,128,390, but the ICC agreed with the protestants that adequate interim repairs would cost only about $40,000.

The ICC acknowledged "the probability than an extensive rehabilitation program" may be needed in the tunnel at some future time," perhaps in five to 10 years, but it added that "heavy prospective maintenance costs in the future that can be postponed is not a reason for abandonment."

Crash Near Sausalito Hurts Woman Driver

Margaret Amanda Burmeister, 56, of 131 Kinross Drive, San Rafael, was injured slightly yesterday when her car was hit in the rear by one driven by Linda Louise Cox, 18, of 218 Rosemont, Mill Valley, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The accident occurred on Bridgeway at Harbor Drive on the Sausalito city line at 4:35 p.m. Mrs. Burmeister was to see her own doctor.

HAZEL

"Now the Chopin . . ."

Census Manager For 1970 Named

Barbara Hennessy of Fairfax, long active in Republican groups, has been appointed district manager of the San Rafael office for the 1970 census.

She will head a staff of 300 persons when she starts work in January. Her pay for the position, to last about six months, is $917 a month.

Mrs. Hennessy was recommended to the Census Bureau for the appointment by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, after she passed civil service-type tests, the congressman's office reported.

The San Rafael district office will have jurisdiction over Marin and Southern Solano counties, with a total population of about 400,000.

Mrs. Hennessy is a former chairman of the Marin Federated Republican Women.

Garbage Talk Set In Homestead Valley

Homestead Valley Sanitary District directors last night agreed to meet with Mill Valley-Refuse Co. representatives to discuss the possibility of establishing unlimited garbage collection service after the ban on backyard burning goes into effect Jan. 1, President James G. MacNichols reported.

MacNichols said the board will meet with garbage company representatives at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at Homestead School.

Hollis Will Continue Scrutiny In Sausalito

County scrutiny of the Sausalito School District will continue even though "the welcome mat was pulled out from under me," Marin County Schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis told the Marin County Board of Education last night.

Hollis was asked earlier this month to stay off Sausalito district property after teachers at Martin Luther King School reportedly voted on the matter.

Observance of Sausalito began last spring, Hollis said, when William Bradley (Chaka) began teaching at King although he had no credential. Hollis also referred to the Black Panther Party breakfast program and "beatings on the school grounds" in May.

During the summer, Hollis said, he and aide Robert Spain met frequently with Sausalito Supt. Philip Schneider and King School assistant principal James A. Toliver.

When Schneider admitted King had problems and hoped people would come and assist, "I took this to be an invitation," Hollis said.

When King's new principal, Sidney F. Walton Jr., arrived, Hollis said, county school men were encouraged to visit classrooms to observe and report on teachers.

Although he has agreed to stay off Sausalito property, Hollis said last night "we are not withdrawing — I hope that's abundantly clear . . . We have a duty to perform and I will carry it out."

His physical presence on the campus is not necessary to keep watch on the district, Hollis said.

Hollis said Schneider had asked him for the names of complaints about the district but "I saw no reason to name them . . . it was clear there were problems."

As for complaints, the fact that Sausalito lost 140 children in one year, with the loss of $39,000 to $40,000 in state aid, "should be enough reason," Hollis said.

Probation Granted To Teen-Ager

Vicki Jean Wood, 18-year-old Washington state resident who had admitted burglarizing a Belvedere home on Aug. 11 while she was living in Marin, yesterday was given a suspended 90-day jail sentence by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court.

He also declared the offense to be a misdemeanor.

A probation report said that Miss Wood, who was the only person charged with the crime, was probably less guilty than two young men who were not charged.

Since her arrest, the probation officer said that she has returned to Washington.

Water Board Candidate's Fiscal Stand

The Independent-Journal erred Friday in reporting that Alan L. Hopkins, candidate for the North Marin County Water District board, said in a statement of his platform that district expansion should be paid for from a tax increase or a hike in water rates.

His platform is that developers and subdividers — ones who benefit from expansion — should pay for it.

Teen-Ager Denies Check Forgery

Thomas R. Cunningham, 19, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of check forgery. A preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

Cunningham, who was recently released from El Dorado County Jail after a joyriding conviction, is accused of passing a check at a Fairfax food store Sept. 5 to which he signed his father's name.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. yesterday recommended that jailers commit the youth to Marin Community Mental Health Center for a diagnosis after listening to Cunningham's response to questions.

Cunningham had earlier been found sane after a sanity hearing in El Dorado County.

Sometimes News Provides Its Own Commentary

Sometimes the news provides its own commentary:

EIGHTY-THREE PER CENT of Tamalpais High School District residents polled in a Field Research Corp. survey for the district rated teaching written communication skills as "very important" — the highest percentage so rating any of a list of school tasks.

With opening of school last month, the senior English course at Tamalpais High School was eliminated and a series of electives offered in its place.

WASHINGTON, August — Secretary of Defense Melvin H. Laird, announcing cuts totaling $3 billion in military spending, warned, "These cuts will reduce our capability to meet current commitments."

WASHINGTON, October — Total surplus property generated by U.S. civilian and military departments in 1968 was in excess of $2.6 billion, according to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

IN AUGUST, the Fairfax School District board, after eliminating a gardener, cutting down on transportation and maintenance and making other reductions, approved a budget giving teachers a 4.5 per cent pay increase, but promised more if additional money came from the state.

Last week, having received some additional funds, the board proposed to raise all employees 2 per cent more. Teacher representatives objected that all the "new money" should go to teachers.

IN SACRAMENTO, the legislature this year killed a bill to legalize marijuana. Last year, marijuana possession in California was made an optional misdemeanor-felony offense, decision to lie with the judge in each case.

This month, the U.S. Embassy in Moscow renewed requests for reduction of sentences of three Americans serving three-year terms in a Russian prison camp for possession of marijuana and hashish.

In Chattanooga, Tenn., two private corporations are building new hospitals to be operated for profit and have announced their rates will be 10 to 15 per cent below those of publicly owned hospitals.

IN WASHINGTON, Democratic congressmen denounced cuts in Office of Economic Opportunity funds, claiming they imperiled success of the program to give minorities a chance to make a decent living.

On Bimini, a British island in the Bahamas, a two instructor - one pupil fishing school was phased out after the Office of Economic Opportunity had spent $20,000 in U.S. funds on it.

A NOTE from the Tax Foundation provides the final news and its own commentary:

In one county in Mississippi, the Department of Agriculture last year spent $300,000 on food stamps. In the same county, the Farmers Home Administration is guaranteeing a $265,000 loan to install a nine-hole golf course.

Tiny Acrobats

Now that colder weather has come, we can turn our attention from the wildlife outdoors to the wildlife indoors. One of Marin's most interesting manifestations of wildlife (indoor variety) is the non-web-building, jumping spider.

Jumping spiders (also called wolf spiders or crab spiders) are those little, hairy fellows that run up the walls and scurry across the ceiling, and lurk behind the drapes. They stalk and pounce upon any stray insects with all the skill and voracity of an eagle or a leopard. Once they capture a victim and kill it, they inject digestive juices which turn it into liquid food.

Powerful legs, adhesive hairs on their feet, superb vision and excellent coordination combine to make the jumping spider a wonderful acrobat.

Of course, they live outside, too, but it is in the fall of the year, when they populate our houses, that we are most aware of them.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Lake, Humboldt Counties Would Lessen Marin Bridge Board Role

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The last time we were in Del Norte County, we were struck by its moon-like remoteness from the urban congestion on the Golden Gate Bridge. Yet the county is part of the bridge and highway district, and has one of the 18 votes on its board of directors.

Humboldt County was next as we headed south, and it seemed far more logical that it was not part of the bridge district.

Then came Mendocino County, rural like Del Norte and, just as illogically, a member of the bridge district.

The logic of Sonoma's membership was inescapable as we passed its growing suburbs, a development also spreading across Napa, another of the six counties in the district.

When we got to Marin, however, we wondered why this county, the bridge's best customer, should still have only three votes. And why San Francisco should get half of the votes.

THERE WAS A DAY about 30 years ago when these little northern counties were needed to get the bridge built, but this debt already has been repaid many times.

Against this background, it seems gross folly for more of our country cousins to come courting for annexation to the bridge district. Yet this is the strange love affair being pushed by Lake and Humboldt counties.

What they are after is the usual staples that politicians feed on — money and power. The district has both to offer; the fact that they have far less to offer in return does not disturb them.

THE BRIDGE BOARD, or at least its northern county representatives, is taking the annexation proposal seriously, and will conduct a committee hearing Thursday on Lake County's bid.

Strong San Francisco support for Lake County's bid also is coming from bridge director Joseph P. Mazzola, whose plumbers' union has invested huge sums in a resort development in Lake County. San Francisco, under the law that created the district, has nothing to lose because it would maintain its powerful position by automatically adding a 10th representative.

Marin stands to lose, since its representation would be further diluted.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Some 'Hair' Letters Eliminated

Letters on the "hair" dispute at Redwood High School have slowed to a trickle. However, yesterday the Independent-Journal received four letters on the subject, all from Redwood High School students, all referring to the editorial of Oct. 13, and all contending that such rules as that on length of athletes' hair are outmoded.

Since this has all the appearance of a letter-writing campaign instigated by someone as a delayed response to an editorial printed two weeks earlier, these letters are not being printed.

Carrier Dealers Not I-J Employees

In the Independent-Journal issue of Oct. 16, you show the first winner of the lucky license contest as Dorothy Simmons, the mother of one of the Independent-Journal carriers. Rule 5 of said contest states in part, "Employees of I-J and families not eligible."

I suppose your explanation that Mrs. Simmons's son is not an I-J employee would be that carriers are "independent" businessmen. They buy their papers for their customers from the Independent-Journal. The carriers are billed each month for the papers they purchase, they collect the amount of the subscription from their customers and pay their bill. The difference between what the carriers collect from their customers and the amount of their bill from the Independent-Journal is then their salary.

Would this be your explanation that the carriers are not employees of the Independent-Journal? It still doesn't satisfy me. I wonder what your other readers might think about this.

SHEILA S. PATZLAFF

(The explanation in the letter is correct. Carrier-dealers are not employees of the Independent-Journal. — Editor.)

Psychiatrists Find A Defender

I am writing this letter in defense of psychiatrists, sometimes referred to as head shrinkers by some of the population. We live in a hectic world where there is an ever-increasing need for good psychiatrists to handle the different types of problems that people have from the pressures of this fast-paced society.

There may be some taxpayers who feel that the mental health budget is costly and unrealistic. The people who complain the most about the money needed for mental health programs are many time completely ignorant about the whole field of psychiatry and its growth and improvements throughout the century.

I believe that this society needs more government-financed mental health programs. Good mental health programs require funds in order to operate and provide the necessary services for the community . . .

There is such a thing as preventive psychiatry which could help a certain percentage of people before they become involved in drugs or even involved in committing violent crimes.

I have one last thought for those taxpayers who are complaining about the money needed for mental health programs. They should sit down and think — just think about how much psychiatry can contribute to society. The most important thing psychiatrists can do is to help people live happier, more adjusted lives that have a meaning and purpose.

Tax Bill Support Found Dwindling

Last week at a luncheon meeting of the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana made a rather important statement.

He said mail to the Senate supporting the tax reform bill has been reduced to a trickle of that which the people sent to the House. The House of Representatives has passed a fairly strong bill which has been sent to the Senate.

Senator Hartke stated that the lobbyists are out in strong numbers in the capitol and if they succeed in stopping the bill, who will bring it up again, if it can only muster support from the public for three months?

This will be food for thought on April 15, 1970.

Miller's Tactics Show Disregard

It is a sure sign of Dr. Clyde Miller's egotism and his disregard for the mental health of the community that he would sidetrack the charges made against him by attacking, in turn, Dr. Donald Wilson. With the eager assist from a group of intractables among his former employees, Dr. Miller is now trying to discredit our new mental health center. There can be no justification for this, regardless of the cause for the rift between the two men.

Certainly there is no reason to prejudge Dr. Wilson's plans before they have even been tested. The administrative changes, e.g. in the children's services, are planned to broaden and improve the service (not to discontinue it as is erroneously claimed). Why not find out if it will work that way?

Long before Dr. Wilson's arrival many others found Dr. Miller impossible to deal with, either as contractees or in less formal relationships requiring joint planning and cooperation. Obviously Dr. Wilson has met the same obstructionist tactics in his attempt to develop the center program. It is to his credit that he has done as well as his record shows. Free from the constant irritation and frustration of having to cope with Dr. Miller and his disciples he could doubtless do better yet. But Dr. Miller is fighting for his job by downgrading someone else.

How long are we going to pay him a generous salary for that?

MARQUIS CHILDS

Whenever Things Go Wrong, The Cry Is: Blame The Press

WASHINGTON — At a certain point in the life of each administration, as troubles pile up, the search begins for culprits to put the blame on. The primary culprit almost invariably is the agency that reports the troubles — the press. If only this nasty, fault-finding agency would dry up and blow away, all would be well.

It has happened with the Nixon administration early rather than late, if only because the troubles are of such a dismaying magnitude. Suddenly a conspiracy is discovered. The minions of the press have deliberately set out to discredit the splendid endeavors of the new Republican team.

THE ANGRY BLEAT of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell can be heard whenever a responsive audience is assembled. His normally stern visage (nickname of the Department of Justice: the Great Stone Face) takes on an ever-sterner look as he denounces the SOBS of press and television.

They have cooked up all the fuss over the Haynsworth nomination. It would have breezed through without a ripple if it had not been for the troublemakers looking for blemishes on the serene surface of an ideal appointment. Why, as Mitchell put it, if one of the 12 Apostles were named to the Supreme Court the critics would carp!

THE PRESIDENT at his extraordinary impromptu press conference raised the cry of character assassination. Richard Nixon talking about character assassination! It was Mr. Nixon who in the 1952 presidential campaign accused Harry Truman and his secretary of state, Dean Acheson, of covering up if not actually aiding and abetting the Communist conspiracy in the United States. He had earlier attacked Acheson as the dean of the College of Cowardly Communist Containment.

That was character assassination in full flower. As news this was duly reported, perhaps over-rated, by the news media.

Acheson today accuses the press of trying to destroy the president, suggesting a movement such as has wrecked previous chief executives and left the nation leaderless. This has a strange sound coming from a principal victim of that earlier assassination. But the President and is one-time target have entered into a peace treaty, a Nixon-Acheson trade agreement.

Above all, in foreign policy the press is charged with irresponsible prying and poking, giving the external enemy the advantage of loose talk, the carping criticism of an open society. In the halcyon days of Talleyrand and Metternich, no such gross interference would have been tolerated.

EVEN THE MOST ardent partisan will readily concede the imperfections of the press. Like all other human institutions, it has grievous faults. Diplomacy must often be conducted in secret and there have been times when the poking and prying of the press may have been a handicap. Surely, it is also demonstrable that exposure has prevented errors and corrected abuses.

Presidents have reacted in various ways to the hair shirt of the press. At the end of his first term in the White House, Harry Truman had virtually the entire press down on him. The lapses of members of his staff — the mink coats and the food freezers — were given inordinate space. He was written off as an accidental President, a bumbler from Missouri.

Yet, so far as this reporter can recall, he never complained — or never publicly, at any rate. His loyalty to his associates was unfailing even when they came under the heaviest fire, as Acheson did. His terse summing up, 'If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen," deserves to be carved in stone over the White House portal.

What is so fantastic about the periodic effort to pin the blame on the press is the assumption that the troubles are invented by the media. This is extraordinary for the Nixon administration, because the President has never concealed his belief that what commentators and editorial writers said paled beside the importance of a proper camera angle on television.

Somali Uprising Brings Threat To Neighbor Lands

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign Affairs Analyst

When the Somalian army and police force overthrew their government and arrested Premier Mohammed Egal, they were arresting one of two men who had done the most to give the African "horn" a semblance of stability and bring peace between Somalia and its neighbors.

The other was the assassinated President Abdi Rashid Shermarke, whose funeral the coup followed by just one day.

IN THE ARMY'S action and in the shooting of Shermarke by a 22-year-old policeman there remains much to be clarified.

Shermarke may have foreseen it when, after elections last March, he called upon the nation to pray for forgiveness for a "relaxation of moral and spiritual principles" during the campaign.

The army action will create alarm in neighboring Ethiopia to the west and to Kenya, whose economic minister, Tom Mboya, died by assassination last July 5.

Shermarke and Egal played the key roles in late 1967 in restoring a shaky peace along the borders with both countries.

Althourh little known outside Africa, they also had managed to bring off the March elections without the electoral abuses and violence which have characterized other African elections.

THE 15,000 MAN army owes its existence to the Soviet Union, which built it up and trained its officers, and to the border disputes which sprang from Somali aspirations for a "greater Somalia" embracing the northern district of Kenya, Ethiopia's Ogaden province and French Somaililand.

Now both Ethiopia and Kenya will wait for a test of the army's sincerity in the statements of its leaders that they will follow Shermarke-Egal policies of "non-alignment and non-interference."

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By BONNIE BARD

Bureau's First Birthday Time For Sort Of 'Year-End Review'

Although it is customary to wait until December and January to compile year-end reviews, October seems appropriate as the first birthday of the Independent-Journal's Southern Sonoma Bureau rolls around.

In the past year, milk cows on the west side of Petaluma have moved on to greener pastures with new homes in sprawling subdivisions taking their place.

The construction of the new Washington Street Bridge became a reality after several false starts, excessively high bids, and complete re-engineering. The new, five-lane structure to replace the 1913 design by Joseph Strauss of Golden Gate Bridge fame is scheduled for completion early next spring with a budget drain of $257,327.

Also reaching fruition after years of haggling was the boat launching facility on the Petaluma River near the Highway 101 overcrossing. With luck and good working weather, the much-needed facility should be complete within two months.

Also pushed into the backgrounds was the innovative core area plan to put new life in Petaluma's downtown business district. With new shopping centers springing up in and around the city, unenthusiastic businessmen and city officials may begin to see new merits to the ideas put forth in the comprehensive plan.

Although Petaluma voters soundly defeated four bond issue last June for street improvements, a fire station and park development, they did rally to support the $12.7 million bond and loan election for building in the Petaluma High School District.

IN ROHNERT PARK, the year also saw more homes being built and a population increase. Plans for the sought-after interchange on Highway 101 at the Rohnert Park expressway reached final approval by the state Division of Highways, with construction to begin early next year.

BOTH Rohnert Park and Cotati finished plans for new sewage facilities, with Rohnert Park receiving several large federal grants to enlarge the sewage plant to serve both communities.

Southern Sonoma also saw the end of a long government career for County Supervisor Leigh S. Shoemaker, who resigned due to ill health.

His successor, George T. DeLong of Petaluma, will stand for re-election in the June primary, and already has a head start on opponents with his success as chairman of the school bond election drive.

DeLong took the chance of remaining as committee chairman after his supervisorial appointment, realizing fully that its defeat could seriously hurt his chances at the polls.

And yes, the Petaluma I-J office has expanded to keep pace with the growth of southern Sonoma County. Since opening last year, the lonesome news reporter has been joined by a fulltime circulation manager, a social writer and a sports writer.

ART BUCHWALD

Humorists May Seek Credit, But Spiro Writes His Own Stuff

WASHINGTON — A lady has written to the Washington Post accusing me of writing Vice President Spiro Agnew's funny speech in New Orleans, concerning the people who participated in the moratorium.

I am very flattered that his lady would think that I am writing Vice President Agnew's speeches, as they are probably the best humor being produced in this country at the moment. But I must disclaim all credit. Mr. Agnew has never asked me to write humorous speeches for him and I have never volunteered.

MR. AGNEW is a very close friend of Bob Hope, and it is believed he might have gotten help from Mr. Hope's writers. But the vice president also happens to have friends on "Laugh-In", and many people swear Mr. Agnew's reference to "impudent snobs and intellectuals" is a typical "Laugh-In" throwaway line.

Jackie Gleason, who happens to be President Nixon's good friend, may have had a hand in the final draft of the speech, particularly where the vice president called everyone masochists.

But from all I can discover the vice president is, for the main, writing his own stuff. While he may consult a comedy writer for an occasional thought or gag, the vice president prefers to write his own material which he delivers in his now famous dead-pan style.

THIS, ACCORDING to an intimate friend, is how the vice president works on his speeches. First he studies the occasion. The Republican fund-raising dinner in New Orleans obviously with a light-hearted affair and Mr. Agnew knew he was expected to be humorous and topical.

Since the Oct. 15 moratorium had just taken place, the vice president decided to do his funny monologue around the people who participated in the protest. For every good laugh, the vice president discarded 10. Finally, he had it shaped up, and he took it to the President who read it and chuckled all the way through.

"You're going to knock 'em dead with this one," the President said.

"HOW DO YOU LIKE that line about impudent snobs?" the vice president said.

The President could hardly contain himself. "This thing about 'effete corps' is beautiful. I wish I could come down and see you give it."

"I wish you could, too."

"Spiro, you've said some funny things in your time, but you've outdone yourself on this one. This speech will make you another household word."

"You don't think anyone will take me seriously, do you?" Mr. Agnew asked.

The President wiped tears of laughter from his eyes. "How could they? This country hasn't lost its sense of humor yet."

WITH THE PRESIDENT'S approval, Mr. Agnew went to New Orleans and, as everyone knows, he wowed not only the audience, but millions who saw him on television. Overnight, the vice president lifted the country out of its depression and had everyone laughing.

No vice president in modern times has been able to constantly do this as well as Spiro Agnew. And the thing that has official Washington amazed is that he's doing almost all of it by himself.

Second Phase Eyed On Importing Water

Plans for the second — and smallest — phase of the multi-million dollar project to import additional water from the Russian River to Marin County have been outlined in a report by two Marin water districts.

The second phase, a 50,000-foot pipeline from Petaluma to Novato, is expected to cost $4,778,000, according to the report by the North Marin County and Marin Municipal water districts.

Actual design of the line is not expected to begin until 1975, the report said, but meanwhile costs should be based on current projections of water use, it recommended.

Using the current projections, Marin Municipal would pay 92 per cent of the cost and North Marin 8 per cent, the report said.

The pipeline would generally parallel an existing aqueduct from Petaluma to Novato, and right-of-way acquisition costs are expected to add little to the project cost.

The pipeline would tie together a section from Warm Springs Dam to Petaluma, expected to cost $33 million based on current construction costs, and a section from Novato to Corte Madera, estimated at $15.5 million.

All of the plans hinge on voter approval of a bond issue currently planned for the 1970 November election.

To do all of the work, voters in Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and the two Marin districts must approve bond issues.

Based on current estimates, Sonoma's share would be $15 million; North Marin's, $4.6 million, and Marin Municipal's $38 million.

The plans and how to finance them are expected to be discussed at a meeting of directors of all three groups at 8 p.m. Nov. 17 at the Marin Municipal district office.

Stolen Check Charges Denied

Robert Wayne Kitzmiller, 33, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to three counts of possessing checks with intent to defraud.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 6.

Kitzmiller was arrested Friday by San Rafael police who said that he had passed checks allegedly stolen from a Lafayette man at two San Rafael bars earlier this month.

Copies of this determination are on file in the office of the County Clerk, Civic Center, Room 315, San Rafael, California, and are available to any interested party upon request. Copies may be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Room 308, Civic Center.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Marin reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

In addition, all addenda will be mailed to each person holding contract documents but it shall be the bidder's responsibility to make inquiry as to the addenda issued. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Human Tularemia Found In All States; Caught Various Ways

VAN DELLEN

Human Tularemia is always a threat to hunters and trappers who are exposed to infected rodents, ticks, and deer flies. Wild jackrabbits are implicated most often in this country.

The highly infectious disease has been reported in every state except Vermont, that is, until the spring of 1968. An epidemic of tularemia broke out in Addison county involving 47 muskrat handlers and trappers.

TULAREMIA is transmitted from animals to man in various ways. A tick, flea, bedbug, or blood-sucking deer fly acquires the organism from an infected rabbit, fox, squirrel, mouse or muskrat. The insect bites a susceptible person and symptoms develop within two to seven days.

A more common way to get the disease stems from handling the infected animal. While skinning the animal for food or fur, the organism enters the skin through a slight abrasion or wound. This was the modus operandi among the Vermonters who handled the infected muskrats.

THE MANIFESTATIONS vary considerably but most of the victims develop fever, chills, generalized aching, and malaise. Influenza is suspected until one or more ulcerating sores develop on the finger or hand where the organism gained entry.

The glands in the armpit on the involved side enlarge and become tender. When untreated, the illness may last several months.

VARIATIONS IN symptoms are common in that some victims do not develop skin lesions. In others, the disease is confined to the lungs, intestinal tract, or eye.

The best remedoes are a broad spectrum antimicrobial, such as chloramphenicol, streptomycin, or tetracycline.

Prevention should begin with a good insect repellent when in the bush and the wearing of gloves when potentially-infected animals are handled.

CARIES AND HEREDITY

Mrs. D. W. writes: I see to it that my 6-year-old brushes his teeth after eating. But he has more cavities than his playmates. Can you explain why?

REPLY

There is a hereditary aspect to dental caries in that some people are more susceptible to cavity formation that are others. Is the water supply in your community fluoridated? This should help. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on dental caries.

X-RAY BURN

A. S. writes: What injury could follow exposure to X-ray?

REPLY

X-ray treatment is safe when used properly. If the procedure is not done carefully, X-ray burn could follow. Overexposure may be followed by skin cancers 20 years later. Many of our pioneer radiologists were plagued with these lesions later in life.

VASCULAR HEAD PAIN

H. V. writes: What is a vascular headache?

REPLY

The usual type of head pain is thought to be due to contraction of the muscles of the scalp or to distended blood vessels in the brain. The latter is considered vascular in origin and is secondary to emotional upsets, fatigue, and stress.

SUICIDE STATISTICS

T. A. writes: About how many people commit suicide in thsi country in a year?

REPLY

Indians' Center Destroyed By $100,000 Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fire swept through the American Indian Center and a television shop in the Mission District early today, causing at least $100,000 damage.

Police Sgt. Mike Lennon was driving past 16th and Hoff streets when an explosion blew out the windows of Stanley's Radio and TV store about 5 a.m. He turned in the first alarm of the four-alarmer.

Firemen used axes to hack down the door of the Indian Center and rescue Victor White Eagle, 26, a Commanche; Donald Rodriguez, 25, a Mexican Indian; and Raymond Franklin Jr., 33, a Cheyenne. The three had been sleeping in the recreation hall.

Brothers Get Life In Prison

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two Chicago brothers convicted of murdering silent film star Ramon Novarro were sentenced to life in prison yesterday by a judge who recommended they never be freed on parole.

"Both of these defendants are still completely devoid of even a semblance of remorse or repentence," Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler said following sentencing.

Judge Brandler recommended that Paul and Tom Ferguson, "for this horrendous killing," both be confined for life.

Brandler said evidence during the two-month trial of Paul, 23, and Thomas, 18, "established convincingly and conclusively to the jury and the court the guilt as to each of the defendants in the brutal, vicious torture-killing of Mr. Ramon Novarro."

Holstein Is Judged Among Best In U.S.

A registered holstein cow owned by Marvin L. Nunes of Point Reyes Station has been judged "excellent" or "3E" for body type by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, it was announced today.

Of the 88,950 registered holsteins judged last year only 2 per cent were rated "excellent," the association stated.

Sausalito Hits I-J Juvenile Name Policy

A petition signed by four members of the Sausalito School board and Supt. Phillip W. Schneider last night demanded that the Independent-Journal change its policy of publishing the names of juveniles arrested as suspects in felonies.

James T. Toliver Jr., special assistant to the principal and staff at King, presented the petition to the board and said parents in the Sausalito district would be asked to cancel their subscriptions to the I-J and advertisers would be asked to stop advertising in the paper.

Toliver also criticized "the I-J.s coverage of the Sausalito district and these (board) meetings."

None of the four board members present — Nathaniel Johnson, C. Gerald Clear, David E. Freedheim or Martha Freebairn - Smith — commented on Toliver's statement or on the petition they signed.

Toliver specifically objected to a recent I-J story reporting the arrest of two Marin City juveniles for allegedly burglarizing a boat. The paper's policy is to identify all juveniles arrested on suspicion of a felony.

The petition, addressed to the city editor of the I-J with copies to two other newspapers, said: "We, the undersigned, hereby register our objection to the dehumanizing and socially irresponsible treatment accorded elementary school children by the Marin County Independent-Journal in that it publishes by name and address the names of children who are in trouble.

"Further, we feel that this exposure by the I-J ignores the social, psychological and economic root causes responsible for the development of socially misguided youth. Children are not hardened criminals — with help, understanding, and modification of the causes of their involvement, they might be helped."

Schenider's and the board members' signatures were added at the meeting. The others, headed by King Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr. and Toliver, were collected at a faculty meeting.

Nichols Cheered By Collegians

Nichols received a standing ovation — and several minutes of — uninterrupted applause and cheers.

James Gillette, militant student body president, praised Nichols for his support of the student government. "We've not always agreed on everything, but we've always loved you as a man of great integrity and principle," he said.

Happy Times Return For 49er Boosters

I haven't seen so many smiles since the old school house burned down. Seemed like everyone was humming "Happy Days Are Here Again." The bartender was busier than usual.

It was the weekly luncheon of the Marin Chapter, 49er Boosters Club and some 60 of the die-hards of the fledgling organization gathered under extremely unusual circumstances: Their team had won its first game of 1969. I refer to Sunday's 24-21 victory over Baltimore in a real Vensus de Milo — that's a nail-biter, son.

Anyway, the Boosters suddenly developed a Spurrierority complex, singing the praises of the team's new quarterbark while a gent named Brodie suddenly was regelated to status of John Who?

On hand to represent the 49ers at the luncheon were defensive tackle Roland Lakes, who was an offensive lineman the last time the 49ers beat Baltimore in 1962, and young reserve defensive end Tommy Hart.

Asking The Wrong Man

One Booster was so ecstatic over the sudden wealth of triumph that he asked these defensive hirelings if Steve Superior would start next Sunday's game against Detroit. Lakes, a gregarious son of a minister, peered over the top of his horn-rimmed glasses and said: "Sir, I represent labor, not management."

The 6-4, 264-pound Wichita Lineman, sartorially splended in black, double-breasted, bell-bottomed suit garnished with black and whilte silk accessories and a pair of alligator gunboats, allowed as how it was "a pleasant five hour plane ride" home from Baltimore Sunday night. "I think," he said, "we have reached the point now where we know we have the stuff to beat the other teams. The whole club's attitude has been given a lift. Things just seemed to click like they haven't in the past," referring to San Francisco's 11-game winless streak. "I can't say that the change in quarterbacks made that much difference. Had Brodie played maybe we would have won anyway," he said in answer to a question.

Consistency Is THE Thing

"We feel we have deep personnel to be a championship club. Just about every club has the talent, but consistency is what makes the difference."

Lakes was quick to dish out praise to all phases of the 49er game, from the computer that "helped us draw up our game plan," to Coach Dick Nolan, " . . . he has excellent leadership, is a dedicated football man, a hard worker who works us equally as hard and has the ability to lead us to a championship," to the offensive line, "did a fine job on pass protection and opening holes," to the defensive line, "we didn't drop (Johnny) Unitas for a loss all day, but we forced him into some quick, off-target passes and some crucial turnovers," to the offense, "They made the big plays (10 out of 17 third down crucials) and used a lot of time on the clock."

Somebody Like Gayle Sayers

Lakes also had these observations: "I've seen Unitas better than he was yesterday, but he's still one of the best"; "Eighty to 85 per cent of football is desire, the will to win"; On 49er draft needs, "I guess we can use one of those breakaway threats to turn the corner, like Gayle Sayers"; "Minnesota's defensive front four is better than the L.A. Rams' 'Fearsome Foursome' right now"; comparing the Colts to the Rams, "I have to lean with the Rams. They have good balance"; and, on officiating, a sore point to 49ers all year: "I think it's been inconsistent."

One Booster wanted to know how Lakes felt about the team returning home after each road game, rather than staying in the east for a series of games. Big Ro smiled: "I have mixed emotions. It depends on who I know back east." He's a bachelor.

232 Pounds Not Enough

For the benefit of those with weight problems, Hart told how he had to gain poundage to win a job with the Niners. The shy, soft-spoken son of a Georgia Farmer joined the team as a 232-pound linebacker, but was switched to defensive end and put on a weight program that would not curtail his speed. "In two months I gained 10 pounds," he said. "Before I could run 40 yards in 4.5 seconds and I still do it in 4.5."

Now that's what I call a polyunsaturated end.

Other notes gleaned from Boosters huddles: Win or lose, Spurrier should start every remaining game for experience: Dick Witcher will replace Clif McNeil as starting wide receiver; Elmer Collett played one whale of a game at offensive guard, perhaps his best as a pro; the club may schedule a future meeting on a Tuesday to get one of the "never on Monday" coaches to appear; the Boosters honored linebacker Jack Burnam and defensive coach Carrol Dillon of San Marin High's undefeated team. Emcee Dave Scofield called the new San Marin school and "expansion club."

Spurrier Wins Starting Assignment

49ers Vs. Lions In Kezar Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — It will be Steve Spurrier at the controls again when the San Francisco 49ers try to double their luck against Detroit Sunday at Kezar Stadium.

Coach Dick Nolan made the announcement yesterday and said he was pleased and even a little surprised by Spurrier's performance (18 for 30 for 205 yards, one touchdown and no interceptions) in the 24-21 upset at Baltimore last Sunday.

WORRIED

"I wasn't surprised by his poise," said Nolan, "but I was worried because he was seeing everything for the first time...It's seeing everything coming at you at full speed, and I didn't know whether he would be able to recognize defenses. But he did an excellent job."

Nolan added that John Brodie's arm "is not well. I don't know when he'll be able to throw again. That's up to the doctor."

Has Spurrier moved out Brodie? Nolan was asked what would happen if Brodie suddenly recovered.

"Well, that's a situation, I'll face when I come to it," Nolan replied.

Assistant coach Paul Wiggin pointed out Spurrier made the first down on 10 third-down situations out of 17.

The 49ers were met at the San Francisco airport Sunday night by more than 100 fans carrying signs and ringing cowbells.

One sign, with big heart drawings, said:

"That's the way to heave, Steve, we love you 49ers."

Only a week earlier the 49ers had been booed in a home loss to Atlanta.

KERMIT OUT

Kermit Alexander will stay on the sidelines for another two weeks because of his shoulder injury which means mighty mite Johnny Woitt will take his place again. Baltimore threw at Woitt constantly last Sunday and while plenty were completed his way, he returned an interception 60 yards for a touchdown and he and Alvin Randolph combined to knock down a Johnny Unitas pass in the end zone on the final play to preserve the win.

Safetyman Mel Phillips may also be out after injuring his thumb at Baltimore. Johnny Fuller would take his place if needed.

Martin Stays Out Of Sports

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Billy Martin, the baseball manager, doesn't have a job. But Billy Martin, the brewery public relations man, radio announcer and the man that "Ode to Billy" was written about does.

And Martin, who led the Minnesota Twins to the American League West Division crown before getting canned by Minnesota President Calvin Griffith, says "I don't have any plans to get back into sports.

"Right now I intend to do some sports work for KWDB radio in Minneapolis, work for Grain Belt (the brewery) and generally enjoy life." Martin is also a director of United Sulpha and Chemical Co.

ON HAND

The "Ode to Billy" record by a group that plays at a local bar was released yesterday and Martin was on hand to give it a listen.

The tune, which deals with Martin's successes on the field and his problems with Griffith, is "great" music to the ears of the fiery former Twins leader.

The proceeds of the recording will be used "to put Martin in a better bargaining position with his next employer," said Joe Duffy, the bar owner.

Martin meanwhile denied a batch of Griffith charges, accusing him of allowing large-scale gambling on the team plane and talking to Seattle Pilots' officials about a managerial job.

Griffith had said players had been playing in a $750 poker game.

'RIDICULOUS'

"I talked to Calvin about the matter and he didn't seem to object as long as the stakes weren't big. The players who were in the games were in the $40,000 to $50,000 per year category. They could afford to lose."

Martin also denied talking to Seattle officials about a job. "I did visit with Seattle executives on our last trip there," he said but added that he was just paying Bill Daley a personal visit.

"Mr. Daley had been in my wedding and we were good friends," Martin said.

Banaszak Gets The Game Ball

Banaszak, filling in for the injured Hewritt Dixon, gained 123 yards in 25 carries last Sunday as the Raiders beat the San Diego Chargers.

Included in the total was a 40-yard sprint, the longest this year by a Raider.

"They were using a three-man line most of the game," he said. "We figure we can always run against that kind of defense."

The Raiders, who now have a 6-0-1 record in the American Football League, will be meeting a young Bengal club that won its first three games and then lost four.

Injuries to rookie quarterback Greg Scott have hurt the Bengals.

Dallas Defense Does It

DALLAS (UPI)—Sophomore defensive end Larry Cole and some of his defensive mates had "a lot of fun" last night against the New York Giants, but the Dallas Cowboys offense spent a miserable three and one-half quarters before it could crack a smile.

The Cowboys finally overcame the stubborn Giants, 25-3, to remain alongside the Los Angeles Rams as the only undefeated teams in the National Football League, but the score was 3-3 at halftime and only 6-3 going into the final quarter.

The Dallas offense, which had been the most explosive in the league, sputtered and flamed out frequently and had to settle for 47, 35 and 15-yard field goals by Mike Clark against Pete Gogolak's 23-yarder that launched the Giants in front in the first period.

Then, and only then, did the NFL's leading quarterback, Craig Morton get the bugs out of the Cowboys' offensive machinery to hit Lance Rentzel on a 16-yard scoring toss and set up Calvin Hill's 40-yard halfback scoring pass to Bobby Hayes.

Until then, it had been a night of glory for Cole, George Andrie and Jethro Pugh—who combined to spin Giants' quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the seat of his pants 10 times for 70 yards in losses, including once in the end zone for a fourth-quarter safety.

Tarkenton also suffered his first interception of the year—by Cowboy corner back Mel Renfro—leaving the NFL without a perfect record tosser since the Los Angeles Rams' Roman Gabriel had his string broken Sunday by the Chicago Bears.

Arnie Fires Practice Round 65

NAPA (UPI)—While young Steve Spray was savoring his surprise victory in the San Francisco Open, old pros Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus were shooting practice rounds here for the $140,000 Kaiser International Open golf tournament.

The tournament begins Thursday and runs through Sunday.

Spray, the five-year pro from Iowa, says his best performance at the Napa tournament "was between 50th and 60th place." This will be Spray's third try at the Kaiser Open.

Spray sunk a six-foot putt last Sunday to win the San Francisco Open and equal the tournament record with a 15-under 269.

Spray barely avoided a playoff with Chi Chi Rodriguez who was coming on strong in the back nine. But Rodriguez cost himself an extra shot by blowing a one-foot putt on the 12th hole.

"I could have knocked it in with my tongue," Rodriguez said later.

Spray's victory was his first tournament win in five years as a professional.

Detroit Cagers Complain About Coach's Methods

DETROIT (AP) — Disgruntled University of Detroit basketball players held a grievance meeting for an hour and a half yesterday, accusing new Coach Jim Harding of imposing "extremely severe" practice sessions.

Harding answered the criticism by handing the 16 players an ultimatum: practice and play under his rules or get out.

NO COMPROMISE

"We don't compromise with ballplayers who have complaints," said the 40-year-old coach who joined Detroit after being fired last season as coach of the Minnesota Pipers of the American Basketball Association.

"They were told there would be no concessions," Harding said after the closed confrontation in the school's Memorial Building. After the session, the players went onto the basketball floor and drilled for about an hour.

Harding said the players demanded the meeting and handed his assistant, Howard Fagan, a list of three grievances. The coach refused to state the exact nature of the grievances but said they did not involve any racial problem.

SEVERE

A player, who declined use of his name, told sportscaster Al Ackerman of WWJ-TV in Detroit that the dispute involved extremely severe practice sessions. Ackerman first disclosed the dispute.

Harding said the Titans team is comprised of "very, very average basketball players who are going to have to work very hard on the fundamentals of basketball to make up for a lack of talent.

"As a result," he said, "we'll have to spend a lot of extra hours to make up for the deficit. Those that want to play and pay the price and want to follow the philosophy that's set out will play, and those that don't will be dropped from the team."

TOUGH SCHEDULE

Harding noted that the Titans face a series of tough opponents this season. Their first game is against Michigan on Dec. 1. Other opponents include Notre Dame, Wichita, Loyola of New Orleans, Western Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Canisius, St. Bonaventure, Illinois, Pittsburgh.

Harding has been putting the team through practice sessions seven days a week.

On weekdays, he said, the drills last an average of 2½ hours each. On weekend days, they run up to three hours.

Before coaching the pro team, he led LaSalle to a 20-8 record and an NCAA tournament appearance. Earlier he coached at Loyola of New Orleans and Gannon.

Businessmen Trying To Keep The Pilots

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Daley says he will retain a portion of the Seattle Pilots stock if it will help keep major league baseball in this city, The Seattle Post-Intelligencer said today.

Daley, chairman of the board of the troubled American League team, made the comment in a telephone interview from Cleveland after a meeting of 50 of the city's top businessmen in Seattle last night.

The meeting was called by Edward E. Carlson, president of Western International Hotels, to gather support and possibly a commitment of funds, for purchase of controlling interest in the club.

"I love baseball," Daley said. "I'm not in it for money, and I have never been associated with baseball in Cleveland for monetary reasons.

Daley said he "would be willing to throw $1 or $2 million into the kitty as a stockholder," and "I suppose a figure of about $10

Plunkett's Mother Has Never Seen Him

If Stanford quarterback Jim Plunkett should make it by a long shot to the Rose Bowl this year, his No. 1 fan — his mother — won't be able to see him.

HIS FATHER, before his death some years ago, was nearly so. He could see just enough to sell cigars and candy bars in the lobby of the Department of Employment office in San Jose. But he was legally blind and, if the coin was small, he had to make change by feel.

SOME 50 universities and multiversities, institutions of higher football, were after Jim Plunkett to enroll. Friends say he chose Stanford because he could get home in an hour in case his mother needed his arm more than the team did. "She gets lost sometimes," Jim admitted to a reporter.

Jim's parents were Mexican — or, more correctly, New Mexican, from Santa Fe and Albuquerque. They came north to San Jose in the late '40s with Jim's two older sisters, but Jim was born in San Jose.

BEING THE son of sightless, near- helpless parents upsets the delicate balance of dependence in a household. Blind people LISTEN for reassurance. Silence can be terrifying. When a son is due home from school the ticking of a clock can be Chinese water torture to a mother listening for that welcome familiar footfall, the slamming of a door, the "It's me, Ma!" even though the scent and sound have made that unnecessary. To have to go look for a child is parental trauma. Not to be able to is terror.

JIM PLUNKETT was as dependable as 5 o'clock traffic. He accepted his parents' sightlessness the way an Eskimo accepts snow. He either had a football in his hands or a load of wash, a bat or a gasoline hose, a basketball or a box of groceries. Loitering around street corners, was for kids whose folks could see — sometimes well enough to be down the corner saloon themselves.

FLOWERS ARE more beautiful to the blind," Mark Twain once said, adding, "while the world is full of vacant, staring, unseeing soulless eyes." "No one can truly hear a violin with his eyes open," Fritz Kreisler is supposed to have said. The blind can tell more from a handshake than the police can from a dossier.

It may seem strange to some that a son of the blind could hit a moving target with a football 70 yards away or spot a telltale flick in the eye of a defensive halfback behind a face mask 20 steps away, but Jim Plunkett is not only the best passer in Stanford history but the best in conference history. And this is a stadium, Stanford, that annually sees more passes from the home team forces than a waterfront dance hall.

STANFORD KEEPS the ball in the air more than the Boston Celtics or even most volleyball teams. When you consider the school has had Bob Garrett, Gary Kerkorian and John Brodie in recent years, Plunkett's record 2,419 yards passing is heroic. That hs is continuing this with his second set of receivers, minus the incomparable Gene Washington, indicates the pros may not wait till his class graduates but may spin off a high draft choice this year and cheerfully wait till 1971 for him.

IT WOULD be nice if, first, he could put on display this immense talent in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. Not only might this thrill 99,999 other fans but there might be a quiet little old lady sitting there listening. This would be Mrs. Plunkett — and she might be the only one in that thronged saucer who could actually smell the roses. And know what the quarterback sounded like when he came home from school, dropped his books and said, "Ma, it's me!" As if she didn't know.

FOWLER ON THE RUN

College of Marin runner Mike Fowler tried to avoid a Solano Junior College defender enroute to a nine-yard pickup Friday. The Tars won, 21-14, to push their Camino Norte Conference record to 1-1 and their season mark to 2-3. They'll meet powerful conference leader DeAnza at Foothill in Los Altos Friday at 8:30 p.m.

PAYS THE BILLS

Prep Football Is Money Maker

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Basketball is self-supporting, but football is the big winner at San Rafael High School, the grid program making enough money to almost pay for the rest of the athletic program.

It has always been said that football proceeds pay for the rest of athletics at high schools and colleges, and in San Rafael High School's case, it's just about right.

According to Joseph Brighenti, director of activities at San Rafael High, and Jack Sims, its athletic director, last year's football program made a profit of $2,023, and the basketball program made $100. Since those are the only two high school sports to charge admission, the rest of the athletic program is all expense, no income.

The sports program had to draw out only $492 from the student body fund to help pay its expenses, which totaled $6,600.

Cocahes' pay and football uniforms are among the items paid for by the San Rafael School District. Expenses to the school for football last year totaled 2,460, and income came to $4,483, showing net profit of $2,023. Basketball did slightly better than paying for itself, a $1,525 expense compared to income of $1,625, profit of $100.

OTHER COSTS

Other sports and costs which had to be paid by the shcool were track and field, $115; swimming, $100; baseball, $800; wrestling, $200; girls athletics, $200; league fees and dues, $800; California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) dues, $200, and awards, $200.

"We look for more income from football this year," said Brighenti. "Our projection figure is $5,500. But, of course, our expenses have gone up, too.

REASONS

If coaches' pay and the huge costs of uniforms and pads are paid by the district, some people may argue, why is there so much expense for football?

Sims listed costs for a single game on the San Rafael High School field, and here they are:

Four officials to work a varsity game, $125; custodians, $26; field work in preparation for the game, $10; guards, $90; film, $20; electrician, $25, and ticket takers, $40.

And if it's a night game, add about $8 for cost of lighting. (According to Pacific Gas and Electric Co. officials, cost to run the floodlights at San Rafael's field is $2.24 per hour.)

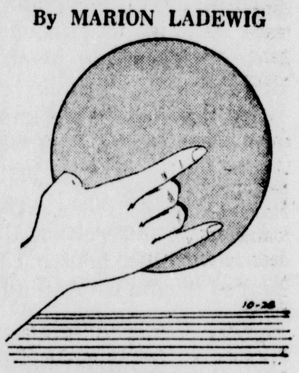
FIELD COST

Because of these costs, San Rafael High School charges other schools using the football field $200 for day games and $250 for night games. In addition to lights, there must be two additional policemen on hand for night games, thus the higher price. San Rafael currently has the only football field with lights.

So, you see, there is a business end to football, even on the high school level. Without football, student body funds would be drained to pay for the other sports in the athletic program.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Finger control is all important in bowling. Therefore a good lift is necessary. To check your grip, insert the thumb all the way into its hole. The middle joints of the second and third fingers should extend a quarter-inch past the inside edges of the finger holes (see illustration). Then the ball is gripped with those edges just beyond the middle joints.

STANFORD'S PLUNKETT

A Record-Smashing Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett has surpassed former Stanford passing greats John Brodie and Dick Norman in total offense, and is now closing in on a Pacific-8 season mark held by another former Stanford Star, Bobby Garrett.

Pacific-8 football statistics released today show that Plunkett needs only three more touchdown passes to tie Garrett's 1953 mark of 17. Plunkett is tied with Garrett for the Stanford career mark with 28 touchdown passes.

Rolling up 233 yards in a 20-20 tie with UCLA last weekend, Plunkett brought his career offense total to 3,756 yards to 3,654 for Norman and 3,560 for Brodie. Barring an injury, Plunkett still has 14 games remaining at Stanford since he is only a junior.

In this season's statistics, Plunkett holds a 19-yard lead over UCLA quarterback Dennis Dummit in the total offense race. Plunkett has passed for 1,500 and run for 53 this year.

Oregon quarterback Tom Blanchard, who has a minus 37 yards rushing, ranks third in total offense on the strength of 979 yards passing.

TOP SCORER

Oregon wingback Bob Moore holds the Pacific-8 scoring lead with 56 points, two more than UCLA halfback Greg Jones.

Clarence Davis of Southern Cal is the conference's leading rusher with 826 yards, compared with 595 for Jones and 559 for Jones' UCLA teammate, Mickey Cureton.

Still another UCLA player, defensive back Ron Carver, leads in interceptions with four and in punt returns with 21 for 231 yards.

A Year Of New Look Quarterbacks In NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — The quarterback revolution is in full swing in the National Football League due to a combination of injuries, sore arms and the inconsistency of some of the veterans.

Bruce Lemmerman, who holds most of the passing records at San Fernando Valley State College in California and was picked up by Atlanta as a free agent, started Sunday against Green Bay in place of the injured Bob Berry. Randy Johnson has been tried and found wanting the previous week.

SPURRIER

Steve Spurrier sat on the bench and confined his game activity to punting for the San Francisco 49ers until John Brodie's sore arm forced Coach Dick Nolan to make a change. Spurrier led the 49ers to their first victory Sunday in an upset of the Baltimore Colts, a happy day for those Florida football fans who had been waiting for the real Spurrier to show the pros how it is done.

Terry Hanratty, the Notre Dame product who is being groomed for the No. 1 job at Pittsburgh, got a starting shot when Dick Shiner was clotheslined and unable to speak.

The Chicago Bears, desperate for a win, switched to Bob Douglass, the lefty passer from Kansas, and almost made it against Los Angeles, finally succumbing 9-7.

LANDRY

Bill Munson's injury opened the gates for Greg Landry at Detroit. The 22-year-old Massachusetts alumnus has taken over since Munson suffered a broken hand. The lanky quarterback took the Lions in to victory over the Bears but was u,nable to handle the Minnesota pass rush.

An injury to Jim Hart has enabled Charley Johnson, who used to be St. Louis' No. 1 boy, to regain the job. Johnson responded with three touchdown passes, including a pressure toss in the final seconds for a 21-21 tie with Cleveland.

DON HORN

Bart Starr sat for a time a week ago while Green Bay took another look at Don Horn, the San Diego State passer who came out of the service last year to knock the Bears out of a divisional title in the final game of the season.

An exhibition game injury cost Koe Kapp his regular job with the Minnesota Vikings when the season started. However, after Gary Cuozzo was beaten by New York, Kapp took over again and has been having fantastic success.

Dallas also gave Roger Staubach a shot when Craig Morton was hurt but Morton has come back strong.

Tracking Down Wounded Deer Can Be Problem

Have you ever crippled a buck and wondered what to do? Hunters using dogs can recover most crippled bucks because of the dogs' tracking and scenting ability.

But in a case where you have no dog, then it's best to get the others in your party together and to figure out a plan.

LET'S SAY you are alone, but hunting with a group, and you get a shot that you think hit the deer. I find it good policy to check the area for blood at the spot you saw the deer. Sometimes you find nothing, but still feel you had scored a hit. Mark the spot, then go back to the place from where you shot. Sometimes looking from the original shooting position at a marked spot shows an error in the place picked where you thought you last saw the deer.

Mark your shooting spot, and using markers, make your way down to the proper spot. I sometimes even drag my foot along leaving a line from the first shooting position to the spot marking the deer. This serves as an easy guide to the gang if you call them to assist you. They have the assurance that the place is the right one. And it's especially good if you have to leave the area to hunt up the gang because the area is marked when you return.

GETTING THE right spot located is most important because it is here that blood will usually be found. Large amounts of blood or blood that shows a foaminess will tell you that the deer is mortally hit and probably will be within 200 or 300 years.

In this case, I would search the area out, following the blood sign and the tracks of the animal, and you will probably be successful. Even a heart shot deer can travel several hundred yards at times. A foamy blood trail means a lung shot deer.

A LIGHTLY bloodied trail can be real trouble, but it always pays to check the trail out. In this latter case, I would get help. One person to watch ahead and one or two persons to do the tracking. Even here it pasy to mark each blood patch or track with say three rocks or sticks. It's always easy and quick then to back track if you establish that you've gotten on the wrong track.

Using this system, with the help of one or two of the other hunters, I have been able to catch up to bucks with sometimes almost minor wounds, getting another shot for a finisher. Also I've located bucks that were gut shot, or badly hit in the leg areas, and which would have surely died and been wasted.

I ONCE SHOT a buck in the Sierras above the foreknee which I tracked for two hours to a stream. Of course I looked up and down the stream for an hour with no luck. Finally I back tracked, and looking again toward the stream instantly realized the buck had crossed and gone up-hill on the far side. The line was that straight. I climbed up the far side and about 200 yards up, laying in some granite, sat the buck watching me all that time.

Hunting for bucks and then wounding one can be the most frustrating experience and yet the most satisfying one if proper tracking techniques are used. Check every shot out, sometimes a hit is scored without knowing it.

I REMEMBER DICK Haas of San Rafael on his first hunt. He shot at two bucks on opening morning of deer season, thinking he had missed both. Mary, my wife, was on a nearby stand. She went over, and after hearing Dick's sad story, checked out each shot. One was in a pine tree, but the second had been a hit, and Dick had a big 3 pointer down about 100 yards in the timber.

There are other problems that come up also. I've shot bucks across a canyon, then, in hiking down, crossing a creek, and hiking up the far side, I couldn't find the animal. And yet, it was there all the time. I just didn't get to the right spot because I hadn't marked it properly.

IF YOU DROP a buck in its tracks in these circumstances, mark the spot by a tree, boulder or some other prominent markings, making a mental note of distances. It will save you the trouble of going back to your original spot and seeing where you were making your mistake. In a hot day or close to dark, this can avert a real problem.

And there's nothing like shooting a buck about 400 yards across the sage where almost everything looks the same and not having things marked. Here it's good to mark your sage shooting spot with a cloth or piece of paper, mentally measuring the distance to the buck, and making marks all along the brush until you reach the deer. If you fail to do this, some time you will end up far off and completely lost from your buck and your original shooting position.

West Virginia Inks Some Hefty Tackles

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Jim Carlen and his West Virginia University football staff signed 27 high school stars to grants-in-aid this spring.

Four of the oncoming freshmen are tackles weighing between 220 and 260 pounds. They are Sidney Green of Matewan, W. Va., Adam Gluchowski of Woodbridge, N.J., Dennis Reis of Hollywood, Fla., and Bill Samuelson of York, Pa. Green is the 260-pounder. All are 6-foot-2 or taller.

Oops, Wrong Player

Ralston Praises Bubba

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Coach John Ralston had high praise for running back Bubba Brown in the wake of Stanford's 20-20 tie with highly-ranked UCLA.

He told the Northern California Football Writers and Sportscasters luncheon yesterday that Brown "finally broke open like we thought he could" against the Bruins.

Brown was singled out by the writers as the most valuable back of the week on the basis of a performance in which he gained 100 yards and caught two passes.

Stanford's next opponent will be Oregon State Saturday.

Linebacker Bruce Lecuyer was named the Northern California lineman of the week for his defensive play in San Jose's 16-7 loss to undefeated Wyoming.

Lecuyer was in on 13 tackles and recovered two fumbles.

CREDIT

USC Coach John McKay gives his line much of the credit for Clarence Davis' rushing average of 128 yards a game and for quarterback Jimmy Jones' 709 yards in passing, Anderson said.

Undefeated USC has the inside track to a fourth straight Rose Bowl appearance in the wake of UCLA's tie with Stanford. Such a string would se a record.

California coach Ray Willsey told the writers he was proud of running backs Gary Fowler and Bob Darby and reserve quarterback Dave Penhall for their performances in the Bears' 17-0 victory over Washington State.

Moment Of Truth Arrives In Marin Football Scene

By GARY TISCHLER

The moment of truth has arrived in the Marin County Athletic League.

By a convenient quirk of scheduling, none of the top four teams in the league have yet played each other with half the season gone.

Terra Linda, San Marin and Redwood, the unbeaten (in league play) front-runners and San Rafael, have all played Drake, Novato and Tamalpais.

So now the fun begins.

Terra Linda and upstart San Marin square off at 1:30 at San Rafael High's field Saturday. Redwood and San Rafael mix it up on the same field Friday night.

SCHEDULE

From there on in, its Terra Linda vs. Redwood (Oct. 8); San Rafael vs. San Marin (Oct. 8); Terra Linda vs. San Rafael (Oct. 14) and San Marin vs. Redwood (Oct. 14).

Conceivably, some kind of messed-up tie could develop out of all this, although Terra Linda is generally acknowledged to be the class of the quartet. The Trojans have tied for the title in the last three years.

A certainty when the race comes down to three pressure weekends is that you can always go by compartive scores. So here's a quick look at how the four front-runners fared against the three cellar-dwellers. Terra Linda beat Drake, 43-8, beat Tamalpais, 28-12, beat Novato, 28-6. San Marin beat Drake, 27-8, beat Tamalpais 26-13, beat Novato, 9-0. Redwood beat Drake 6-0, beat Tamalpais 28-19, beat Novato, 12-7. San Rafael lost to Drake, 17-7, beat Tamalpais, 41-16, beat Novato, 10-0.

POINT SYSTEM

By an ingenious point spread method Terra Linda will finish first (73 points) San Marin second (41) San Rafael third (25) and Redwood fourth (20).

However, there are all kinds of mitigating circumstancew and quirks. For instance, San Rafael was the only team to play Drake when it was at full strength. By the time San Marin got to Drake, the Pirates were without Bob Sutherland, Jim Dominguez, Rod Warnhoff and John Loane. Also, Redwood was the only team to hold Drake scoreless. San Rafael rolled up the biggest score against Tamalpais. Redwood seems to be the only team that had a genuinely tough time winning all three of their games while Terra Linda, San Rafael and San Marin pretty much dominated the contests they won. And so on and so forth.

EXCUSE ME DEPT. — I got my numbers mixed up Friday. That was Tom Fowler, not Tom Nelson, who recovered that fumble in the end zone for San Marin's first score against Drake Friday. Wrong Tom.

DANIELE BOOTS IT AGAIN — Terra Linda extra point specialist Bob Daniele and his kicking unit of holder Mike Sanderson and center Mitch Lang, have captured the Gordon Tovani place-kicking unit award again. They may be stuffed full of certificates by year's end. Daniele booted four out of four conversions in a 28-6 win over Novato Saturday, winning out over Mike Howard of San Rafael (five for six) and Urbano Bouscieguez of San Marin, (three for three).

Incidentally, Urbano's last name which is pronounced Bos-si-gez, came out a little different over the PA system Friday, ringing out loud and clear as "Boskowitz." Urbano, a native of Mexico is of Spanish and French descent but there's no Polish in that name.

FIRST OFFENSE — San Rafael's football team, which has had its problem offensively, finally found an attack Saturday against Tamalpais. Everything clicked and fell into place as the Bulldogs scored 41 points almost three times as many points as they scored in two previous league games combined, and only 15 points off their entire output prior to the game.

CHIVALRY STILL REIGNS — There's still lots of honor and class on the high school field. Terra Linda defensive end Jon Wilson displayed a lot of it Saturday when he helped a pair of Novato runners to their feet on different occasions after downing them with particularly hard and clean tackles.

HOW TO PLAY

Believe It Or Not, A Weak Hand Is Sometimes Useful

If you eat your oatmeal and brush your teeth you may never hold as weak a hand as North's. It's just as unlikely as holding 13 cards of one suit. But if you do hold this ghastly Yarborough, let's hope that you're lucky enough to have a partner who can make the most of it.

No. 4010 ..... Oct. 28, 1969

CHANGE CARDS

When this hand was actually played, the dummy wasn't quite as weak as the North hand shown today. North really held a couple of sixes and a seven, but I changed a few of his cards in the hope of winning the Pulitzer Prize for drama.

South won with the king of diamonds, drew exactly one round of trumps and then shrewdly led his lowest spade. East won with the eight of spades and hopefully returned a club, which was as good as anything else he could do.

Declarer took the ace of clubs, drew a second round of trumps and then cashed the ace of spades, holding his breath as he did so.

BEST CHANCE

Declarer knew he had left a trump out, but his play was correct. There was no danger if each opponent had started with three spades. If either opponent had more than three spades, South's only chance was to ruff his last spade in the dummy. This was possible if the player with length in spades also had the last trump.

South's gamble worked well. West couldn't ruff the king of spades, and East had to follow suit. South ruffed his last spade in dummy, returned to his hand with a club and only then drew the last trump. He could then claim the rest.

CAN'T AFFORD

South couldn't afford to draw two rounds of trumps before giving up a spade. East would return a third trump and would eventually win a second spade trick.

South likewise couldn't afford to take one top spade before losing a spade trick. East would happily lead a third spade, and West would overruff the dummy.

If this doesn't win a Pulitzer Prize, I'll sell the movie rights cheap. An Oscar would look nice on my bar.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q J 9 8
♥—9 8 5
♦—Q 8 7
♣—Q J 9.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two no-trump, the negative response.

A positive response to a strong two-bid should hint at a slam, and you need aces and kings for that kind of hint. Points based solely on queens and jacks are not enough.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1969 with 64 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1886, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor.

In 1929, losses in quoted values on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges came to more than $10 billion. Some high-priced bank stocks dropping from 100 to 500 points.

In 1968, thousands of Czechs rallied to protest the Soviet occupation.

A thought for the day: German poet Johann Heinrich said, "Who does not love wine, women and song remains a fool his whole life long."

Court Ignored: Pudding Or Pie?

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Godfrey Illingworth, 19-year-old student teacher, was looking forward to the steak pie he was carrying home for supper.

But suddenly a van pulled up alongside him, a man jumped out, grabbed the pie and drove off.

In a Manchester court David Woods, 22, painter and decorator, pleaded guilty to stealing the pie, value 1 shilling 3 pence — 15 cents. He said he had been drinking and told the court: "It was a pudding, not a pie."

Woods was conditionally discharged.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Sometimes Switch Will Fail To Produce Funds

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My broker advises buying Harbor Fund after selling 75 Northwest Industries, 25 Zenith Radio and 25 Peoples Gas. I'm 79 and discouraged by the paper losses on my stocks. What's your advice? — M. B.

A. Your broker is recommending an income fund that showed strong growth from 1963 through 1968. Net asset value increased 128 per cent and the capital gains payout jumped to $2 in 1968 from a five-year average of 21.6 cents through 1967.

Last February's distribution of capital gains was $1.78. These two unusually high payments reflect the final upsurge in a long bull market and the profit potential of convertible bonds, composing the bulk of Harbor Fund's portfolio. The fund's regular dividend payments since 1963 have averaged 40 cents annually.

Your broker's enthusiasm for Harbor Fund is understandable. But if capital gains revert to the levels reported through 1967, the annual return to you would be noticeably less. The high cost of money adversely affects the price level of convertible bonds, and profit-taking is thereby restricted.

The three stocks you now hold are paying you $189 annually. The proceeds from their sale would purchase a pproximately 312 shares of Harbor Fund. Using tne fund's 1963-1967 average payout of 58 cents (dividends plus capital gains), you would receive around $180 a year. Since both your alternatives have speculative overtones, you may be just as well off to hold your stocks for price recovery.

Q. Where can I get some general information on mutual funds? Someone told me there is a clearinghouse that supplies it. — Q. R.

A. The Investment Company Institute, 61 Broadway, New York City 10006, might be called a clearinghouse for the mutual fund industry. This organization collects and compiles figures on the industry's progress and sends out regular press releases on its findings. It also publishes and sells a variety of booklets on the operation of mutual funds and the many ways investors use them for specific goals.

Ground Broken For $250,000 Mobile Home Recreation Unit

Ground has been broken for a $250,000 recreational unit to service the Marin Mobile Country Club on the east side of Highway 101, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

This is a 160-acre multimillion dollar mobile home park being developed by Julio V. Dougherty Realty of San Mateo and financed by Bank of America and its subsidiary Small Business Enterprises Co. The general contractor is Page Construction Co. of Novato.

There are already 170 completed home sites and plans for 340 more spaces to be added by next spring. A large selection of mobile homes priced from $11,000 to $25,000 are now on display.

Homes are angled in separate neighborhood clusters of five spaces to the acre — all serviced by underground utilities, lighted streets and recreational facilities. Landscaping will provide large green areas, shrubs and expansive lawns when the park is completed.

Owner Alfred (Bud) Arenz of Greenbrae offers horsemen and livestock owners hay, grain and horse feed mixes delivered to their stable doors, along with an extensive line of tack supplies including just about everything except saddles and show equipment, stable supplies, veterinary medicines and other equipment. Deliveries are made both in Marin and Sonoma counties.

He also does horse hauling and shipping, trailer electrical work, fence and corral building and repair and has a limited horse brokerage listing service. Hours are from noon to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Closed Sundays.

RICHARD C. NELSON of Ross has been elected vice president for administration at Crown Zellerback Corp., San Francisco. Before joining the company in 1958 as an attorney on the corporate legal staff, he held legal positions with Fibreboard Paper Products Corp. and Tidewater Corp. and was assistant United States attorney for San Francisco from 1953 to 1955. Since 1967 he has been vice president for industrial relations at Crown Zellerbach.

Nelson Reid

WILLIAM M. REID of Corte Madera has been named financial vice president for Compu-Terminal Corp., new downtown San Francisco data processing center. Prior to joining the company he was treasurer of Frank B. Hall and Co. of California, insurance broker.

ARCHITECT EUGENE CRAWFORD of Crawford and Banning, San Rafael, has been elected president of the California Council, American Institute of Architects for 1970.

Market In Decline At Closing Bell

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks declined today in moderately active trading.

Heavily traded stocks were Allis Chalmers and Aluminum Co. of America. The former traded an early block of 130,000 shares at 24 5-8 in a cross transaction, while a 135,000 share of Alcoa block changed hands at 75, cross.

Also active were Electric & Musical Industries, Texaco, Atlas Chemical and Occidental. The latter reported a higher third quarter net.

Conglomerates followed a mixed path, while electronics swung widely and in both directions.

Oils and motors also moved on both sides of previous closings. So did rails, airlines and aircrafts.

'Bonanza' Boss Fine As A Spy

By CYNTHIA LAURY

NEW YOR K (AP) — Peter Vanin of Monday night's "Destiny of a Spy" on NBC was an off-beat television hero. Here was a 50-year-old widower, retired from active spying to a Russian bureaucrat's job, tapped to destroy a new British weapons system. He was a luke-warm Communist and a pretty inept agent.

The complicated script really stuffed the two-hour made-for-TV film. It was brightened by the heroic presence of Lorne Greene with a slight foreign accent and in a business suit instead of Western drawl and "Bonanza" uniform; by the authentic London exteriors, and by a cast of fine British character actors.

SPY'S ASSIGNMENT

The spy's assignment was to track down some unknown person who was threatening the inventor of the weaponry, to ferret out his guilty secret and persuade him to pull out of the project. This led the spy into the arms of a blonde double agent —Rachel Roberts—to the solution of a 20-year-old murder and to a dive under a moving train.

Along the way there was plenty of tailing by agents for both sides and a clutch of accidental and premeditated deaths. The program will never be spun off as a series since the hero—struck by the train, then shot by the murderer—died at the end.

Bob Hope, NBC's biggest gun in the hot ratings war, triumphed again in the newest Nielsen list. His last special, according to the audience research organization, was tuned in by 47 per cent of the sets in use.

OTHER PROGRAM

Other programs in Nielsen's top 10 shows were, in order, NBC's "Laugh-In" and "Music Hall," CBS' "Red Skelton Show," National Geographic special, "Family Affair" and "Here's Lucy," NBC's rerun of "Heidi" and "Ironside."

Hope still works as hard as a newcomer to promote a new movie, a new book or an upcoming TV show. Right now he is interested in a 90-minute TV adaptation of the 30-year-old stage musical "Roberta" which will be broadcast Nov. 6.

Asked why his shows invariably attracted huge audiences, Hope said he thought the secret was "diversity—making the audience curious about what we'll do next. I think they'll get a kick out of our doing a fine old musical show."

"Roberta" undoubtedly is an especially important show for Bob. He appeared in the Broadway show at a time when few people were aware of his existence.
